In Heaven's Name, Why?
American Wines, If Any.
She Made Little Dolls.
A Fast One, Says Kirk.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, May 18.

URGENT TALK about forcing the United States into the League of Nations, through the back door, known as the World Court, surprises you.

Not one of the "statesmen, philanthropists, prosperous mollycoddles, internationalists" and others that advocate the World Court for Uncle Sam would accept its decisions for themselves. They would say:

"No thanks for MYSELF, I prefer a plain United States Court."

The Carnegie Foundation, with many millions piled up, said to be working for the World Court, would not trust its own millions or other interests to any World Court decision.

THE UNITED STATES representative on the World Court bench would be overwhelmingly outvoted by other judges, appointed by nations now engaged in swindling this country out of ten thousand million dollars, lent in war. Who is foolish enough to think that World Court judges, in matters affecting the United States, would be any more honest than the nations appointing them? Are not ten billions enough? Or must we lose ten more through World Court decisions?

Any American in favor of the League of Nations and the world court must be doubtful of his country's ability to manage its own affairs, and is not MUCH of an American.

BRILLIANT SUNSHINE flooding this state today, as usual, reminds you that the quality of wines depends on soil and sunshine, SUNSHINE especially. You can prepare and improve the soil, not the sunshine.

Thomas Jefferson advised Americans wisely when he recommended light wines as the best promoters of true temperance.

JEFFERSON WAS obliged to import his wines from France, and the Britisher gets his port from Portugal. Americans can and SHOULD get all their wines from American vineyards.

California is the greatest vineyard state. The largest single vineyard in the world is here. Every fine wine is grown from the light red and white wines to the heaviest port and sherry. Generations ago experienced cultivators of the vine came here from Switzerland and France, bringing with them cuttings from the best old world vineyards.

Americans should save the heavy duty on foreign wines, and, more important, encourage American winegrowers by using American wines.

Excellent wines are produced in many of our states, New York, Delaware, Ohio, among others, but the great wine state is CALIFORNIA.

IF YOU DRINK anything containing alcohol you can drink nothing better, as Thomas Jefferson told you long ago, and every intelligent Doctor will tell you today, than good light wine, red wine especially, diluted with water, throughout the meal, with perhaps a small wineglass pure at the end. The French take that, because "it keeps the blood in the stomach, where it is needed for digestion, for at least half an hour after the end of the meal."

CLARENCE LINDNER, of the San Francisco Examiner, who works harder and longer for his paper than the well known Biblical gentleman did for his wife, reminds you that wines have been made in California for more than 150 years. The padres, missionaries from Spain, brought their vines with them and planted them behind the adobe walls of their lonely outpost missions.

Don't buy foreign wines. You can get all that you need of admirable quality grown in America. Keep your money here, where you or your father made it, if you want prosperity.

IN A HOLE in the desert, covered over with cactus, where the little six-year-old kidnaped Robles girl was found, detectives discovered mouldy bread, also some good bread, fortunately, withered oranges and a considerable supply of dates.

And most touching and important, there in her prison, her tiny ankles chained, the desert heat above 110 degrees, detectives found that the little girl had busied herself taking seeds of dates that she had eaten and dressing them up with bits of paper to look like doll babies, as she had been taught to do at home.

In all nature, nothing excels in power or in beauty the maternal instinct that shows itself in a little girl's devotion to her dolls.

HERE IN CALIFORNIA, many protest because kidnapers, once caught, are not hanged promptly and always. California's law says the kidnaper shall be hanged, the judge and jury having no option, if, in addition to kidnaping his victim he wilfully inflicts physical injury upon him. But if the victim is returned, or escapes unharmed, the penalty is life imprisonment. Under the loose and often badly applied parole laws of this and other states "life" imprisonment means freedom, in from ten to fifteen years.

But the public, demanding a "hanging for every kidnaping," should remember that the most dangerous witness against the

METER LEVY DECLARED ILLEGAL

Judge Marshall Rules Ordinance Conflicts With State Tax

The Kane ordinance imposing a tax of $2 a year on meters of utility companies was held illegal today by Judge Elder W. Marshall.

In a lengthy opinion Judge Marshall ruled that the ordinance by which it was expected to boost municipal revenues by more than $600,000 annually, was in conflict with an act of Assembly which forbids levying municipal taxes on personal property already taxed by the state.

Meters of light, telephone and gas companies constitute such personal property, the court asserts, and are taxed by the commonwealth in the shape of a capital stock tax.

DISMISSES OBJECTIONS

The court dismisses preliminary objections by the city to injunction proceedings brought by the utilities to prevent the city from collecting the tax.

This permits a hearing on the equity bill seeking an injunction but the court's opinion makes it plain it considers the issue settled.

City Controller James P. Kerr, named with the city as defendant in the injunction suit, said he would fight the case in the higher courts.

CITES 1932 LAW

Judge Marshall in concluding his opinion, stated:

"We fully appreciate that the city was obliged, because of declining income brought on by the depression, to seek new sources of revenue.

"In adopting Ordinance No. 39, it was endeavoring to provide funds sufficient to carry on under a balanced budget the many municipal functions which are so vital to the safety and comfort of its citizens.

"We are mindful also, of the rising tide of public sentiment in favor of utility corporations bearing their proportionate share of local taxes. Relief in

'Dumbbell' Beauty No. 1 in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, May 18.—(AP.)—Joan Redell, an attractive blonde, and New York's No. 1 "dumbbell," has arrived in Hollywood to seek a film career.

Miss Redell knows all the wrong answers. She was the winner of a recent "beautiful dumbbell" contest in the big city in which the judges were James Montgomery Flagg, illustrator; Bill Dwyer, cartoonist, and Jefferson Machamer, also a cartoonist.

Two Homes Looted In Woodland Road

The looting of two homes in exclusive Woodland road was being investigated by city detectives today.

From a drawer in the dining room in the home of C. J. Rea, $40 in cash was stolen. Entrance was gained through a side window. Dr. E. A. Pitcairn, found a trunk on his lawn. He was unable to estimate what had been stolen, police reported.

Rector Invites 2 'First Ladies' To Be Silent

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, were invited by inference to cease making "public utterances" in a statement issued here today by the Rev. Dr. David M. Steele, rector emeritus of the Episcopal Church of St. Luke and the Epiphany.

Although he desisted from naming the wife of the President and the wife of the Governor, Mr. Steele left no room for mistaking the identities of the persons he criticized in his statement. He said:

"I would like to say to one lady at Harrisburg and one elsewhere, that the state and nation at this juncture could get on very well without their public utterances."

After issuing his prepared statement, Dr. Steele was asked whether he referred to Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Pinchot. He answered:

"I certainly did. I meant every word of it."

The clergyman's statement suggested that the defeat of Gov. Pinchot by United States Senator David A. Reed in Tuesday's Republican senatorial primary showed the "thorough dissatisfaction" of Pennsylvania citizens with the Governor. Mr. Steele advised the Governor not to seek election to the Senate in the fall on a preempted party ticket. He said:

"Granting all the merits of woman suffrage, which to me are nil, having females leading parades of strikers and other disturbers of the peace, and flying airplanes higher and yon to report what 'we' think about foreign policies and other things, all of us who are of sane mind and equally intelligent, would be glad to call it a day and allow to you to be at home—even to be silent.

"An aged friend of mine, remembering his rural birthplace and perhaps a somewhat vulgar custom where boys amuse themselves by hanging cats over a clothesline, recently suggested that these two females should be tied and hung over a pole."

NAME STEEDLE IN VOTE TRIAL

The government swung its guns in the direction of Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, the McKees Rocks Assemblyman, and Attorney B. Robert Averbach today in Federal Court, where they are standing trial with 10 others on charges of conspiracy.

Earl J. Connelly, an agent of the Department of Justice, testified that Averbach had shown him the original and copies of a check for $550, which Averbach had made out to Dr. Steedle. This represented a series of $50 deposits recovered after having been posted for recounts.

Prosecutors James I. Marsh and Louis E. Graham sought to convey the impression that the money for the deposits had been furnished originally by Mrs. Mary Ray, mother of Wallace Ray, a defendant.

Mrs. Ray, on the stand, testified she had given her son $800, but couldn't say whether it was to be used as deposits on recounts.

AVERBACH NAMED

Through witnesses the prosecuting attorneys contended that Averbach was active in circulating

ROOSEVELT ARMS BAN WAITED

Message to Congress Expected to Starve War Monster

War and alarms of war brought these repercussions today:

1—President Roosevelt drafted a message to Congress expected to recommend an embargo on arms shipments to belligerent nations while world powers at Geneva sought united action to end bloody warfare in the Chaco jungles between Bolivia and Paraguy.

2—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, declared Great Britain would not participate in direct sanctions against Japan or any other power without full co-operation of the United States, while Stanley Baldwin added that sanctions "meant war." (See story, Page 2).

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt hopes to send to Congress late today a message on munitions, which is generally expected to recommend an embargo on arms shipments to belligerent nations.

The munitions message comes at a time when the world powers are seeking united action to end the persistent warfare between Bolivia and Paraguay for the Chaco territory.

Under State Department instructions, American envoys in Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru are seeking the support of those governments in a plan for joint action to bring an immediate end to the blood-drenched dispute over the Chaco.

Co-operation with European nations in an international embargo on arms shipments to the belligerents—advocated by Great Britain at Geneva—would be parallel with and suplementary to the Latin-American embargo and anti-smuggling action.

San Martin Faints At Cuba's Welcome

HAVANA, May 18.—(AP.)—Overcome by the huge demonstration greeting his return to Cuba today, ex-President Ramon Grau San Martin fainted as he entered his home here and was carried prostrate to his bedroom.

Apparently the ex-President had been unable to stand the vigorous welcome by the 100,000 well-wishers who were waiting to meet him when he got off the boat this morning.

Armed Bandits Get N. J. Payroll

CAMDEN, N. J., May 18.—(INS.)—In a bold daylight foray three armed bandits today seized an $875 payroll here.

Two employes of the Young and Metzner Bag and Manufacturing Company had just driven up to the front of the plant with the payroll when the robbers, who had followed them in another automobile, leaped to the sidewalk.

3 Freed by McNair Held for Rum

Moritz Protests in Vain to Fellow Magistrate

Echoes of Mayor McNair's attack on the state liquor laws reverberated through Pittsburgh today following a fiery hearing last night when Alderman Ray E. Schneider held for court a man and woman whom the Mayor had freed on liquor law charges.

While Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary and himself a magistrate, stood by protesting, Alderman Schneider not only held the couple for court, but fined another woman whom the Mayor had freed, and then engaged in verbal combat with the secretary.

Moritz attended the hearing in place of the Mayor, who had agreed to defend one of the women, but sent word he had a "cold."

An interested spectator was Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, who, when advised his pal McNair would not attend because of a cold, said:

"I just left Mickey (his pet name for McNair) a short while ago, and he was all right then. He sure can get a cold quick."

As Moritz arrived as the Mayor's emissary, he astounded the courtroom by announcing:

"Mayor McNair does not intend that the police department shall enforce these liquor laws."

"The state revenue agents and the constables can do that."

'Mob Law' Stalks Arizona Hunt for Robles Kidnapers

By EDWARD LABOWITCH

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 18.—The spirit of old Judge Lynch rode the Arizona range today on the trail of the kidnapers of little June Robles.

Threats to lynch the abductors of the 6-year-old school girl continued to be voiced today, and officers proceeded cautiously in their investigations.

One suspect was in custody, several under surveillance.

Cowboys and grizzzled pioneers of this southwestern desert country seconded as a "good idea" June's childish desire:

"If you catch those bad men I want you to put chains on their legs like they did on me in that old box."

A sentiment frequently expressed on Tucson streets was:

"Hanging would be too good for them."

Sheriff John Belton said:

"We are no nearer a solution to the identity of the kidnapers than we were when June was abducted from a street here April 25."

Meanwhile 18 distinct finger-

GARRISON, N. Y., May 18.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit, widely known as the "Radio Priest," is "resting up" and taking the prescribed course of exercises at "Bill Brown's Place" here.

The clergyman has been at Brown's place about a week. He was tired out when he arrived.

Father Coughlin will leave tonight for Wisconsin, but expects to return in September for two weeks more at the health farm.

BULLETIN.

LANSING, Mich., May 18.—(INS.)—All state police cruisers were notified by radio at 1:20 p. m. that a state police plane had picked up the trail of the Flint bank bandits—headed by John Dillinger. The plane was circling over a car in the vicinity of Holly, 15 miles south of Flint, the broadcast said.

International News Service.

FLINT, Mich., May 18.—Driven from his remote mine hideout in Southwestern Wisconsin by a slowly-closing cordon of federal agents and police, John Dillinger hit the trail of crime again today to lead a band of five men and one woman in the holdup of the Citizens' Commercial and Savings Bank here, fleeing with loot estimated upwards of $100,000.

Dillinger was definitely identified by Kirk Roland, Flint druggist, as the leader of the machine gun band which invaded the bank and was tentatively identified by bank officials. Roland declared:

"It was Dillinger. I recognized him by the scar on his face."

IDENTIFIES GUNMAN

The druggist, who went to the bank on business, also promptly identified Dillinger as the leader of the raiders from a photograph of the desperado shown him by police.

Bank officials were not quite so positive in their identification but said the leader of the band tallied with descriptions given them of Dillinger from general appearance, height and weight. Harry Staym, bank manager, said:

"I am not familiar with Dillinger's appearance, but descriptions and photographs shown me by police certainly fitted the man who directed the holdup."

Roland had gone into the bank on business, he told police, and had taken a pistol with him, since he expected to bring back a considerable sum of money. When the thugs entered he attempted to draw his gun. He said:

WARNED BY BANDIT

"Dillinger put his machine gun against my forehead and put his foot on top of mine.

"He told me: 'If I feel a muscle move in your foot I'll let you have it.'

"All through the holdup we stood like that—me with my hand reaching back toward my gun pocket, and Dillinger with the machine gun pressed against my forehead, and his foot clamped down on mine.

"I never moved.

"I'm positive it was Dillinger. I looked into his face all the time the other guy was climbing into the cage and getting the money."

Riding Master Quits Jail He Preferred to Wedding

By DIXIE TIGHE

International News Service.

WALKILL, N. Y., May 18.—Sidney H. Homewood, the young man who sprang into international fame when he decided on jail rather than marriage, went home today, having served one year five months and 14 days of his sentence for seducing socially prominent Charlotte Gibson under promise of marriage.

He was home $15.60 to the good—the sum he earned while in prison here. His original fine of $500 was halved when Homewood pleaded poverty and ruined business because of the publicity at his trial. He is a riding master.

But at home after his release from jail he was not thinking of business nor of the girl he refused to marry. His mother, Mrs. Blanche Homewood, was planning a party for him tonight and his home in Park Ridge, N. J., had the air of pleasant excitement and no suggestion of tragedy.

But tragedy has clung to the home of Charlotte Gibson, whose father, Robert Gibson, resorted to the courts rather than personal means of avenging his daughter's betrayal. It was he who had the charge of seduction brought against young Homewood and his bitterness against him was as evident today as the day of the court proceedings.

Brusquely, irritably, Gibson said:

"The convicted defendant has exhibited not the faintest sign of penitence."

But Homewood's attitude is quite different. He said:

"I've done my bit—I've paid."

Although Homewood failed to get a "recommendation" from Gibson, who strenuously fought any clemency toward his daughter's betrayer, Warden Leo Palmer called him a "model of conduct" and said that Homewood worked faithfully on the 1,000 acres about the penitentiary.

DAVIS SEES U. S. INDUSTRY RUINED BY TARIFF BILL

PENNA. SENATOR JOINS ATTACK IN SENATE

Vandenburg Assails Risking 90 Millions With President

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—In a fresh attack on President Roosevelt's tariff program, Senator Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, this afternoon charged it would lead to the destruction of certain industries within the United States.

Davis offered an amendment to the bill, giving the President board powers to slash tariffs in order to increase foreign commerce.

His amendment would prohibit the President from entering any agreement on any article, or slashing its tariff rate, if the cost of producing that article were cheaper in the foreign country than in the United States. He said this would protect the American standards of living and wage scales.

JOINING IN THE ATTACK

Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan, described the bill as "blind speculation in which we hand the President $90,000,000,000 worth of blue chips—that being the normal value of our domestic markets." He told the Senate:

"We are hoping against hope that we may win, but fearing against well-grounded fear that we shall lose as usual."

First assault on the bill began yesterday when Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, branded it as unconstitutional because it delegated the taxing power to the President. He called this a "dangerous trend" and a furtive changing of our form of government from a constitutional democracy.

The bill would authorize the President to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations in an effort to recover some $6,000,000,000 of lost foreign commerce.

The Republicans are fighting it almost solidly and sponsored many amendments, all pointed toward limiting the President's proposed powers.

One by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, would compel the President to submit all agreements to the Senate for ratification just as every treaty is ratified.

M'LEOD BARES NEW 'TRICK'

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Attempts to adjourn Congress without enactment of legislation for relief of closed bank depositors will fail, Representative Clarence McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, author of the McLeod 100 per cent payoff bill, predicted today.

The declaration followed the successful effort of House leaders to block temporarily a vote on his bill by adjournment over the week-end.

The McLeod bill supporters pointed their efforts toward completion of a petition of 145 names to assure a vote on June 11. McLeod said:

"I don't think they will be able to adjourn without taking some action to relieve depositors. There are three groups which were denied the right to bring important bills to the floor. They can easily prevent adjournment.

"We expect to complete our petition next week. We had 127 signers yesterday afternoon and needed but 18 when the House was suddenly adjourned. We had been informed that a number of members were coming from their offices to sign the petition. I think the leaders knew it."

McLeod asserted his petition would have been completed if the House had remained in session until the usual quitting hour. By adjourning early a vote on May 28 was prevented.

Steel Furniture Cost Deters Treasury

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—The Treasury today rejected bids submitted by 14 manufacturers for supplying government needs of steel office furniture in the next fiscal year because the offers were "considered excessive."

The treasury's procurement division further found that the firms submitted "bids identical as to price."

Roosevelts and Guests Like Mountain Music

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—The White House, with its fine ways, doesn't worry the folk musicians from down White Top Mountain way in Virginia.

They proved it last night. With perfect poise, a small group of them sang ballads and played fiddle and banjo tunes for the President, cabinet members, official and social Washington, and, by radio, all of America and Germany besides.

Just as simply as they played and sang for Mrs. Roosevelt on White Top Mountain last summer, when she attended their festival, they presented some of the same, and other melodies when they came to visit her.

She fiddled "Hell Broke Loose in Georgia" as a solo number, and "Haste to the Wedding" in duet with her brother, Jim Chisholm, aged 76.

The folk musicians sat in a row on a raised platform alongside the famous gold piano, in the sparkling East Room, and in turn presented their bits of "musical tradition handed down in unbroken line." John Powell, noted Virginia composer, brought the group to the White House.

There was no doubt about the President's favor. He enjoyed most of the sea chantey "Santy Anna," sung in vigorous, rollicking style by grizzled J. M. Hunt, who sailed in his youth in clipper ships.

The White House, it was said, probably hadn't heard music like that since the days of Thomas Jefferson, and, certainly the mountaineers never before had seen anything that compared with the sumptuousness of the White House.

They'll have a lot to talk about when they get home.

Dr. Zook Retires As Education Head

Guy E. Campbell, former congressman defeated for re-election, was called to the stand by the government.

He testified that at 2:30 o'clock on the morning after election day two of the defendants, Attorney John J. McGrath and Burton J. McKee, came to his home and asked how the vote was.

Campbell testified that after he had told them he conceded victory to his opponent by at least 3,800 votes he was asked:

"Could not somebody get them for you?"

TELLS OF PETITIONS

A. D. Levi, of McKees Rocks, told of getting from Attorney Averbach's office petitions for recounts. He said he couldn't remember just who had handed him the petitions.

Father A. J. F. Muzenski, of St. Anthony's Church in Stowe Township, testified he obtained signers for recount petitions at the request of Wallace Ray, a defendant and a clerk in the inheritance tax office.

The members of election boards testified that when they saw the ballot boxes at the recount the seals had, in some cases, been broken and, in others, obviously damaged or changed in appearance.

WITNESSES CALLED

These witnesses included Daniel Muenz, First District, Scott Township; James Evans, First District, Scott Township; Joseph Lewicki, Third District, Scott Township; Mrs. Anna Simmons, Third District, Stowe Township; George Choka, Fourth District, Stowe Township.

Eight voters from the election districts testified that, without knowledge of any frauds committed, they had signed the petitions for recounts. There was testimony that among those who had asked that petitions be signed were Police Chief Thomas Saunders, a defendant, of Stowe Township and Father Muszenski.

Defendants in addition to Steedle, Schwartz and Saunders are Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks; Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, of Scott Township; Wallace Ray, clerk in the county delinquent tax office; Attorney John J. McGrath, Burton J. McKee, real estate dealer; Robert S. S. Haus and Capt. Frank Miller, Sergt. William Schwartz and Policeman August Weisser, of the Stowe Township police.

WORLD SILVER PARLEY SEEN

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—Speedy international silver talk is likely to follow the formal launching of the administration's silver program.

As President Roosevelt held his special white metal message ready for quick dispatch, it became known that the far eastern silver situation already is subject for informal trans-Pacific discussions.

Prof. James Harvey Rogers, Roosevelt silver emissary to China, has delivered preliminary reports on the situation in the Far East and, although no word on his findings has been forthcoming, some officials close to the President have suggested that care be taken lest the projected silver program upset China financially.

These Treasury experts believe that too high a boost in the price of silver might "break" China, which, with India, is the world's biggest storehouse of the white metal.

From within the Senate silver bloc meanwhile have come forecasts that the projected silver program would result in the calling of an international silver conference.

LAYING OFF MEN BARS PROFITS —KNUDSEN

Money Made at Work Benches, Declares Auto Magnate

DETROIT, May 18. — (AP.) — William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors Corporation, speaking last night at the Detroit Industrial Safety Council, declared that no one ever made money by laying men off.

He declared one of the chief tasks before industrial leaders today was to re-establish the old-time partnership with the men at the bench, saying:

"I hope we get back to the time when that partnership existed. That's where the money is made—at the benches. No one ever made money laying men off.

"I hope industry is going to continue to operate with a profit. Recently it has become unfashionable to make a profit, but no one has advised me on how we are going to live in the world of the future without a profit."

Pointing out that ultimate cooperation between management and labor would be reached only when they realized that their interests were in common, he said:

"We are confronted with two groups in the labor field today. One insists we have a minimum of interest in our workmen; the other insists we try to dominate our workmen, and that we do not think of lives but of dollars. I take exception to the last statement.

"We have three duties to our working people: That we pay a fair and adequate wage; that we supply modern equipment; and that we look after the health and safety of the men while they are in the plant."

He added that he was not in sympathy with the theory that industry should take care of the maximum amount of workers at the maximum wage, pointing out that the policy would eliminate much of the purchasing power which made the wage possible in the first place. He went on:

"A great many labor policies being attempted today make it necessary for us to exercise a great deal of patience and do a lot of explaining, but whatever improvement is to enter into industrial relationship in times to come will come solely from the bottom up."

14,000 Hired Here On Relief Projects

With the assignment of 4,000 workmen to Relief Works Division projects today, Allegheny County's May quota of 14,000 men was reached, James L. Stuart, County administrator, reported.

Figures released by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator, show that the number of persons on relief increased from 81,420 in March to 125,056 in April. For the same period expenditures of public funds for relief purposes here increases from $1,553,866 to $2,180,349.

BRITISH BALKED IN NEW DEBT MANEUVER

International News Service.
By HARRY K. REYNOLDS

LONDAN, May 18.—Sir Ronald Lindsey, British ambassador to the United States, has sounded out President Roosevelt on the question of summoning an inter-foreign debts owed to America, but the results were not encouraging, it was learned today.

International News Service revealed last Tuesday that the British government had suggested that President Roosevelt take the initiative in calling such a conference but it was not then known that the British ambassador had presented the proposal.

LONDON DISAPPOINTED

The Bhitish government is disappointed at the preliminary report from Sir Ronald, believing that in no other way can the debt question be settled. At the same time it is recognized that the American Congress and public are firmly opposed to treating the foreign debts as an international issue as they are opposed to any proposals for revision or cancellation.

The complete report of Sir Ronald's conversation with President Roosevelt is awaited by the cabinet to aid the government in making its decision, after the Whitsun holidays, on what to do about the British debt payment due June 15.

DENY MAKING OFFER

It is hoped, both at the Treasury and the Foreign Office, that the ambassador was able to obtain concrete information from President Roosevelt whether Great Britain would be considered a defaulting nation if she made only a token payment in June, as Washington dispatches assert, or whether such a payment might be made pending negotiations for a final settlement.

In this connection officials denied today an English news agency dispatch from Washington that Sir Ronald had made a definite offer of $25,000,000 as a token payment.

TAX ON METERS HELD ILLEGAL

that regard can originate only in the Legislature which has the unquestioned power to authorize cities and other municipalities to tax the land and personal property of utility companies.

"We would sustain the ordinance now under consideration if it were legally possible, but so long as the Legislature, by the act of 1932, has expressly forbidden taxation of property already being taxed by the state, we have no option but to administer the law as it is written."

HELD PROPERTY TAX

The opinion asserts that in the court's opinion the Kane ordinance taxes not the utility companies in respect to ownership and use of meters, but their personal property. The Supreme Court is cited in substantiation of this view.

Regarding the legislative ban on the meter tax Judge Marshall ruled:

"Since then, the tax imposed by the ordinance is a tax on personal property, the act of 1932 explicitly forbids it to be levied if such property is already subject to a state tax.

"The allegation of the bill, which for present purposes we must assume to be true, is that plaintiff is required to pay and does pay to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a capital stock tax on its property, including the meters in question.

"It has long been held in Pennsylvania that the tax upon the capital stock of a corporation is a tax on the property and assets in which the corporate capital is invested."

SCULLY STUDIES RULING

City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully and Assistant Solicitor John J. Kennedy, who handled the utility case arguments, declined to comment until they had read the opinion.

The company fighting the tax was the Equitable Gas Company. Other utilities involved are the Bell Telephone Company, Duquesne Light Company, Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, Peoples Natural Gas Company, South Pittsburgh Water Company and Allegheny Steam Heating Company.

The ordinance was fathered by Councilman John J. Kane, Democratic bloc leader, and was the subject of lively debate in Council prior to its enactment last February 6.

2 A.M. Bride Spurned, She Gets Divorce

A 2 a. m. wedding eight months ago ended in divorce today when Mrs. Louise McGough Bunton, 23, was granted a decree from Berryman Bunton, 24, of 5526 Fair Oaks street. Last September they aroused the marriage license clerk and a justice of the peace out of bed to get married in Wilkinsburg.

The young wife, after telling Judge Thomas M. Marshall how her husband spurned her affection, was given a divorce today on charges of desertion. She lives at 313 Third street, Aspinwall.

SANKEY WIDOW JURY DISAGREES

PIERRE, S. D., May 18.—(AP.)—The Federal Court trial of Mrs. Fern Sankey and Mrs. Alvina Kohler, widow and sister-in-law of the late kidnaper, Verne Sankey on charges of conspiracy in the Charles Boettcher, II, $60,000 kidnaping, has ended in a jury deadlock.

After being out nearly 28 hours, the jury reported a "hopeless" disagreement and was discharged by Judge Lee Wyman last night.

District Attorney Olaf Eidem, who has asked conviction of the women as a blow at the use of "gangland molls" to cover criminal moves, said there would be a retrial, but Defense Attorney Ben Laska, of Denver, declared the result is "as good as a victory."

Plainly relieved at the jury's action, Mrs. Sankey said she would return to the Buffalo County (S. D.) ranch, where Boettcher, a Denver broker, was held in 1933 after the abduction by her husband. She remains at liberty under $10,000 bond.

CHAMBER CHIEF BACKS HOUSING

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—The administration housing program was praised today by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, as one that would have a double social value in putting men to work and improving living conditions.

Harriman, referring to its general outlines, said:

"I very heartily commend the bill."

He estimated there was a shortage in this country of from 50,000,000 to 75,000,000 rooms, which he said would provide a 10-year rehousing program, not counting the homes which need rebuilding and improvement.

BRITAIN LINKS U. S. IN JAP POLICY

Simon Shuns War Risk To Preserve China Without Our Aid

LONDON, May 18.—(AP.)—Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, declared today that Great Britain is not pledged to "preserve" the integrity of China and will not participate in direct sanctions against Japan or any other power in other parts of the world unless the United States gives its full co-operation.

"Great Britain has never signed any treaty to preserve the territorial integrity of China."

Referring to the demands of some of the opposition that Great Britain embark on a policy of economic sanctions in an effort to forestall any war, the Foreign Secretary declared:

"Economic sanctions cannot be applied without the risk of war. And we cannot undertake any system of sanctions or effective action of this type unless the United States cooperates."

Stanley Baldwin jumped into the debate after minor speakers had followed Simon and said the question had been asked as to what would happen should the disarmament conference break down, adding:

"Don't let them assume it is going to break down.

He declared that Simon and Capt. Anthony Eden, now in Geneva, were going to make every effort to prevent it from being wrecked.

Speaking of air disarmament, Baldwin said that probably the only feasible way to achieve it was by the limitation and that when there was an agreement on limitation sanctions should be applied to violations. He said:

"The moment you are up against sanctions, you are up against war. There is no such thing as a sanction that will work that does not mean war."

JAPAN ACCUSED

Charges that Japan is planning to carve out of Chinese territory a "Manchukuo Number Two" were made on the floor of the House of Commons today.

The charges were aired by Sir Stafford Cripps during debate on foreign affairs.

Asserting that Great Britain through "vacillation and weakness of policy" is helping Japan's hand in China, he suggested the co-operation of Britain, Russia and the United States in a program aimed at halting Japanese expansion in the Far East.

and charges of being material witnesses have been made against Basonic, Devlin and Dracaliello.

Mrs. Elizabeth Christian, 30, of 2533 Plainview avenue, a teacher at the David B. Oliver High School, and her husband, Wayne Christian, 34, were injured in an auto crash today as she was about to alight from a car in front of the school, police reported.

The car, halted on the opposite side of Brighton road from the school, was struck from the rear by an auto driven by James G. Wiley, 53, Negro mail carrier, of 706 Woods Run avenue, according to police.

Christian and his wife were taken to Presbyterian Hospital by a passing motorist, the former suffering possible rib fractures and cuts and the latter a possible fracture of the right arm. Wiley was arrested. The cars were damaged slightly.

Hallanan Leading For G. O. P. Chairman

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—The New York Herald Tribune in a special dispatch from Washington says that Republican party laaders have indicated that Walter S. Hallanan, of West Virginia, appears to be in the lead for chairman of the Republican national committee.

Party leaders will meet in Chicago on June 5 to name a successor to Everett Sanders.

Drive on League Dooms Court Vote in Senate

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Any lingering idea of trying to force a vote this session on the League of Nations Court has been definitely abandoned by the Senate Democratic leaderships.

Aside from a desire not to embarrass President Roosevelt, Senators agreed that Wednesday's showing by anti-Court forces before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee checked the drive for American adherence.

Democrats scoffed at suggestions in some quarters the Senate might be asked to sit in special session after adjournment to ratify the Court. The truth is, Senators, especially those up for re-election, want to forget about the Court at this time. Many consider it too dangerous a political issue on the eve of election campaigns.

An attempt may be made to report the court protocol out of committee and then ask the Senate to set a date for a vote next session. Such a maneuver will be vigorously opposed.

Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, in charge of Wednesday's hearings, when the country was told of the perils involved in American adherence to the league tribunal, declared today:

"From every standpoint it was a most extraordinary presentation. In the record will be found unanswerable arguments why the United States should maintain its present position."

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, said:

"The anti-court arguments were presented with remarkable force and clarity. It could not have been better."

BRISBANE HELPS TRAP SUSPECT IN GETTLE ABDUCTION CASE

SON KIDNAPED 30 YEARS AGO FOUND

Birthmark Identifies Youth Stolen From Crib

International News Service.

PETIT ROCHER, N. B., May 18.—Kidnaped from his crib in 1904 and long since given up as dead by his parents, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Arsenault was restored to them today under the name of Bill Knockton.

He had suffered cruel treatment, privation and adventure during the 30 years which had intervened since he was kidnaped.

He swept his aged mother and father into his arms when identification was firmly fixed in their minds—and in the minds of his relatives, his friends and his own.

STOLEN FROM CRIB

In the midst of all their happiness the reunited family recalled the kidnaping of 30 years ago—the abduction of the Arsenault's little son from his crib much in the same manner as the Lindbergh baby was taken from his crib a little over two years ago.

While Mrs. Arsenault pottered over her plants in the garden of their home way back in 1904, her son lay asleep in his kitchen crib. When she came into the house the crib was empty.

A hue and cry was raised. Although the authorities did their best to find the kidnaped baby, the only result was forlorn clues and grieving parents.

GYPSIES BLAMED

The child evidently was kidnaped by a band of gypsies. At least that is the belief today of the victim himself, as well as his parents.

The returning kidnap victim—now 30 years old—could not recall his boyhood days except for a few incidents.

He said he could never forget how harshly he was treated—how he escaped from a train at a station, and was never caught again by his captors.

Sailors carried off the wandering youngster in their schooner and for some years he followed the sea.

CLUE REVEALED

He returned to life on shore. He was taken into the Joncas family last summer when the Bonaventure baseball team visited this village.

One of the ball players on the team happened to learn of the kidnaping. He told Mrs. Arsenault of the man across the bay. She talked it over with her husband.

Hopes were rekindled. It was a long chance—but it might be her son.

And, sure enough, when she corresponded with the parish priest in St. Elzear he discovered that Knockton had a birthmark which resembled the birthmark on the stolen child.

Feverishly the investigation proceeded and the truth was learned.

It was their son! And today there isn't a happier family in all New Brunswick.

ROOSEVELT FOR SOCIAL LAWS

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, still at grips with the effects of one depression, is striving to erect new safeguards for the laboring classes and thereby bar much woe from future economic disturbances.

A dovetailed plan of social legislation, which he will send to Congress for study in a few days, was described by some leaders today as the broadest ever proposed by an American President.

He is expected to point an approach to such problems as unemployment insurance, old-age pensions and a permanent relief system, for the next Congress.

Four other messages will go from the White House to the Capitol before Congress quits. They will deal with silver, war debts, the question of restricting arms shipments to fighting nations, and the duty on coconut oil, which is opposed by the President.

June's Warm Welcome to Her Home

A MOTHER'S KISS FOR SIX-YEAR-OLD JUNE ROBLES UPON HER RETURN TO HER HOME

Mrs. Fernando Robles, the Tucson mother who for 19 long days and nights was never certain whether her little June were living or dead, pictured as she welcomed her home after her ordeal: 19 days in an iron box. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

THREATS MARK ROBLES HUNT

prints were found on sticky, dusty bottles of jam and grapejuice which were taken from the "horror coffin" from which June was rescued 19 days after she was "snatched" from a Tucson street while en route home from school.

STRANGER IN TOWN

Authorities obtained from a grocer, whose identity was not disclosed, a detailed description of a "surly man" who bought the cartons of fruit and other foodstuffs crammed into the desert grave for the little victim's meals. The grocer said the purchaser of the food was a stranger in Tucson.

Officers also were reported to have found in the hell hole in which June was imprisoned a half-torn letter containing a Chicago postmark, recalling that it was from Chicago on May 10 a letter was mailed to Gov. B. B. Moeur, of Arizona, enclosing a map and giving instructions that led to the discovery of June's prison.

One suspect has remained in custody here since Wednesday.

The man refused to admit any connection with the kidnaping although once last night it was learned he said he would "talk" if proper negotiations could be made. His meaning was not clarified.

SECOND SUSPECT

A second suspect held in technical custody since yesterday, but not under arrest, still was under observation.

Although all law enforcement agencies were tightly drawing a dragnet about a third suspect, believed possibly in Chicago, officers here refused to comment.

Under Sheriff Colby S. (Jake) Farrar still was attempting to track the meager footprints and automobile tire impressions at the scene of the "torture casket."

Fingerprints found on the articles in June's "coffin" were airmailed to the Bureau of Investigation in Washington in the hope that in the files may be found an identification.

June graciously posed for newspaper photographers and told the story of her second visit to the "torture coffin" site from which she was rescued.

THE ANTS CAME

She held tightly to the hand of her mother, Mrs. Fernando Robles, when she inspected the hell hole.

The little girl said, as she pointed to the desert grave:

"That's where the man shoved me and made me stay.

"There were lots of ants and bugs there. I don't see any now.

Pass Up Strangers, June Warns Children

TUCSON, Ariz., May 18.—(INS.)—"If you don't want to get kidnaped like I was, don't get into automobiles with strangers no matter what they tell you."

That was the warning to the boys and girls of America today by June Robles, 6, kidnap victim.

Continuing in her own words, little June said:

"I wouldn't get into a car again with a stranger now.

"And from now on I'm going to go straight home from school even if my mamma says I can stop and play a little while.

"I was scared and awful lonesome and cried a little sometimes when I was kidnaped."

I guess they came after the oranges and jam.

"It isn't as hot today as the day I was here."

Officers, however, noted that the temperature was 115 degrees.

Many persons were amazed that June could have passed 19 days in the "torture coffin" as she said she did and still be rescued in robust condition.

Dead-Revived Dog Continues to Gain

BERKELEY, Cal., May 18.—(AP.)—A mongrel dog, put to death clinically and revived April 13, continued to gain strength today, Dr. Roderic Krider, who is assisting Dr. Robert E. Cornish in the revivification experiments, reported.

University of California officials recently ordered the dog removed from a university laboratory on the ground Dr. Cornish had made public the results of experiments before referring them to the school's scientific staff.

SISTER ROSE TO HEAD ORDER

Sister Mary Rose, who for 11 years has been the superintendent of Mercy Hospital, today was preparing to relinquish that post to take up her duties as Mother Superior of the Order of Mercy in the Pittsburgh diocese.

She was elected to that position yesterday by a "community" of 400 sisters meeting in the mother house at Mt. Mercy Convent.

The mother house will become the headquarters of Sister Mary Rose on Monday, when she will take charge of the order's numerous activities. Under her charge will be 18 institutions, including hospitals, schools and orphanages operated by the Order of Mercy in the diocese.

Sister Mary Rose has been at Mercy Hospital for 20 years. Previous to that she had taught at St. Peter's School, North Side.

Sister Ireneaus, who has been Mother Superior since the last election three years ago, will remain at Mt. Mercy Convent.

Ultimatum Issued Striking Teachers

SCRANTON, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—Striking school teachers, picketing the only open school in Old Forge, face the alternative of returning to their classes Monday or losing their jobs.

Aroused by the third strike in a year, the Borough's School Board voted to pay the teachers one month's salary—seven are overdue—and then issued its ultimatum. The board ordered the high school opened today with 17 nonstrikers in charge.

EDITOR'S QUIZ OF KIDNAPERS BRINGS CLUE

Barrage of Questions Gets Information For Police

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—New drama, and a new aid to the law in the sensational William F. Gettle kidnaping case were disclosed today and the hero of this added chapter in the thrilling story is none other than Arthur Brisbane, the nation's most famous reporter.

To Mr. Brisbane, credit was given freely today by Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz and Capt. W. J. Bright, of the Sheriff's homicide squad, for obtaining the information that led to the arrest of Clyde Stoddard, suspected of having a hand in the kidnap plot.

On Wednesday, when Brisbane was about to interview the confessed kidnapers, Jimmy Kirk, Larry Kerrigan and Ray Williams, Sheriff Biscailuz and Capt. Bright confided to Mr. Brisbane that they wanted from the trio an answer to this question:

"Who is the owner of the Ford V-8 car found in the garage of the kidnap prison at La Crescenta?"

SHARP AS SURGEON'S KNIFE

Mr. Brisbane nodded understandingly. Mildly, he began his interrogation of Kirk, Kerrigan and Williams. His questions were brilliantly framed and as sharp as a surgeon's knife.

To answer them, the kidnapers were forced to think.

Query followed query. Mr. Brisbane's curiosity seemed inexhaustible. Expertly, persistently, he led the prisoners on, gaining their confidence, shattering their "front" of hard-boiled reticence.

He asked Kirk about his wife and child. Incisively, he probed into the workings of the man's mind.

Like an artisan erecting a building, Brisbane constructed a psychological trap. He caught the mood of the kidnaper's state of mind and played upon it, calmly but incessantly.

Kirk was mentally exhausted. The barriers were down. He was unable to offer any resistance to the barrage of questions coming so coolly, each a masterpiece of construction.

TRAP ALL SET

Suddenly, Mr. Brisbane hesitated. The trap was set. Capt. Bright was quick to take advantage of the comment. He demanded:

"Who owns that car?"

Before he knew what he was doing, Kirk blurted out Stoddard's name.

Bright and Biscailuz nodded. They were satisfied.

And the man whose pertinent questions sometimes have made those in high places squirm went placidly on with his interview. Capt. Bright declared today:

"Ever since his arrest we had been attempting to get Kirk into the frame of mind that Mr. Brisbane brought about in less than an hour of calm, steady questioning.

"If he had not chosen to become the great writer and editor that he is, Mr. Brisbane, it seems to me, would have made a marvelous criminologist."

Sheriff Biscailuz seconded the captain's remarks heartily.

NOTE AT CHURCH GETTLE CLUE

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—(AP.)—Another suspect in the kidnaping of William F. Gettle, Beverly Hills millionaire, was sought today by law enforcement agencies.

With three kidnapers in prison but a week after Gettle had been abducted from his Arcadia summer home, and three suspects in custody, authorities disclosed they were seeking a man who left a note on the steps of a Beverly Hills church.

The note was left at the church after one of the kidnapers had telephoned Ernest E. Noon, intermediary for Gettle, and told him to go there for instructions.

James F. Kirk, Larry Kerrigan and Roy Williams were taken to San Quentin yesterday to start serving life terms. They had sought $60,000 ransom but officers freed Gettle and trapped his abductors before it could be collected.

Killer Admits Guilt In Racket Murder

BOSTON, May 18.—(AP.)—James (Skeets) Coyne today pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the slaying of Charles (King) Solomon, Boston gambling racketeer, and was sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years in prison.

Solomon was shot to death in the washroom of a dingy night club in January, 1933.

JUDGE IGNORES ALIEN DIVORCE

For the third time in as many days, Judge Thomas M. Marshall today again refused to sign a petition in Mrs. Elizabeth M. Leading's attack on the Mexican divorce suit brought against her by Elmer C. Leiding.

Arthur I. Zeiger, the woman's counsel, presented the petition in which he assailed all foreign divorces.

He explained he wanted to send it to Mexico along with the libel he has filed in Mrs. Leiding's cross suit against her husband, instituted here.

Judge Marshall explained that as Pennsylvania does not recognize Mexican divorces, he could see no reason why she should become involved in international divorce complications.

Mrs. Leiding was surprised a week ago when she received notice of her husband's suit from Mexico.

It was the first she knew about, she explained, since she and her husband then were still living together.

'SISTIE' HOLDS CIRCUS PARTY

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—Little Anna Eleanor and Curtis Roosevelt Dall, "Sistie" and "Buzzie" to most of the world, were host and hostess in the rose-carpeted honor box of the circus.

With plenty of competition—Gen. Pershing, Alice Roosevelt Longworth and her daughter, Paulina, and Mary Roberts Rinehart and her grandchildren—they held the spotlight yesterday the whole show through.

Each had three school chums, of their own choosing, as guests—and an extra small boy for good measure. One of the little girls invited by Sistie had a little brother who cried in a most heart-broken manner when he got no White House bid. So they invited him, too.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, when she came walking across the center ring, made it clear that Sistie, who last year got a permanent pass, was the hostess, for she went over to her grandchild to make her farewells when she left.

Pneumonia Germs Stolen From Doctor

CHICAGO, May 18.—(INS.)—Police were hunting today for thieves who stole the automobile of Dr. F. A. Paradise containing 48 test tubes filled with a deadly virulent species of pneumonia culture.

Warning was issued that should anyone unseal one of the tubes he would be exposed to germs which might cause his death.

COLLEGE GIRLS WIN 'BATTLE OF VISAS'

French Consul Yields, But Upsets Calm Of Quai D'Orsay

MADRID, May 18.—(AP.)—The 13 American college girls who had been refused permission to enter France without certificates of good conduct won their "battle of visas" today against the French consul without filing a single cablegram.

Twelve of the girls are from Smith College and the other from Barnard College of Columbia University.

[Among the 12 Smith College girls refused visas to enter France was Miss Margaret Bulmer, of Aspinwall. She was graduated from Aspinwall High School in 1930 and then entered Smith College, where she won a scholarship to study in Spain.]

The consul yesterday had refused to grant them visas unless they cabled to America for character vouchers.

Today he capitulated. He announced:

"The visas are ready for the girls at any time."

He gave profuse explanations, but declared he reserved the right in the future to demand assurance of good character from any other person desiring to visit France.

His surrender today came after officials of the foreign students department of the University of Madrid had called on him in behalf of the American girls. The girls have just completed a short course at the university and planned to take up temporary studies in France.

Although informed by the director of the American group that the conflict was over, Curtis Jordan, United States consul, said he is still awaiting a letter of explanation from the French consul.

College Girls, Radio Waves Upset Calm of French

PARIS, May 18.—(AP.)—A group of girls from Smith College and some one who pulled the wrong switch on a radio caused a series of headaches in the French Foreign Office today.

Anguish was visible in the Quai D'Orsay and the burden of the plaints was concerned with radio waves that misbehave and French consuls who take antiquated visa rules too seriously.

Those officials whose chief job is to smooth the way of Franco-American relations bore the brunt of the grief.

They were particularly upset by the news that Manuel Neville, the French consul in Madrid, had refused to grant 12 girls from Smith College and another from Columbia University the right to enter France without the "good character" reports which an outworn rule specifies all foreigners must have before entering the country.

They dispatched a hot telegram to M. Neville telling him to use his head.

The first was the recent radio address of Louis Barthou, the foreign minister, on the occasion of the Lafayette anniversary.

The listeners in across the sea, who were supposed to hear his stately words hailing Lafayette as the forerunner of the traditional Franco-American friendship, heard instead a French vaudeville love song.

OFFICER FREED AS BURGLAR

Wilbert Taylor, 45, special policeman and mechanic for the McKeesport Police Department, today was acquitted of a burglary charge but found guilty of pointing firearms.

Taylor was accused of entering the home of John DeCecco, 2600 Liberty way, Liberty Borough, on the night of March 5. DeCecco testified that he awakened and found Taylor coming up the stairs.

DeCecco said he grabbed a shotgun and forced Taylor into the cellar, then fired two shots from a window. DeCecco said his father came running to his aid.

Then Taylor pointed a pistol at the elder DeCecco, according to the testimony, but was overpowered.

Taylor testified that he had been drinking.

Find Kidnaped Musician In Toils of Law

A squad of heavily-armed city detectives sped to Bloomfield late yesterday after receiving a report that three men had kidnaped a man and were taking him for his last "ride."

When they reached the scene they discovered that the trio were not gangsters, but constables who had come to serve a warrant on Maxie Pisegna, a musician, of 4723 Liberty avenue. They went to the Pisegna home, read the warrant and were escorting him to their automobile when excited pedestrians mistook them for gangsters.

They saw Maxie's frantic wife, Mrs. Catherine Pisegna, following her husband and the three men. Before she could explain, one of the pedestrians ran to a telephone and turned in a kidnap alarm to police. The detectives trailed the car to the office of Justice of the Peace Michael T. Gorham, where they were assured that Maxie was in the hands of the law.

Constable Gordon Cargo explained he had arrested Pisegna on information filed by Mary Burdell, of Grandview avenue, North Braddock. She said she bought an accordion for $45 from Pisegna and had a receipt marked "paid in full."

Maxie, she said, demanded more money and when she refused he took the accordion. Mrs. Pisegna, however, denied that the musical instrument had been paid for, saying that her husband had been attempting to collect the balance due for more than seven months.

General Opens Offensive On 335,000 N.Y. Dogs

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who led the Twenty-seventh Division through the war in France, laid strategy today for a new war—against dogs.

It was against the apartment-dwelling dog—and the master who promenades his dog—that the Major General, as Police Commissioner of New York City, directed his attack.

Of the dog-enemy he said:

"As the record shows, he is potentially a serious danger to other persons and he damages and destroys property by the mere natural reactions of his animal life."

The Department of Health reported that since January there has been a marked increase in the number of citizens who have been bitten by dogs.

Gen. O'Ryan issued an ultimatum: the 335,000 dogs in New York City must be muzzled and leashed, or their masters must go to court. The General asserted:

"The dog has little or no place in the average family living in a flat or apartment."

RETURN BOARD SWORN, STARTS VOTE COUNT

In swearing them in County Commissioner C. C. McGovern emphasized that their boss was John M. Henry, the county's director of the Bureau of Elections.

The Commissioner added that in the past jobs on the Return Board had been considered "a public abuse."

Commissioners expect the count to be tabulated within two weeks, but due to the large ballot in many districts, additional time is expected to be required.

The members of the board will get $7.50 a day, and 12 auditors will get $1 an hour.

The board members will sit in the County Office Building, with one or more Commissioners presiding.

Plurality of 100,000 Maintained by Reed

PHILADELPHIA, May 18—(AP.)—More complete figures received from Tuesday's primary show that Senator David A. Reed maintained his plurality of more than 100,000 over Gov. Gifford Pinchot for the Republican nomination for Senator.

He has a lead of 103,910 in 7,652 of the 7,936 districts in the state.

Attorney General William A. Schnader's plurality over Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon for the Republican nomination for Governor, is the highest received by any candidate on either the Republican or Democratic ticket. He had a margin of 331,369 in 7,558 districts.

The lead of State Senator Harry B. Scott over David E. Kaufman, of Bradford County, for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, is 115,696 in 7,026 districts.

297,984 FOR GUFFEY

M. Harvey Taylor, of Dauphin County, in 6,795 districts, is 226,776 ahead of Philip H. Dewey, who sought renomination on the Republican ticket for secretary of internal affairs.

The lead of Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader, for the Democratic senatorial nomination, last night stood at 297,984 over Roland S. Morris, in 7,178 districts.

George H. Earle, Democratic nominee for Governor, has a plurality of 226,708 over Judge Charles D. Copeland, his nearest rival, in 7,146 districts.

Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, in 6,611 districts had a lead of 182,631 over Henry L. Snyder, of Emaus, for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

LOGUE WAY AHEAD

Thomas A. Logue, Philadelphia, ran 155,829 votes ahead of Norbert J. Fitzgerald, of Erie, for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of Internal Affairs, in 6,290 districts.

State Representative Chester H. Rhodes, of Stroudsburg, had a plurality in 5,886 districts of 183,207 over Superior Court Judge Frank M. Trexler, who was renominated on the Republican ticket and sought to win the Democratic nomination.

With scattering districts missing for both parties the highest Republican total vote cast was 1,103,387 for Governor, and the highest total in the Democratic balloting was 496,812 for Democratic Senator.

PILGRIMS AWAIT TOWN MIRACLE

International News Service.

BEAURAIN, Belgium, May 18.—Thousands of pilgrims, believers in miracles, arrived in this little town from all parts of Europe today on an annual visit to see an apparition of the Virgin Mary.

The phenomenon was expected to occur at 5:30 p. m. Past failures of the apparition to appear failed to daunt the hopes of the travelers that this would be their fortunate day.

Last year 75,000 persons came here for the day.

Fifteen thousand pilgrims had arrived in Beaurain by noon today, 3,000 of them having come by train from Brussels early this morning and at least 5,000 having arrived during the night.

One man who declared he had prayed last year to win the Belgian lottery and won 5,000,000 francs, donated 1,000,000 to the church.

Big McNair Vote In Fall Shrinks To Mere 17,000

Here is the ward by ward story of the meager votes the city gave Mayor McNair as a gubernatorial candidate compared with the landslide by which he was placed in the chief executive's chair.

The Mayor polled 17,813 votes Tuesday. In the general election last fall he received 102,867.

But the fall election had been preceded by a vigorous campaign on the part of McNair himself, who was supported by the full strength of the Democratic organization. Mayor McNair had prepared for this week's election with only a few resultory speeches. He was running against the organization, and had announced the payroll was free to vote as it chose.

The following is not a fair comparison, but as it shows how McNair ran in the primary against general election results. In the fall primary, he polled 23,365.

"The state liquor laws and all other laws of the city, state and nation are to be rigidly enforced by the police department."

Marshall added emphasis to this by saying:

"The police department will be more active than ever before in enforcing the laws of the nation, state and city."

Then Moritz explained that his remarks last night had been misinterpreted. What he says he meant was:

"We do not intend that the police department shall enforce these liquor laws in cases where the action is begun by constables. Why use our police to-do the work of constables who want to make raids?"

The Mayor's aide said he and the Mayor hold that liquor raids on private homes are illegal if they ade made without a search warrant, which he contended was the fact in the case dismissed by the Mayor.

W. H. Beachy, head of the state revenue enforcement division here, spoke up:

"Moritz was at a conference between the magistrates and enforcement agents with District Attorney Andrew T. Park when Mr. Park explained the validity of the control law."

To this, Moritz shot back:

"I don't care what Park said. He's wrong."

After the hearing was over, Moritz and Alderman Schneider engaged in heated argument, Moritz accusing the alderman of "not knowing your business" while Schneider retorted that Moritz "had plenty to learn, too."

The two held for court were Mrs. Anna Verdkl, of 1423 Reedsdale street, and James Gaeuwiski, of 45 Independence street.

MANY TO SHARE $26,000 ESTATE

Mrs. Elizabeth Beilstein, of 517 McClintock avenue, member of an old North Side family, distributed her $26,000 estate among more than a dozen relatives and several church organizations by her will filed today.

Harry Fisher receives proceeds of sale of property at 850 Lockhart street; Anna E. Weinz, $3,000; Barbara Bauer, $2,000; Walter F. Weinz, Mrs. Katie Schoener, Emma Mohr, Bessie Green, Albert O'Hanlon, John Kossman and the Dorseyville Home $1,000 each. The Evangelical Church, East Ohio street, and the Frauenverein of the church are given $500 each. The two organizations, along with relatives are to receive any residue.

Phila. Council Vote Happy G. O. P. Augury

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—Election of a comparatively obscure candidate to the Philadelphia City Council, rather than the renomination of Senator David A. Reed, is viewed by Representative George P. Darrow, of Philadelphia, as the true indicator of the political trend in Pennsylvania.

The Republican leader of the state's congressional delegation asserts the election of Samuel Emlen, Republican, to fill the unexpired councilmanic term of the late William W. Roper, former Princeton football coach, points to Republican victory in the Keystone State next November.

In substantiation of his view, Darrow points out that in the municipal elections last fall, the Democrats carried Roper's district with a majority of more than 25,000, and that this time Emlen was elected with a majority of slightly more than 6,000. He said:

"Bear in mind this was no primary contest. This was a general election in which the voters were not required to announce their affiliation—they could vote as they liked—and most of them voted Republican."

Five of the state's Congressmen apparently captured both Republican and Democratic nominations. They are Representatives Boland, Berlin, Dunn, Ellenbogen and Richardson, all Democrats.

M'NAIR 'HIRED' BY M'CLOSKEY

Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, suspects that Philadelphia is counting him out of the Democratic nomination for Secretary of Internal Affairs, so he has retained Mayor McNair as attorney to guard his eastern interests.

The two "Macs" went into conference yesterday and emerged with an agreement that McNair is to go to Philadelphia Tuesday to find out what is holding up the McCloskey vote. Mayor McNair said:

"If necessary I'll file a petition for an election contest for McCloskey."

He explained that he must be in New York Tuesday to sign some Pittsburgh bonds with Controller James P. Kerr, and that he would stop off and help McCloskey on the way. The Johnstown Mayor was elated over the showing he made in Allegheny County.

ROW IN M'CALL OUSTER DENIED

Denial that political reasons had anything to do with the resignation of Magistrate Charles J. McCall has been made by Mayor McNair.

Reports at City Hall that McCall had been told to resign because he failed to support the Mayor and Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary in the campaign have been vigorously denied by the Mayor.

He stated that McCall's poor health had prevented him from properly performing the magistrate's duties. He declared he will make an effort to provide another city job.

McCall was at one time Democratic chairman of the Third Ward.

Magistrate Charles F. Papale has also been reported in disfavor recently at the Mayor's office, although the Mayor has given no official indication of his displeasure.

Removed Shoes In Court—Gets 52 Years

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP.)—A capricious prisoner who doffed his shoes in Federal Court today, had set up a new Chicago high in prison terms for mail robbers.

Anthony Skimkus is the defendant who collected a 52-year term at Leavenworth and a scathing castigation from Judge Patrick T. Stone—whom he invited, during the trial, to go fishing.

Skimkus went coatless in court yesterday, and he slipped his shoes off just for comfort. Judge Stone called him a "menace to society."

7,397 VOTE TIE RE-COUNTED

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—The official count was started today to decide the nip-and-tuck fight between State Senator Chauncey W. Parkinson, incumbent, and D. Glenn Moore, Washington newspaperman, for a seat in the State Senate.

Moore, a former State Representative, said today, "It may go either way," in commenting on their contest, which first appeared to be a tie with 7,397 votes polled by both candidates.

A recheck of the Third District in Fallowfield Township, however, disclosed what election officials termed an "error" in the first count. They said Parkinson received 25 votes in this precinct to 18 for Moore. This difference would decide the elecion in favor of Parkinson.

Moore said today there had been "some funny stuff" in the vote tabulation in the disputed precinct.

Spy Suspect Guilty In Officer's Death

VASA, Finland, May 18.—(AP.)—Jenny Anttila, a young servant girl, today was found guilty by the Court of Appeal of poisoning Lieut. Col. Walter Asplund, of the Finnish army. She was sentenced to 15 years in prison for the slaying.

Asplund was director of the munition plant, and the state contended that Jenny was the tool of an espionage ring.

PASSION PLAY OPENS WITH NAZI BOOST

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, May 18.—(AP.)—A suggestion of Nazi-ism appears in the foreward of the guide to this year's series of Oberammergau's world-famed Passion Plays.

Special guests—numbering some 5,000—who watched a dress rehearsal yesterday made note of this passage:

"Since the last Passion Play, Germany has struck out into new paths and has undergone a striking spiritual revival.

"The new age—welcomed by the Passion Play village—has detracted not one whit from the sacred dignity of the play."

The play itself bore no evidence of Nazi influence. The familiar Nazi flags were not in evidence, although this tradition-steeped village strongly supports Hitler.

The play does not deviate from the general outline of previous presentations.

This year's performances commemorate the three-hundredth anniversary of the beginning of the plays which the forefathers of the villagers vowed would be reenacted every 10 years.

Observers commented that Alois Lang—in the role of the Christ for the second time—displayed greater confidence and skill.

The presentation yesterday required eight hours.

ROYAL TRIANGLE COUNTESS DIES

International News Service.

LONDON, May 18.—The final, tragic stage of a colorful romance in which King Zog, of Albania, and Kemal Messare, a former marshal of the Albanian court contested for the hand of the beautiful, Lettish-born Countess Dorothea Ropp was enacted on the coast of Phaleron Bay, near Athens, today.

According to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens, the Countess was found dead there under circumstances indicating she had committed suicide.

King Zog fell in love with the Countess shortly after assuming his throne, but she preferred Messare.

Because of this, King Zog promulgated a law forbidding the marriage of Albanian diplomats to foreigners. In addition he transferred his rival in love to the Athens legation.

The Countess, however, followed the dictates of her heart and followed Messare to the Grecian city, where, even though she was compelled to work as a stenographer, she apparently found happiness.

Only conjecture today surrounded the reasons for her death, which it was believed she may have disclosed in a letter which she left for Messare.

CLARA PHILLIPS' TERM CUT

TEHACHAPI, Cal., May 18.—(AP.)—Release of Clara Phillips, so-called "hammer murderess," from the State Prison for Women here on June 17, 1935, was made possible today by action of the State Parole Board in allowing her six years parole and six months credit for "industry" in a prison department.

Convicted of slaying Alberta Meadows with a hammer in Los Angeles, Mrs. Phillips was sentenced to 10 years to life in San Quentin Prison.

Sensational as was the slaying, the motive for which was Mrs. Phillips' jealousy of Miss Meadows' attentions to her husband, Armour Phillips; it was matched by her escape from the county jail, her flight through Mexico into Honduras, and her capture and return.

The State Board of Prison Terms and Paroles then fixed Mrs. Phillips' sentence at 30 years. She entered the prison June 2, 1923.

Find Hatchet Used In Killing of Six

BREMERTON, May 18.—(AP.)—A blood-stained hatchet, authorities said, has been found under a lawn mower grass-catcher in the garage of the Frank Flieder home, where six persons were slain seven weeks ago. The slayer or slayers have not been found.

Those killed, besides the Flieders, were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Chenevert, Fred Bolcom and Magnus Jordan.

Peasant Mob Perils Murderer of Sisters

WARSAW, May 18.—(INS.)—Hundreds of infuriated peasants today besieged the Sheriff's office at Kudynovce, threatening to lynch Michael Baryn, 23, who murdered his small sisters, Janina, 8, and Stefanja, 7, in a nearby forest.

The murders were committed, it was charged, because Baryn was not satisfied with his share of the estate of his deceased parents.

Sister, Niece Share In $21,500 Estate

The will of Mrs. Amanda Minch, of Brackenridge, filed for probate today, divides her $21,500 estate among six persons. Her sister, Emma Shirley, receives one half; her niece, Violet Finch, one fourth, and four children of her brother, Samuel Hall, the remaining fourth.

Paul G. McClelland is named executor.

Jewish Juniors Urged To Succor 'Scapegoats'

Campaign for Relief Of Sufferers in Germany Opens

A drive to obtain funds for distressed Jews in Germany was under way today following a meeting of the Junior Division of the Amreican Jewish Joint Distrbution Committee in the Concordia Club, Oakland, last night.

Addressing the group, Rabbi Ralph A. Habas, of New York, said the youth of Germany, as scapegoats, must be assisted by the young people of America, Jewish and otherwise. He declared:

"By affirming their faith in the possibility of rich moral achievement, they can rise above their handicaps in the face of a hostile environment."

He asserted that money subscribed in the campaign will be used for direct relief among Jews in Germany, for loans to the impoverished, and for education.

The drive of the junior division of the committee will continue until June 3, when the United Jewish Appeal campaign, with Leo Lehman as chairman, will begin.

WRIT OBTAINED TO SAVE DAVIS

In an effort to forestall extradition to Illinois, counsel for Tom Davis, Jr. today obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Thomas M. Marshall and served the writ on Warden John McNeil, of the County Jail.

Since his acquittal two weeks ago in the slaying of State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger, young Davis has been held in jail facing charges in Illinois where he is alleged to have shot a deputy sheriff, robbed a filling station and stolen four automobiles.

Illinois authorities, headed by Sheriff J. D. Erlinger, of Clinton County, plan to appeal to Gov. Pinchot.

Meanwhile, R. B. Ivory, Jr. attorney for Davis, procured the writ to prevent the removal of the youth should the Governor grant extradition papers.

Hearing on the writ was set for next Friday morning.

DEATH BALLOON HELD FAULTY

MOSCOW, May 18.—(AP.)—An investigating commission of the German government today probed the circumstantial evidence recording the deaths of its two substratosphere balloonists, Dr. Hermann Victor Masuch and Martin Schrenk.

The two were the crew of the Bartsch Von Segsfeld, Germany's biggest balloon, which smashed down Sunday after a take-off from Bitterfeld, Germany.

The commission decided the two men probably were suffocated by lack of oxygen two hours after they set out for a flight above the clouds, and that their suffocation was due to a defect in the respiratory apparatus. The balloon's instruments showed the men had reached a height of about six miles.

Old Auto Tag Fails To Save Motorist From New Ones

For two weeks a downtown motorist cared little whether he parked in front of a fire plug or broke other traffic regulations. He had a tag on his car and he didn't think any officer would look at the date.

Patrolman George Woods "beat" him at his own game, however, on two occasions.

Woods saw the car with the tag parked in Ross street, found it two weeks old and "retagged" him. Two hours later, in Fifth avenue, the same auto was parked illegally.

The result was another brand new tag.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(INS.)—Robert M. Hefferman, of Great Neck, Long Island, a broker in New York City, was found with his throat cut in a room at the Arlington Hotel today.

Police said he inflicted the injury with a razor and would only say "that somebody was hounding him."

NAZIS REVERE 'NORDIC' LINDY

International News Service.

BERLIN, May 18.—The names of Charles A. Lindbergh, Robert Fulton and Christopher Columbus today graced two plaques placed in Hansa House in Bremen, commemorating Nordic heroes whom Nazi Germany wishes to be revered in the new campaign worshipping all things "Germanic" in origin.

The Nazi leaders called the second annual diet at Bremen to order yesterday, continuing the campaign to direct Germany's worship of the heroes of the past, stressing special characteristics of Nordic peoples.

The American flier and steamboat inventor and the Italian discoverer of America were honored as arch examples of Nordics winning fame in the field of exploration. Others honored similarly included Capt. James C. Fitzmaurice, Baron Hunefeld, Sir John Alcock and Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, all ocean fliers.

HUNT VANISHED SOCIETY GIRL

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Police in every section of the country were enlisted today in a search for Eleanor Larue Vansant, 27-year-old Philadelphia society girl, who has been mysteriously missing six weeks.

An accomplished musician and a member of one of Philadelphia's leading families, Miss Vansant disappeared April 5 after she checked out of a hotel in Atlantic City, where she had been staying with her mother, Mrs. Eugene Larue Vansant, of Wynnewood, exslusive Philadelphia suburb.

Immediately after her disappearance the dark-haired girl, who had been studying music at the University of Pennsylvania, became the object of an intensive, secret search conducted by private investigators.

This search having failed to disclose her whereabouts, the girl's family today had asked police of numerous cities to join in looking for her.

TEACHERS' OATH OF ALLEGIANCE HEARING SET

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The House Education Committee has ordered public hearings next Thursday on the Kenney resolution, requiring all school teachers to take an oath of allegiance to the Constitution.

The startling attack of 800 New York teachers on a state bill prescribing such an oath prompted Representative Edward A. Kenney, of New Jersey, to introduce the pending resolution, which would be nationwide in effect.

Kenney said he will ask prominent New York educators to testify. He added:

"From reports I have received, invasion of our schools by communistic and other un-American elements is not limited to the New York area, but is widespread. Also, there has been a wave of slander against our government, not only from outsiders, but from persons in the government service."

Lehman Veto of Teachers' 'Oath' Bill Assailed

ALBANY, N. Y., May 18.—(Universal.)—Gov. Lehman has reiterated his conviction that the Ives bill, requiring teachers, instructors and professors in public and private schools and colleges to take an oath of loyalty to the nation and state is unnecessary and, in part, redundant.

The Governor vetoed the measure Wednesday. He said it is similar to the oath of allegiance required of civil employes, which includes teachers, instructors and professors in public schools when they enter the service. As concern teachers and others in private and parochial schools and in private colleges and universities, the Governor said:

"There would seem to be no reason to require the taking of an oath of affirmation jn such cases. The position of a public school teacher paid from the public treasury and a teacher in a private or parochial school, a college or university, is certainly not the same."

To these contentions, Assemblyman Ives retorted:

"The Governor is wrong. The bill is not superfluous or unnecessary. The terrific opposition and the nature of that opposition proves that it was essential—it constitutes the best argument against the charge that it was unnecessary.

"There was no sound reason for that veto. I can't understand it. The Governor is going to have some explaining to do before election arrives.

"Objections have been made that an oath of allegiance would have no meaning to certain professors from abroad in our universities. First of all I want to point out that the bill in no way provides for an oath of allegiance as such.

"Its purpose, rather, is to evoke a pledge of support for our Constitution. It does not call on foreign professors to defend this country. That is neither expressed nor implied. It seems to me that if any foreign professor has any mental reservations against supporting this country in its general theory of government, that fact would constitute sound reason for refusing to employ him.

100 College Presidents Urge Anti-War Laws

OBERLIN, O., May 18.—(AP.)—Asserting another war "would be a terrible disaster for the United States," 100 college presidents of the United States yesterday sent a letter to President Roosevelt urging immediate passage of anti-war legislation.

A. D. Henderson, of Antioch; Otto Mees, of Capital, and Edmund S. Soper, of Ohio Wesleyan, signed the petition with the stipulation that they did not approve the first of eight points outlined.

This point calls for enactment of legislation for a "complete embargo on trade between this country and any belligerent nation in the event of hostilities in any part of the world." Ten college presidents from other states also exempted that point in their approval.

Mees also stipulated his approval did not include the third point, calling for the government to take over all industry in event the United States becomes involved in war.

Youth, 19, Indicted On Murder Charge

Charged with striking a blow which caused the death of an aged night watchman, Reynard Mallie, 19, today stands indicted for murder by the county grand jury. It is charged that during an argument he struck John G. Riefenach, 69, 1242 Lincoln avenue, watchman at the Stoeklein bakery, Apple avenue, East End, the night of February 24, fracturing the aged man's jaw.

Complications set in, causing Reifenach's death a month later.

Dime Death Battle Prisoner Indicted

Thomas Reece, Negro, of "Shantytown," in Liberty avenue, was indicted yesterday for the murder of another "Shantytown" resident, Norton Heard, 37, also a Negro.

It is alleged the men fought over a dime one owed to the other and that Reece hit his opponent with a brick, fracturing his skull, on April 14. Heard died a few days later.

Fall From Building Fatal to Painter

Suffering a skull fracture when he fell from the roof of a building at 6311 Darlington road, which he was painting yesterday afternoon, Emil Grose, 30, of 337 Meredith street, Carrick, died an hour later in West Penn Hospital, according to the Coroner's report.

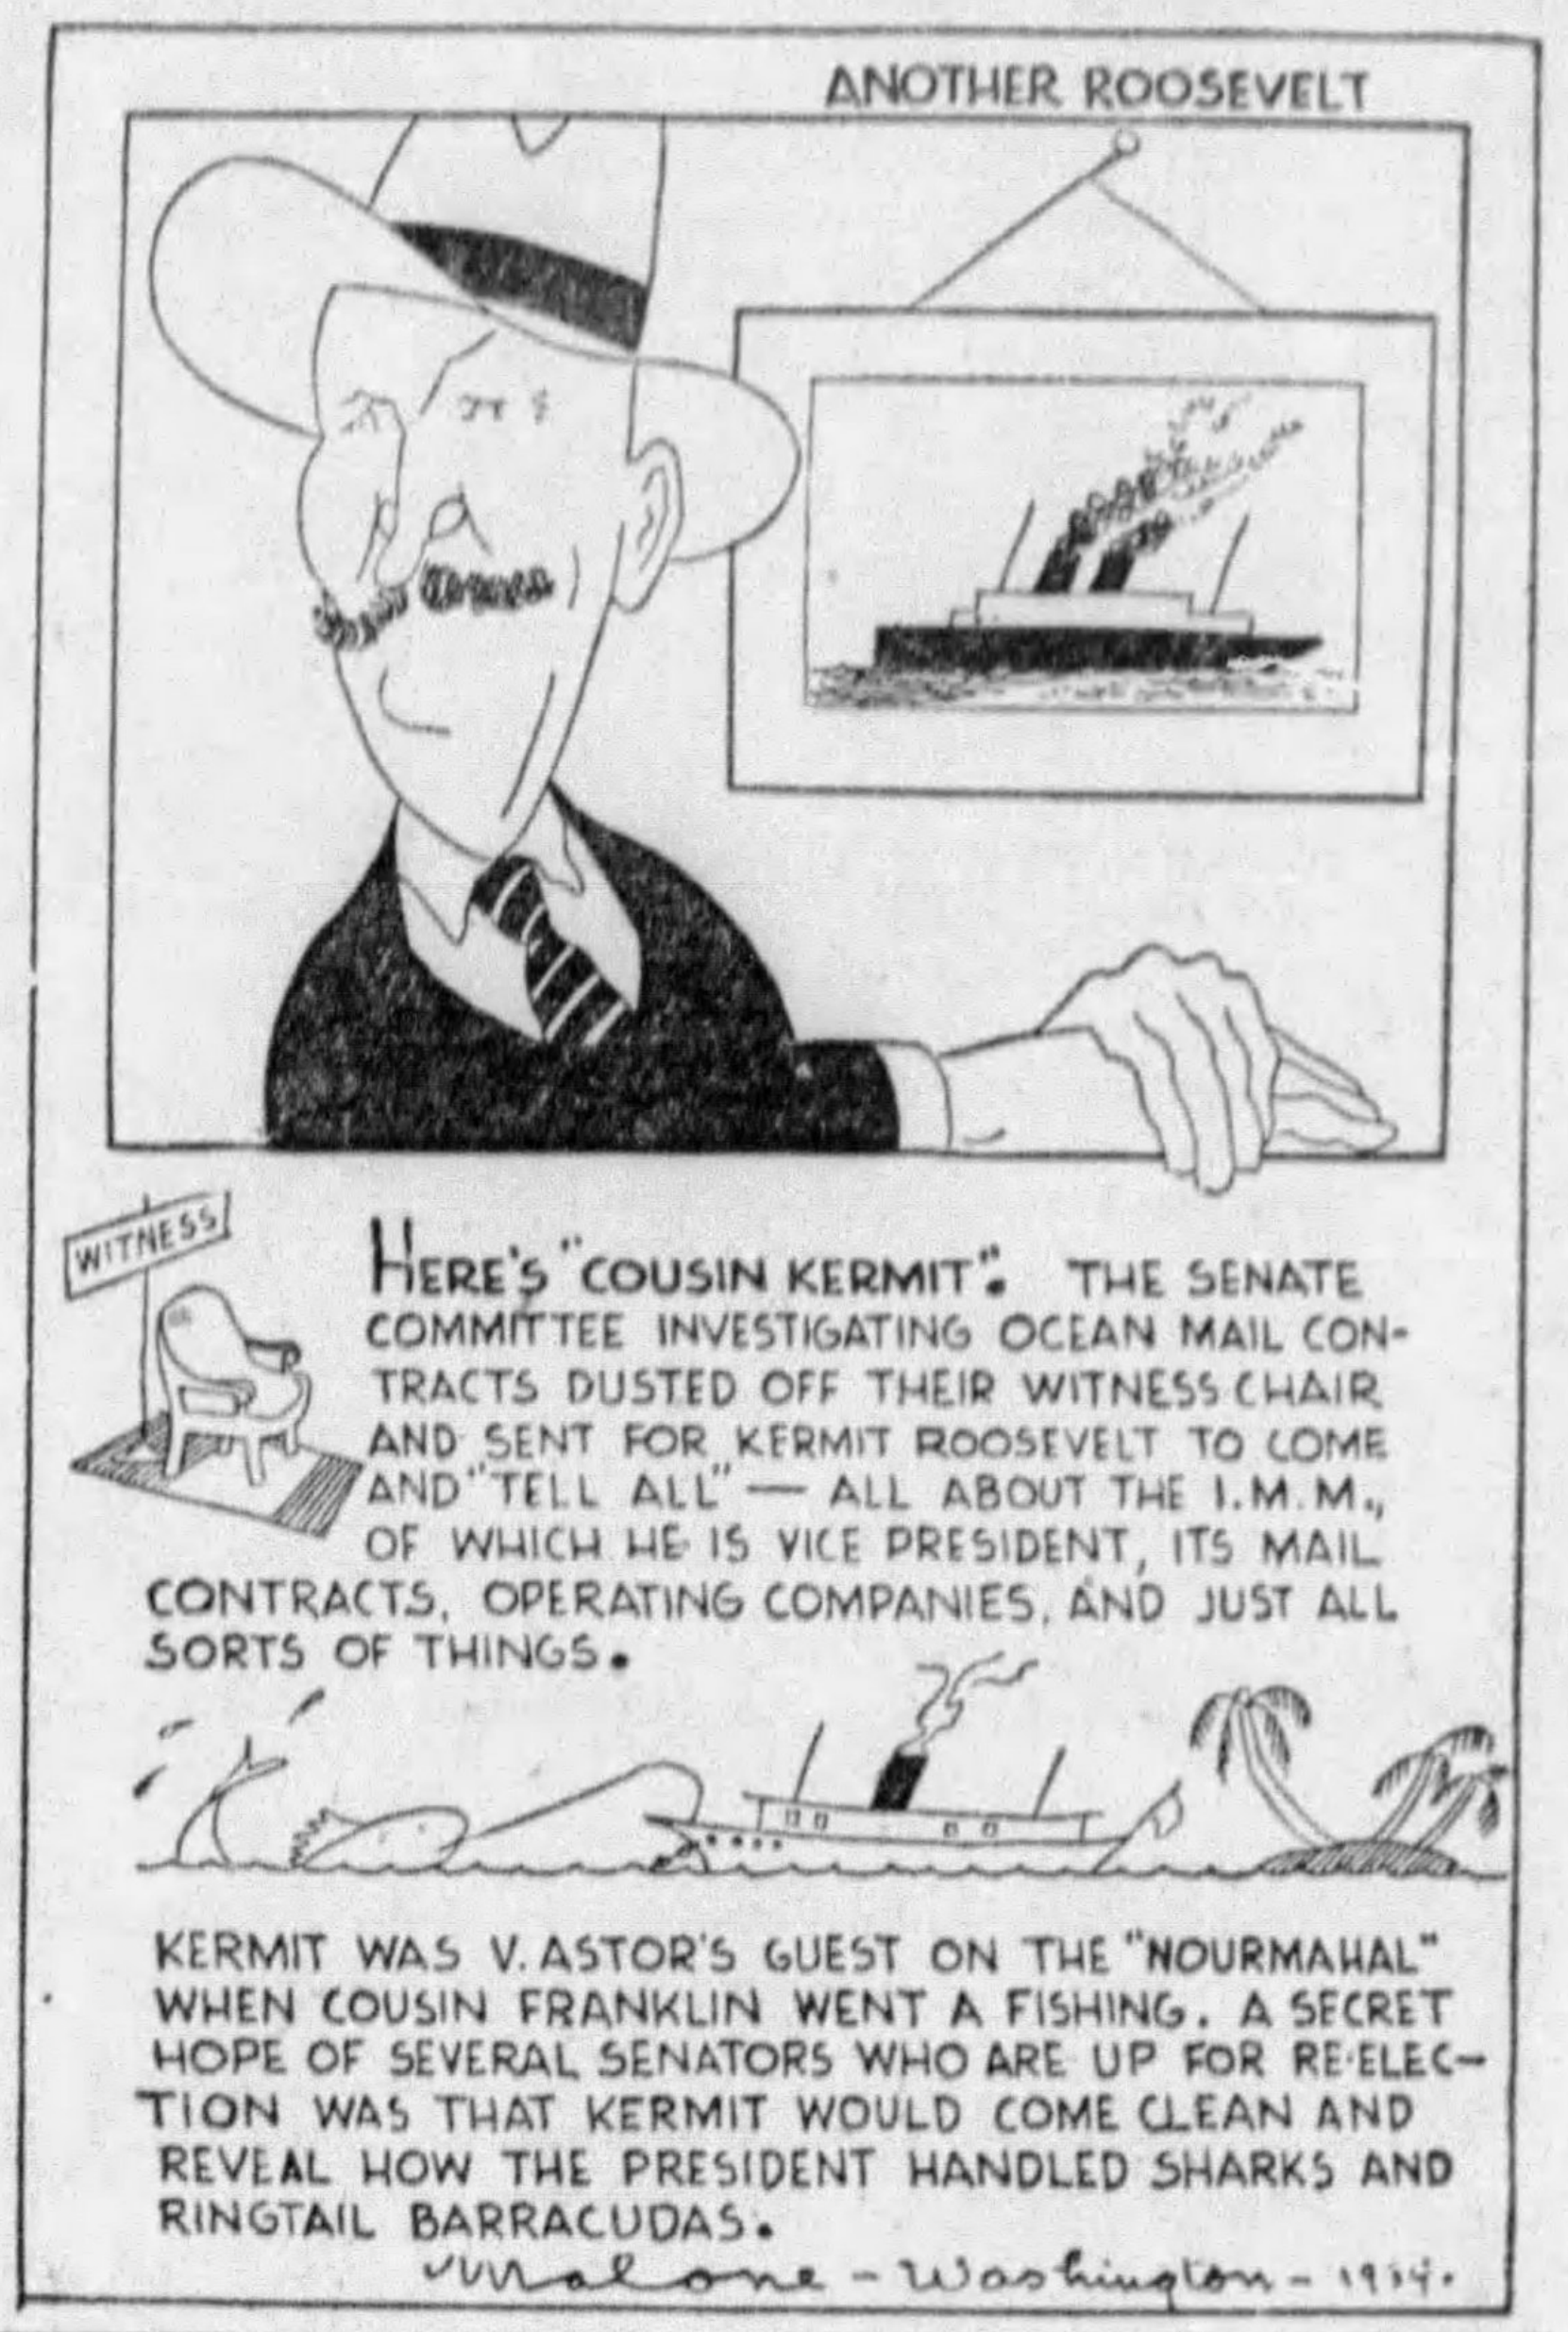
Congress Harpooners Sharpen Spears For Morgenthau

Silver, Patronage Bring Grief On Treasury Head



ANOTHER ROOSEVELT
WITNESS
HERE'S "COUSIN KERMIT". THE SENATE COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING OCEAN MAIL CONTRACTS DUSTED OFF THEIR WITNESS CHAIR AND SENT FOR KERMIT ROOSEVELT TO COME AND "TELL ALL" — ALL ABOUT THE I.M.M., OF WHICH HE IS VICE PRESIDENT, ITS MAIL CONTRACTS, OPERATING COMPANIES, AND JUST ALL SORTS OF THINGS.
KERMIT WAS V. ASTOR'S GUEST ON THE "NOURMAHAL" WHEN COUSIN FRANKLIN WENT A FISHING. A SECRET HOPE OF SEVERAL SENATORS WHO ARE UP FOR RE-ELECTION WAS THAT KERMIT WOULD COME CLEAN AND REVEAL HOW THE PRESIDENT HANDLED SHARKS AND RINGTAIL BARRACUDAS.
Malone - Washington - 1934.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The best harpooners in the Congress are quietly getting their weapons out now for Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

They seem to be as eager for his hide as they were for Prof. Tugwell's a month ago, although they are going about their job more quietly this time. The suspicious part of it is that they are advancing on him from the cloakrooms in no fewer than four distinct directions at the same time. That may be only a coincidence, but it is a significant one.

At least no cabinet officer recently had had as many coincidental troubles shot at him at once as now whiz about the head of Mr. Roosevelt's No. 1 man.

GAME

The most vociferous gang against Morgenthau is the silver gang, although it is not the most important. They have made little effort to conceal their feelings about the way the secretary handled the silver bill. However, when they get what they are going to get on silver they may quiet down.

Not so with the Democratic Senators howling about patronage. A leader in that crowd is Senator McKellar. His associates are charging the secretary with appointing Republicans. Just at the present time that charge is as serious in the congressional inner circle as if Morgenthau had appointed lepers.

Floor Leader Robinson tried to straighten the matter out a few days ago by having Morgenthau in for a private pow-wow with Democratic Senators. The meeting could hardly be called a success.

CIVIL SERVICE

Morgenthau explained to the Senators how he made appointments to the liquor unit. He had to have a lot of men in a hurry and believed the law required him to make the appointments under civil sevice. So he called for the civil service rolls of the old prohibition unit and took the men with the highest grades. There was no time to hold new examinations. One of the foremost Democratic leaders stalked out of that conference and said:

"If the law requires Mr. Morgenthau to make appointments that way we will amend the law."

The Senators are generally mum about what happened in the conference. When Morgenthau found they had said nothing, he declined to tak also. That is why so little got out about it.

THIRD DIRECTION

These two movements might not be serious, except that simultaneously a Congressional lobbying campaign against Morganthau was undertaken by a disgruntled Treasury official.

This official found out that Morgenthau wanted to get rid of him a few weeks ago. He has a good many friends in both houses of Congress, and to those he hastened. He told them that Morgenthau had put secret service agents on his trail and a lot of such stuff.

It made merry cloakroom talk and stirred up the animals more. At present the matter has not developed byond that stage, but it may be aired soon.

INTEREST RATES

To round out the game, Senator Couzens is getting ready to open up against the Treasury on the ground that it has been paying too much in interest rates.

That is what is behind the resolution Couzens introduced not long ago, calling on the Treasury for a record of all rates on government securities

Probably no one will ever be able to settle that argument. The Treasury can point out that rates have been gradually reduced since the new administration took hold. It will say that it consults government bond market experts and fixes the interest rate on its own best judgment as to what the market will bear.

But of course, the real reason Mr. Morgenthau has been able to reduce interest rates is that Mr. Roosevelt promised a balanced budget in 1936, and the additional fact that Mr. Roosevelt is avoiding greenbacks.

All of which seems to be just about enough trouble for one man to handle. No one will be happier than Mr. Morgenthau when and if Congress adjourns for the summer.

MARKET

If you can get a Wall Streeter to bare his soul, he will tell you the new stock regulation bill is not so bad, at least not as bad as they painted it. They can work under it.

What clipped them off their feet was Mr. Roosevelt coming out for the House bill. That was a trick they had not expected.

All through the Congressional fight, the President kept very quiet. The opposition was lulled into a sense of security by the fact that House leaders were saying they did not hope to get both their margins and federal trade commission provisions through. They virtually announced during the debate that they would accept the Senate independent commission idea and insist only on their margin provisions.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement pulled both liberal chestnuts out of the fire. It was the only way that result could have been accomplished.

3-CENT PIECES COINED TWICE

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—If Senator Vandenberg succeeds in convincing this country that what it needs is a good 3-cent piece, it will be a case of "the third time's the charm."

The other 3-centers have given up the ghost after about a quarter century of circulation.

One was a silver 3-cent piece, which looked too much like a thin dime to please the public; the other was a coin made of nickel.

The silver 3-center was authorized in 1851, and departed this life in 1873, after 42,736,240 of them had been minted. Now they're mostly melted, though here and there one crops up, still good legal tender for a postage stamp, or three sticks of gum.

The 3-cent in nickel arrived in time to overlap its little silver sister a bit, March 3, 1865. It ceased to be coined in 1890.

Senator Vandenberg's contention that some coin is needed between the penny and the nickel has stirred interest at the mint.

QUITS BOY PALS FOR REAL HOME

Bill, a 6-year-old resident at the Volunteers of America Nursery, rose at the head of a long banquet table in the nursery dining room at 500 North avenue last night and solemnly told his "pals:"

"I wish you all a Merry Christmas when it comes and a Happy New Year. Gosh, I hate to leave you kids, but I'll be glad to be back with dad and my sis and brothers."

The occasion? Bill, who was placed in the nursery when his mother died, is going home to dad, who has just found a job in Detroit. Nursery officials gave him a regular "farewell" dinner.

ATE LESS—LOST 20 LBS.—FEELS BETTER — PRAISES SYL-VETTE

Says Morgantown man, "I feel more like working since taking SYL-VETTE. I do not feel so sluggish and my legs do not tire out as they did when I was overweight. I lost 20 pounds in 2 months' time by taking SYL-VETTE for breakfast and for lunch. I did not eat pork or fatty meats and very little starchy food for my dinner in the evening while I was reducing. This was not hard to do as SYL-VETTE certainly kept me from feeling hungry and I found it was so very nourishing and a wonderful food substitute for people who are overweight."
Mr. Geo. A. Hunter,
124 Fayette St., Morgantown, W. Va.

NO DRUGS — NO THYROIDS — NO SALTS — SYL-VETTE IS A FOOD

SYL-VETTE is a drugless, safe system of weight control, a condensed hunger-satisfying food substitute of which one teaspoonful equals a breakfast or a lunch.
SYL-VETTE not only satisfies hunger, but supplies nourishment and strength - also prevents sagging muscles, wrinkles, and that distressed, haggard look so common with other reducing treatments. That's because SYL-VETTE is rich in non-fattening proteins and carbohydrates.

HERE'S PROOF - 19 out of every 20 users lose 3 pounds or more the first week - 10 to 15 pounds a month - which is pronounced safe by doctors. Economical, too; - 30 slenderizing meals $1.00.

SPIRIT SPEAKER SPOTS SKEPTIC AT MEETING

The Bible testifies to the possibility of communicating with "the so-called dead," the Rev. George B. Cutter, of Boston, told the Pennsylvania Spiritualist Association at the closing session of its convention here.

Asserting there is no death, that individual identity is retained on another plane beyond the grave, Mr. Cutter cited to a crowd at the meeting last night in the William Penn Hotel Biblical passages that he said substantiates the claim that there may be communication with those no longer living in the flesh.

The noted Spiritualist lecturer and medium climaxed the meeting with a demonstration of the mediumistic powers claimed for Spiritualism.

SKEPTIC 'SPOTTED'

Announcing there was a skeptic in the audience who had come to the meeting by persuasion from another, Mr. Cutter located a man by calling the name of his companion, drew forth admissions, told him names of acquaintances and told him of his business affairs.

Men and women were addressed by name; one woman was told and admitted, she had a corn on her left foot that troubled her, a fact which the medium said he learned from the woman's brother "in spirit" and which was imparted in an effort to cheer her.

SCORES OF NAMES

Scores of names, dates and happenings were given, Mr. Cutter explaining their source as "the spirit world." He said existence of the spirit was in conformity with natural law, and that it was neither supernatural nor miraculous.

Both the Old and New Testaments were drawn upon to provide examples of similar communication. Mr. Cutter said that if Spiritualism were removed from the Bible, little would remain worth reading.

The state convention ended with all officers re-elected. Mrs. C. V. Morrow, of Pittsburgh, is president of the state association. Mr. Cutter will remain in Pittsburgh until Monday to preach Sunday afternoon and evening in the First Spiritualist Church, Forbes street.

MISS MONICA HORAK — MISS HELEN HACKETT

Student nurses at Children's Hospital preparing miniature displays for store windows to further the case of Children's Hospital's flower day Saturday. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Miss Laura B. Wilson, Children's Hospital superintendent, has been in charge of the displays.

TWO MEN HELD IN CAFE BRAWL

Two men who tore up their "checks" after eating in a restaurant at 413 Fourth avenue and attempted to walk out without paying, police said, faced hearing in Central Police Court today on disorderly conduct charges.

The two were Edward G. Hayes, 31, of 4151 Lytle street, and Frank Devlin, 21, of 5747 Kentucky avenue, police said.

Michael Kane, 59-year-old cashier, and Harry Robb, night manager, grappled with Hayes, police said, and held him until their arrival. Devlin was captured after a three-block chase.

A window and chair in the restaurant were broken.

Horses Blamed For Marital Rift

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—(AP.)—"The horses" are named correspondents by Mrs. Irma E. Purring, 26, in her suit for divorce.

She charged that her husband was so engrossed in "playing the ponies" that he forgot food and clothing for his family, and finally disappeared.

NURSES PLAN NOVEL EXHIBIT

Children's Hospital nurses have arranged many miniature tableaux for which they have dressed dolls to represent children patients and nurses of the hospital.

Placed in store windows, the displays attract attention to posters telling about the annual Children's Hospital Flower Day. More than 4,000 women will sell the flowers throughout the Pittsburgh district Saturday to raise needed funds.

On bedside tables, tiny medicine bottles and tiny glasses stand. Doll-nurses wear uniforms that are close copies of real ones.

EAST END FIRE TIES TRAFFIC

Two firemen were injured early today while fighting a two-alarm blaze which started at 302 North Craig street.

Traffic at Craig street and Center avenue was tied up for an hour while firemen, handicapped by huge clouds of smoke, brought the flames under control.

The fire was believed to have been started by a lighted cigaret tossed by a group of boys rummaging in a rubbish pile in a shed. After slightly damaging the Expert Shoe Repairing Shop and the Three-Hour Laundry, adjoining, the flames reached a frame apartment above the shoe shop and forced occupants of one side into the street.

Robert Motts, a sub-hoseman, and George A. Beck, fireman, of No. 14 Engine Company, were treated for slight lacerations.

Battalion Chief William Davis estimated the damage at $500. He said occupants of the one apartment were Mrs. Verne Miller, her aged mother and a daughter, Theresa, 15.

Kane Nurse Injured By Hit-Run Auto

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18.—(AP.)—A hit and run driver injured three nurses at a street intersection here last night.

One of the victims, Miss Ruby Train, 21, of Silver Creek, was critically injured. The others were Miss Margaret Miller, 21, of Medina, and Miss Elsie Nelson, 22, of Kane, Pa.

ICKES' CHARGE OF PLOT AIRED

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—Testimony intended to support Secretary Ickes' charges that a Chicago attorney sought to force him to use his influence to obtain a political appointment for the latter were taken here yesterday.

Ickes has accused the Chicago attorney, L. J. M. Malmin, and another from the same city, C. W. Larsen, of unethical and unprofessional conduct, and seeks to have them disbarred. Frederick Z. Marx, an attorney, took sworn depositions.

Included in the testimony was a story of how Louis R. Glavis, chief of the investigating division of the Interior Department, and Theodore Mack, the Secretary's private stenographer, overheard a conversation between the cabinet member and Malmin.

Mack, corroborated by Glavis, testified that on July 13, 1933, Malmin came to Ickes' office and sought the Secretary's assistance in obtaining appointment as governor of the Virgin Islands. Mack said Malmin told Ickes he had with him papers relating to the "Saunders estate given him by Larsen" and that the latter was considering bringing charges of fraud and irregularities.

Malmin told the Secretary, Mack testified, that he could prevent the action if the Secretary would use his influence to obtain the Virgin Island appointment.

Millions of Gallons Matured and Maturing

Good as it always has been, the White Horse Scotch which you buy today is older and better than ever. Years ago, exceptionally heavy stocks were laid down to anticipate sales which the fine quality of White Horse would justify. Ample supplies of fully matured whiskies are now available and the present high standard of quality will be strictly maintained.

White Horse has a subtle and distinctive aroma. It is soft, smooth and very pleasing to the taste. These virtues result only from extraordinary care in selecting the choicest whiskies—then from patience in aging in wood and unusual skill in blending and "marrying". Let your palate judge. Ask for White Horse by name and enjoy it now.

Flowers Help Them

HARRIET, 3 — MRS. WILLIAM REINER — HAROLD, 3

Mrs. Reiner, pictured at the Jewish Home for Babies and Children with two of the home's young residents, general chairman for the forget-me-not tag day May 29. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

JEWISH HOME PLANS TAG DAY

More than 500 women will sell blue forget-me-nots for the benefit of the Jewish Home for Babies and Children Tuesday, May 29, Mrs. William Reiner, committee chairman, announced today.

There are now 75 orphaned or dependent children living in the home. The tag day will be directly for their benefit.

Mrs. Reiner watched the children at play yesterday. She said:

Mrs. Arthur H. Obermauer is president of the home.

GIRLS TO CROWN HER 'KING'

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—Her Highness the King will be crowned at Seton Hill College tomorrow, where the campus queen is not without her regal consort, even though both are young women.

The "king," chosen as the prettiest girl in the senior class, is Margaret O'Meara, of Pittsburgh, and "his" queen, who will hold court at the annual May festival, is Catherine McFeatters, of Wilkinsburg, named the prettiest girl in the junior class.

The royal court will be composed of the following attendants: Mary White, of Oil City; Rosemary Cypher, of Butler; Elizabeth Murrin, of Butler, Beatrice King, of Tulsa, Okla.; Virginia Moore, of Detroit; Catherine Whelan, of St. Clairsville, O., and Catherine and Rachel Dom, of Greensburg.

SYMPHONY FUND DRIVE SPEEDED

Stressing the importance of small as well as large contributions to the Pittsburgh Symphony Society's drive for $100,000, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the society, and general chairman of the drive, addressed 250 campaign workers at a meeting in Kaufmann's yesterday.

She said:

"The smallest contribution is often the most inspiring, because everybody who makes a contribution, no matter how small, shows that he is taking a vital interest in the musical life of Pittsburgh."

Announcement of a gift of $200 presented in honor of Mrs. Hall, was made by Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, who presided at the meeting. Leo G. Griffith, of the executive board, also addressed the workers.

MARTIN INSULL TRIAL NEARS

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP.—Martin J. Insull, brother of the fallen utilities czar, was a step nearer trial for embezzlement today, his first legal round ending in a victory for the state.

The court yesterday overruled two of Insull's motions—his plea in abatement on the ground it was improper, and his effort to have a petit jury determine the legality of the grand jury which indicted him.

HAIL LAFAYETTE AS NEW DEALER

PARIS, May 18.—(AP.)—Lafayette was a forerunner of the "New Deal," United States Ambassador Jesse Isadore Straus told French and Americans at the tomb of the French patriot in Picpus Cemetery today on the hundredth anniversary of his death.

The little cemetery where the American army's famous "Lafayette, we are here," thrilled France in 1917, was the converging point today of a large pilgrimage honoring the memory of the man who fought for the independence of the American colonies.

IF KIDNAPERS know that the hangman is waiting for them, no matter what happens, they will, as a matter of precaution, murder their victim, to close his mouth forever rather than set him free. But if they know that his safety may mean that they escape hanging, they will protect him. His chance of survival increases many fold.

"A hanging for every kidnaping" MIGHT mean fewer kidnapings, but it would mean more kidnap victims murdered.

IN THE CASE of the three California kidnapers Kirk, Kerrigan and Williams, now in San Quentin prison under one of the life sentences with parole possibilities, the prisoners probably will all actually die in prison because the federal government proposes to add to the local kidnaping sentence another sentence of 42 years without parole, plus $20,000 fine for each, which will have to be worked out in prison.

When Kirk, "the brains" of the plot, heard of that, he remarked:

KIDNAPERS WILL learn of many "fast ones" if their industry persists.

The three men as they sat in prison yesterday were told by this writer:

"When you reach San Quentin, advise the men coming out to keep away from kidnaping. It is the most dangerous of crimes, most thoroughly hated, absolutely certain to end in death or prison for the criminal.

"The bank robber, the thief who robs a store, the burglar, are pursued by officers of the law.

"The kidnaper is hated by every one of 120,000,000 Americans and pursued by all of them. They feel that his industry threatens all of them, and what is worse it threatens their children."

REPUBLICAN PAPERS give three and four cheers because Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, has beaten Gov. Pinchot in the senatorial primaries, although Reed is against President Roosevelt and Pinchot supports the New Deal.

Republicans rejoicing over that news represent the "small favors, thankfully received" spirit. Reed and Pinchot both ran as Republicans and naturally in these doubtful days the real Republican, with no Roosevelt leanings, won. Wait until the Democrats begin running against Republicans, then you will know more.

MISS ZIEGLER EXHIBITS WORK

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of oil and water color paintings by Martha Ziegler is on view at Elliott's "Little Gallery" through the month. Miss Ziegler is evidently emerging from the chrysalis of studenthood and is prepared to try her tools for her own inventions.

Miss Redd

She has a serious talent and what might be described as a scrupulous effort to do her work well. "Girl's Head" illustrates her virtues of workmanship.

"The Hunt," the most ambitious of the canvases, is likewise the most interesting. A group of figures amusingly disposed in the landscape pledge future pictures of promise.

Of the water color, the "Old House Boat" with the arc of the bridge and the vagabond domicile floating easily at its nonchalant mooring, is the high point.

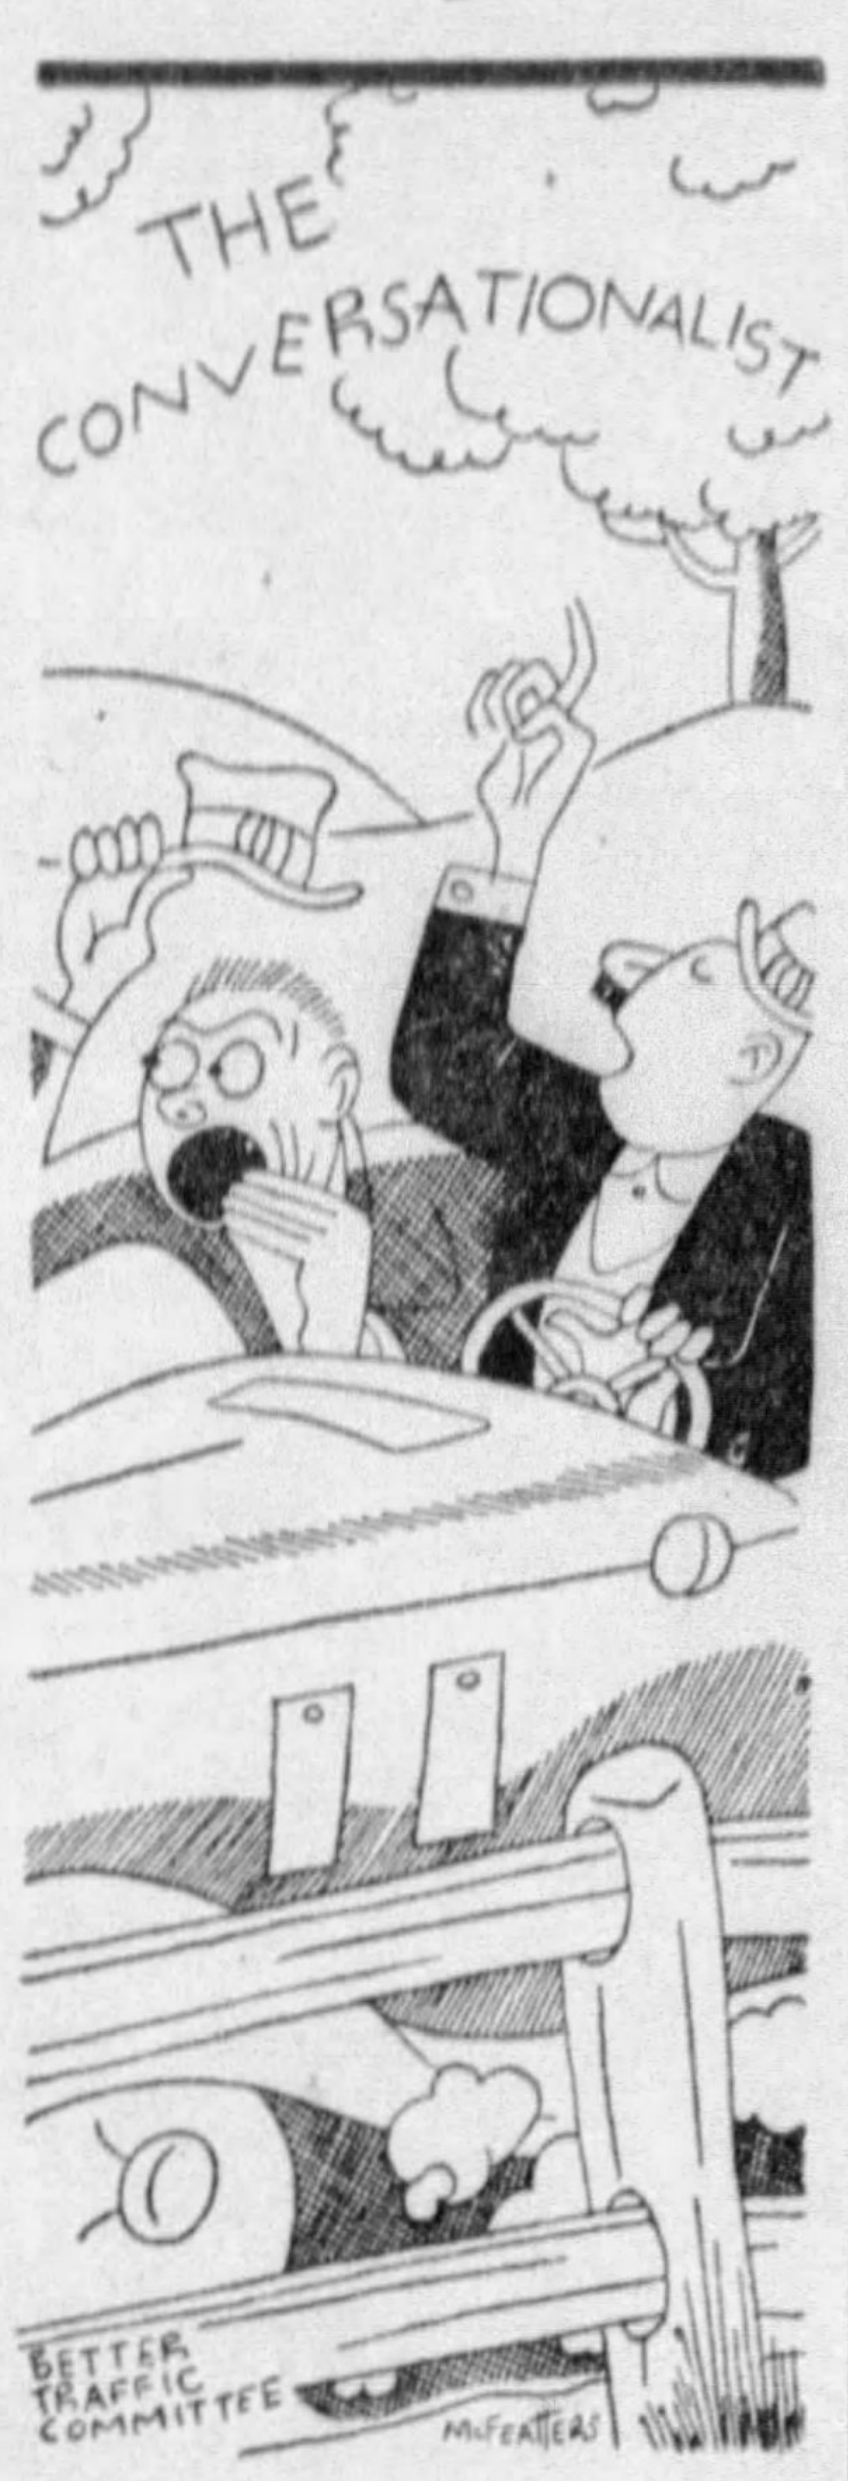
Park Tennis Club Gives 'Little Eva'

Miss Johnson

Miss Hilda Johnson will play the part of Little Eva in "Little Eva," play sponsored by the McBride Park Tennis Club in the Mifflin School Auditorium, Lincoln place, May 24 and 25. Charles Nelson and Charles Delehanty are co-authors of the piece. Nelson is also the director. The play is a burlesque on the death of Eva from Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Nurse Fatally Hurt In Fall Down Steps

Mrs. Ellen E. Allison, 32, a nurse, was fatally injured last night when she fell down a flight of stairs in her home on Bryn Mawr road, according to a morgue report. Her skull was fractured by the fall.



This is the tenth of a series of Safety Cartoons drawn by a CWA artist for the Better Traffic Committee as an educational aid in reducing the growing number of traffic accidents in Pittsburgh. The artist, Frank McFeaters, was one of 100 CWA workers assigned to the Better Traffic Committee and his art ability was an accidental discovery.

When you hear "putting his foot in his mouth" when someone speaks out of turn, substitute "grave" for "mouth" and you have a true picture of the motoring conversationalist.

Driving is a serious business, demands the use of all the faculties, cannot be combined with sightseeing, debating, orating.

The job of the driver is to drive and let someone else do the talking.

Pioneer Hotel Man Dies in Lansdowne

LANSDOWNE, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—Louis Lukes, who got his start as a hotel man along the Yellowstone in the days when inn keepers had to guard their guests against Indian raids, died yesterday at the home of a daughter.

For six years he was president of the Pennsylvania State Hotel Men's Association, having operated hotels in Philadelphia and Lancaster.

THE THIN MAN :-: Modern, Smashing, Mystery Thriller :-: By Dashiell Hammett

Nora and Nick Visit With Jorgensens

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Dorothy asks where her father is and Nick refers her to Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney. Macaulay, calls on Nick and tells him Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting him.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

It is learned Julia was a former sweetheart of a racketeer.

Dorothy appears at Nick's apartment and flashes a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. She is drunk and Nora puts her to bed. Morelli, a gangster, is suspected in Julia's murder.

Nick is shot by Morelli. Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Dorothy, beaten by Mimi, seeks shelter at Nick's, and tells new story about gun.

(Soon to appear on the screen at Loew's Penn Theater as a thrilling motion picture made by Cosmopolitan Production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

I called the desk on the telephone and asked them to send up our mail. There were a couple of letters for Nora, one for me, some belated Christmas cards, a number of telephone-call memoranda, and a telegram from Philadelphia.

I put the telegram in an envelope with a note saying it had just reached me and sent it by messenger to the Police Department Homicide Bureau.

In the taxicab Nora asked: "You're sure you feel all right?"

"And this isn't going to be too much for you?"

"I'm all right. What'd you think of the girl's story?"

She hesitated. "You don't believe her, do you?"

"God forbid—at least till I've checked it up."

"You know more about this kind of thing than I do," she said, "but I think she was at least trying to tell the truth."

"A lot of the fancier yarns come from people who are trying to do that. It's not easy once you're out of the habit."

Thinks She's Crazy

She said: "I bet you know a lot about human nature, Mr. Charles. Now don't you? Some time you must tell me about your experience as a detective."

I said: "Buying a gun for twelve bucks in a speakeasy. Well, maybe, but . . ."

We rode a couple of blocks in silence. Then Nora asked: "What's really the matter with her?"

"Her old man's crazy; she thinks she is."

'How do you know?"

"You asked me. I'm telling you."

"You mean you're guessing?"

"I mean that's what's wrong with her; I don't know whether Wynant's actually nuts and I don't know whether she inherited any of it if he is, but she thinks both answers are yes, and it's got her doing figure eights."

When we stopped in front of the Courtland she said: "That's horrible, Nick. Somebody ought to—"

We sent our names up to the Jorgensens and, after some delay, were told to go up. Mimi met us in the corridor when we stepped out of the elevator, met us with open arms and many words. "Those wretched newspapers. They had me frantic with their nonsense about your being at death's door. I phoned twice, but they wouldn't give me your apartment, wouldn't tell me how you were." She had both of my hands. "I'm so glad, Nick, that it was just a pack of lies, even if you will have to take pot luck with us tonight. Naturally I didn't expect you and— But you're pale. You really have been hurt."

Men Such Idiots

"Not much," I said. "A bullet scraped my side, but it doesn't amount to anything."

"And you came to dinner in spite of that! That is flattering, but I'm afraid it's foolish too." She turned to Nora. "Are you sure it was wise to let him—"

"I'm not sure," Nora said, "but he wanted to come."

"Men are such idiots," Mimi said. She put an arm around me. "They either make mountains out of nothing or utterly neglect things that may—But come in. Here, let me help you."

"It's not that bad," I assured her, but she insisted on leading me to a chair and packing me in with half a dozen cushions.

Jorgensen came in, shook hands with me, and said he was glad to find me more alive than the newspapers had said. He bowed over Nora's hand. "If I may be excused one little minute more I will finish the cocktails." He went out.

Mimi said: "I don't know where Dorry is. Off sulking somewhere, I suppose. You haven't any children, have you?"

Nora said: "No."

"You're missing a lot, though they can be a great trial sometimes." Mimi sighed. "I suppose I'm not strict enough. When I do have to scold Dorry she seems to think I'm a complete monster." Her face brightened. "Here's my other tot. You remember Mr. Charles, Gilbert. And this is Mrs. Charles."

Gilbert Wynant was two years younger than his sister, a gangling pale blond boy of 18 with not too much chin under a somewhat slack mouth. The size of his remarkably clear blue eyes, and the length of the lashes, gave him a slightly effeminate look. I hoped he had stopped being the whining little nuisance he was as a kid.

Tells About Shooting

Jorgensen brought in his cocktails, and Mimi insisted on being told about the shooting. I told her, making it even more meaningless than it had been

"But why should he have come to you?" she asked.

"God knows. I'd like to know. The police'd like to know."

Gilbert said: "I read somewhere that when habitual criminals are accused of things they didn't do—even little things—they're much more upset by it than other people would be. Do you think that's so, Mr. Charles?"

"It's likely."

"Except," Gilbert added, "when it's something big, you know, something they would like to've done."

I said again it was likely.

Mimi said: "Don't be polite to Gil if he starts talking nonsense, Nick. His head's so cluttered up with reading. Get us another cocktail, darling."

He went over to get the shaker. Nora and Jorgensen were in a corner sorting phonograph records.

I said: "I had a wire from Wynant today."

Mimi looked warily around the room, then leaned forward, and her voice was almost a whisper: "What did he say?"

"Wanted me to find out who killed her. It was sent from Philadelphia this afternoon."

She was breathing heavily. "Are you going to do it?"

I shrugged. "I turned it over to the police."

Gilbert came back with the shaker. Jorgensen and Nora had put Bach's Little Fugue on the phonograph. Mimi quickly drank her cocktail and had Gilbert pour her another.

Quizzed by Gilbert

He sat down and said: "I want to ask you: can you tell dope-addicts by looking at them?" He was trembling.

"Very seldom. Why?"

"I was wondering. Even if they're confirmed addicts?"

"The further along they are, the better the chances of noticing that something's wrong, but you can't often be sure it's dope."

"Another thing," he said, "Gross says when you're stabbed you only feel a sort of push at the time and it's not until afterwards that it begins to hurt. Is that so?"

"Yes, if you're stabbed reasonably hard with a reasonably sharp knife. A bullet's the same way: you only feel the blow—and with a small-caliber steel-jacketed bullet not much of that—at first. The rest comes when the air gets to it."

Mimi drank her third cocktail and said: "I think you're both being indecently gruesome, especially after what happened to Nick today. Do try to find Dorry, Gil. You must know some of her friends. Phone them. I suppose she'll be along presently, but I worry about her."

"She's over at our place," I said.

"At your place?" Her surprise may have been genuine.

"She came over this afternoon and asked if she could stay with us awhile."

She smiled tolerantly and shook her head. "Those youngsters!" She stopped smiling. "Awhile?"

I nodded.

Gilbert, apparently waiting to ask me another question, showed no interest in this conversation between his mother and me.

SALE LAKE CITY, May 18.—(AP.)—Patrolmen T. B. Burridge and S. L. Christiansen were wrestling in the police gymnasium, with arms and legs tangled.

A companion of Burridge yelled:

"Bite his thumb."

Burridge clamped his molars on a handy thumb. But he unclamped them even more promptly with a howl of pain. The thumb was his own.

FOURTH OF PITT FUND QUICKLY SUBSCRIBED

With almost a fourth of the $1,650,000 needed to complete the Cathedral of Learning already subscribed, the University of Pittsburgh's campaign committees today were moving toward their goal of finishing the Pitt tower.

At a meeting in the Commons Room of the structure last night, Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, announced that early efforts have yielded total donations of $405,153.

Mr. Fitzgerald presided at an assembly attended by more than 500 volunteer workers in the campaign.

LARGE GIFTS REVEALED

Reporting the activities of the primary gifts committee, H. H. Robertson announced the group has obtained total subscriptions of $296,282, including these individual gifts: George H. Clapp, $92,000; E. V. Babcock, $54,000; Emil Winter, $50,000, and Ernest T. Weir, $30,000.

Frank R, Phillips, representing the corporations committee, reported total donations of $72,475, including $25,000 from the Westinghouse companies and $15,000 from the H. J. Heinz Company.

WORKERS PRAISED

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the university, was the chief speaker. The program also included Homer D. Williams, general chairman of the drive; Mrs. L. B. Hays, chairman of the women's committee, and Dr. W. J. Reid, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, who gave the invocation.

Dr. Bowman lauded the workers for their endeavors and said the high aims of the school, typified in the architecture of the tower, should be the inspiration for success throughout the campaign.

SAFETY PUPILS WIN AWARDS

Awards of "gold star" buttons to members of the school safety patrols who performed outstanding service while on traffic patrol duty during the last year were made by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council in the Warner Theater today.

Supt. of Police Ben Marshall, Fire Chief John Heinz, Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools; Dr. J. Elwood Wherry, associate superintendent of county schools, and Robert Garland, president of City Council, were among the speakers. Presentations were made by Capt. William B. Rodgers, president of the safety council.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

AUTO DRIVERS IGNORE SIGNS

Motorists are growing more careless, the first half of the 24-hour survey in automobile accident deaths has revealed, S. S. Scott, of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, said today. The survey, being conducted by the state department of safety and club officials, ended today.

During a 10-minute check at Shady and Forward avenues 45 drivers of automobiles failed to observe stop signs, the surveyors disclosed. A state highway patrolman, a Pittsburgh Automobile Club official and a Pennsylvania Motor Federation official are making the survey, covering the city and county in a 15-mile radius.

U. S. FOOD AID EXPLAINED

Possible danger of a reduction in federal relief allotments has been explained by George P. Mills, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, as one of the reasons why relief officials have not been eager to get more of the federal surplus food shipments.

The Unemployed Citizens' League of Allegheny County had protested because government surplus food supplies have not been brought in recently. City Council yesterday asked Director Mills to consult the State Relief Board at Harrisburg.

Mills, after the call, said that shipments of surplus food in the past have not been dependable, and when accepted, other more regular allotments are reduced. A committee of Council under Thomas J. Gallagher has arranged for a further hearing on relief Monday at 2:30 p. m.

Says Morgantown man: "I feel more like working since taking SYL-VETTE. I do not feel so sluggish and my legs do not tire out as they did when I was overweight. I lost 20 pounds in 2 months' time by taking SYL-VETTE for breakfast and for lunch. I did not eat pork or fatty meats and very little starchy food for my dinner in the evening while I was reducing. This was not hard to do as SYL-VETTE certainly kept me from feeling hungry and I found it was so very easy to do without fattening foods. I think SYL-VETTE is very nourishing and a wonderful food substitute for people who are overweight."

Mr. Geo. A. Hunter, W. Va.

NO DRUGS — NO THYROIDS — NO SALTS — SYL-VETTE IS A FOOD

SYL-VETTE is a drugless, safe system of weight control, a condensed hunger-satisfying food substitute of which one teaspoonful equals a breakfast or a lunch.

HERE'S PROOF—19 out of every 20 users lose 3 pounds or more the first week—10 to 15 pounds a month—which is pronounced safe by doctors. Economical, too 30 slenderizing meals $1.00.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is a perfect day! Do you remember the plea I made here just a few days ago in behalf of a veteran, out of work and out of furniture, whose little 3-year-old girl was about to come home from a five-month stay at the hospital. The furniture was sold out for debt and the little child had no bed to rest upon while convalescing.

Globe Trotters, your immediate and generous offers of beds certainly earned all of you many good marks in the Big Book kept by the Angel.

I sent a Sun-Telegraph truck for one of the beds. Let me quote from a letter received yesterday morning:

"Received the bed, perfect in every way. Let the donor know that it is deeply appreciated. Every time we put the baby to bed we'll remember what the Globe Trotters did for us.

(Name withheld.)

And to fill the cup to overflowing, the dictionaries for the jail library have been received.

Mrs. Harry Newman, McClellandtown — Harvey Stauffer, the 17-year-old Glassport High School boy who won the national oratorical contest recently, and who appeared on the Globe Trotter program to deliver his oration, did so without referring to notes or manuscript.

It is also true that the oration itself was an original work and he won his prize partly for the content matter and partly for the masterful way it was delivered.

I know there are many of you who are watching for the opportunity to be of service to someone. Keep watching. Some day I'll ask for the very thing that you have to offer.

Broadcasting Stations Haven for Stage Stars

By AIRCASTER

Radio's showmen have a keener appreciation of an art that has become mellow with time than have the gentlemen who operate theaters and the cinema.

They are making of the studios an arcady for those personages of former years and incidentally, are richer for their estimates of talent which might, in older fields of entertainment, be regarded as passe.

A hasty survey of the studio rosters reveals a surprising group of old-timers who are going strong, and whose efforts are lending no small measure of glamour to broadcasting.

It was Otis Skinner's recent triumph at WABC which directed attention to the celebrities of the older school, who still manage to attract and charm the radio listener.

'MR. ANTONIO'

Mr. Skinner must be somewhere near 70, but there was vigor and youth in his performance of "Mr. Antonio." Well past Mr. Skinner's age is Walter Damrosch, who happens to be, despite the height of his years, still a forceful and dominant figure in radio and one of the most beloved.

Lately has come Bob Sherwood and his merry circus, again to the microphone, with all the spontaniety of a mere youth, yet Uncle Bob is 78.

'FUR WILL FLY,' SAYS M'NAIR, AS COUNCIL PERILS HIS RULE

POLICE 'FIXING' DENIED BY MARSHALL

Flouts Racket Link as Commission Maps Probe Course

With City Council's Police Commission pondering ways and means of launching an extensive police probe, Supt. Ben R. Marshall challenged anyone to prove that there has been "fixing" in the Police Bureau.

While Marshall did not name Councilman John J. Kane, he referred to the "important political figure" who Kane recently said approached Director Ralph E. Smith with the information that the police had been "fixed" and the rackets were ready to open if he would give the word.

Kane has since refused to identify the politician.

ISSUES CHALLENGE

Marshall said yesterday:

"I invite anyone to come to this office and name a man who said he had me or any of my subordinates 'fixed.'"

A second organization meeting of the Police Commission, designed to pry the lid off police affairs, was held yesterday afternoon in the offices of Dr. Elmer D. Graper, University of Pittsburgh economics professor.

MAP PROBE COURSE

After it was over, Dr. Graper announced the legal problems confronting the recently appointed commission were discussed. Ways and means of launching the intensive probe into police affairs also were dealt with.

It was suggested at the meeting that the commission ask the assistance of the state police and the District Attorney's office.

Early next week, according to Dr. Graper, the first open meeting will be held.

Other members of the committee include James N. Hoey, former police inspector; Dr. Albert I. Wise, Mrs. Mary Burnett and Miss Anna B. Heldman.

PARADE MARKS BANK OPENING

Opening of the new Hazelwood Bank was celebrated last night by a parade in which 50 floats and 200 decorated automobiles participated. A banquet in Guild Hall, with Dr. O. C. Schlag, president of the new bank; A. J. Boal, cashier; Max Balsam, chairman of the reorganization committee, and the Rev J. J. O'Connell, of St. Stephens' Catholic Church, as speakers, closed the activities.

The new bank replaces the closed Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company. It opened May 1. The celebration was sponsored by the Hazelwood-Glenwood Commercial Association.

HIGHLAND PARK POOL RATE CUT

Council has taken the first step to let down the bars for more children at the Highland Park swimming pool.

An ordinance providing that children aged 16 and under may use the pool free of charge and providing a fee of 15 cents each for others was approved in Finance Committee yesterday by a vote of 6 to 3.

The present regulation is that children under 12 may swim in the pool free and those that age or over pay 10 cents each. The change was suggested by Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston.

Army Officers Plan Bastille Day Outing

Arrangements for the annual outing of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Reserve Officers' Association, were to be made today at a meeting in the County Office Building. Regular Army, National Guard and reserve officers and their families will attend the outing, tentatively scheduled for Bastille Day, July 14, in South Park.

TROLLEY WAGES SUBMITTED TO ARBITRATION

Board of Three Seeks End of Deadlock on New Contract

Deadlocked in attempts to reach a new agreement on wages, the street car men and officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company today had decided to leave the controversy up to arbitration.

The board will consist of three arbitrators, one to represent the men, one to represent the company and the third to be neutral.

Principal issues at stake is the street car men's refusal to be satisfied with a three cents an hour hourly wage increase proposed by the company. The men, it is understood, are seeking a greater increase.

The contract under which the railways employes have been working expired on May 1, and since that time negotiations have been kept up, but without result.

Thomas Fitzgerald, general manager of the company, said the arbitration board will be completed by Monday and the first meeting will be held shortly thereafter.

Alex Logue, secretary of the street car men's union, said the company had refused to make further concessions regarding increases in pay.

The union men had sought a change in hours which would reemploy several hundred workers who were laid off, Logue stated.

SAFETY CLERK FIRED BY BELL

A. Marshall Bell, new public safety director, today fired Robert Brown, chief clerk in the department.

Bell said:

"I have asked for Mr. Brown's resignation for what I consider a very good reason, but in no way a reflection on Mr. Brown's character or services."

At the same time Bell announced that he does not contemplate making other changes in the department without good reasons.

Raquel Torres, Ames Back From Honolulu

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—(AP.)—Raquel Torres, movie actress, and Stephen Ames, New York broker whom she married in Los Angeles harbor four weeks ago, came back from Honolulu today to continue their honeymoon in Hollywood.

Ames, former husband of Adrienne Ames, screen actress who divorced him to marry Bruce Cabot, also of the movies, said Miss Torres would return to pictures at once.

Two Moyer Ousters Backed by Board

The Civil Service Commission today approved the dismissal of two inspectors in the city's Bureau of Sanitation who were fired by Health Director Ray P. Moyer. They were Frank X. Zulawski, accused of making a negligent house inspection, and Charles F. Scheuring, accused of sleeping on duty.

Bell Wants Police Courteous and Rumless

Newly-appointed Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell is opposed to the odor of liquor on a policeman in uniform.

This was made known today in a message reaching officers from Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall.

Marshall said his chief also objects to unnecessary roughness on the part of policemen and that his motto is:

"Be firm but be courteous."

JEWETT SPEAKS AT CREDIT MEET

Many difficulties encountered between employes and employers of industry may be traced to leaders of limited education and inexperience, Arthur C. Jewett, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Regional Labor Board, declared last night at the annual meeting of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania in the Schenley Hotel. He added:

"Frequently unskilled laborers have dominated local unions and in their zeal for unionization have violated the rules of the American Federation of Labor. The rules of the federation are much more fair than the practices of some local unions."

MUNHALL MAN HANGS SELF

When John Ducar walked down to the cellar of his home early today he saw, hanging from a rafter, the body of his uncle, 77-year-old Joseph Billie.

Billie, who lived with his nephew at 1116 Ravine street, Munhall, had been in ill health for several years, the Coroner's office reported. He was a widower.

Indications were that he had killed himself around midnight. A clothesline had been fashioned into a noose.

Ducar, working all night in the mills, stepped into the cellar to make a fire, when he discovered the body.

Western Police Don't Need Red Coats to Succeed

By ARTHUR ('BUGS') BAER

Bad week for English skippers. One sank the Nantucket Lightship which was anchored on both ends. Another ran his battle cruiser aground. He was quitting the sea and took his boat along with him.

We did better than that on land. Western police played a doubleheader with kidnappers and won both games. Good detective work all round and makes us wonder how the Canadian Northwestern can wear red coats and still get their man.

New York City borrowed thirty-seven million dollars. That's healthier than good climate. Sam Untermeyer called New York the banker's cow. We'll take a pail of that milk.

The money stays in Washington. It's like pictures on a blackboard. You draw against it but you don't take it out of school.

SAFETY WEEK PROCLAIMED

In an effort to regain for Pittsburgh its "safest city" laurels, special efforts are to be made through the Better Traffic Committee to reduce accidents during the coming week.

Mayor McNair has issued a special proclamation calling on Pittsburgh motorists to use special caution during the week beginning Sunday which is known as "Pennsylvania Highway Safety Week."

Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the committee, is to speak on safety over station KDKA tonight at 6:06 o'clock.

Emsworth Orphanage Famed as Model Home

Priest Wins Laurels, Stresses Freedom And Health

Freedom is the most priceless possession of childhood, in the opinion of the Rev. Frank A. Retka, superintendent of the Holy Family Orphanage, Emsworth.

Basing practice upon that theory, Father Retka has won laurels for himself and a measure of fame for the institution which he heads.

Because he places freedom above all else in the development of children, the Holy Family Orphanage is classed as one of the model homes of its kind in the state, holding a record for health and a reputation for home-like surroundings and supervision.

Operating on only 42 cents per capita a day, the orphanage offers each child within its walls a well-rounded education and extensive recreational facilities, including swimming, tennis, movies and outdoor sports and games. A large playground, a ball field, a swimming pool and tennis courts, all built by the older boys, are maintained.

ALLOWED FREEDOM

Clothing, food prepared according to specifications of experts, and a complete medical and dental program also are provided in the 42-cent daily expense, Father Retka told members of a committee of the Community Fund, with which the orphanage is affiliated, on its annual tour of inspection yesterday. He said:

"We give our children every possible opportunity to develop, and above all I insist on this one point: that they be given every possible freedom.

HOLDS HEALTH RECORD

He added:

"This never has been managed as an orphanage. I haven't much sympathy with the old type of institution."

Particularly surprising is the health record the orphanage has set—no contagious disease within the last 10 years, and no serious illness of any kind during the last eight. The institution's charges number 334, and range between the ages of 19 years and 15 months.

166 BUILDINGS RAZED HERE

The city's slum clearance program has resulted this year in the razing of 156 buildings, according to George E. Evans, superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

The work has been carried on without cost to the city, according to Evans. It has been paid for by the owners, or contractors have undertaken it for the salvage, he said.

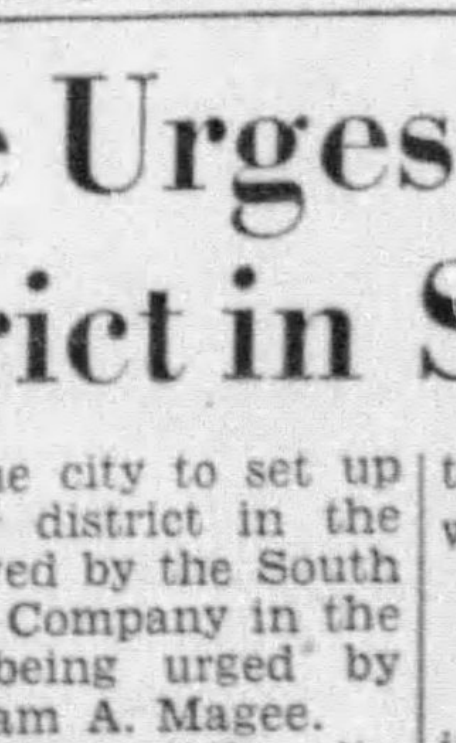
In addition there have been 13 buildings boarded up, 38 released by the owners for razing, 31 posted for condemnation by the city and 14 to be razed by owners under special permits.

Where possible, the employes of the bureau have persuaded owners to sign agreements for the destruction of dangerous or insanitary houses. City building inspectors have been spending a large part of their time at this.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLISTER, Cal., May 18.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Sure had a good time today. Been out to a calf branding at the "Quien Sabe" ranch, 40,000 acres, and one of the prettiest in California. Didn't mind all the men beating me roping, but when a girl did, it looks like golf will be coming on me pretty soon. This is a real old cowtown, but prunes and Easterners are getting a hold in here and they are both hard to eradicate.



Will Rogers.

There is not a better day in the world to be spent than with a lot of wise old cow men around, barbecued beef, black coffee and good free holy beans. Cattle men have lost more in the last few years than anybody and squawk less about it.

When you ever have any doubt as to what might happen in these U. S. go to the country and talk with them and you will come back reassured. Yours, WILL.

Magee Urges New Water District in South Hills

An effort by the city to set up a separate water district in the territory now served by the South Pittsburgh Water Company in the South Hills is being urged by Councilman William A. Magee.

Council has authorized the city law department to negotiate with the water company for the sale of its lines within the city limits.

As an alternative, however, to the city paying a big price and taking over only a part of the company's facilities, Magee suggested an effort to interest other municipalities in the same territory in taking over the entire water plant. He said:

"I object to the city buying a plant and not getting it."

He referred to heavy damages involved if a part of the company's lines were taken away.

Council took no action on a proposal to seek a large refund from the water company for alleged over-charges during the last five years. Magee said that such action is not possible unless the city enters a costly rate case.

BATTLE LOOMS OVER TRACTION AUTHORITY

Magee in Move to Take Appointments Away From Mayor

City Council has plainly reached an agreement to put a stop to Mayor McNair's playful activities with the Traction Conference Board.

In doing so, they will be taking from the Mayor one of the executive privileges he has enjoyed most, and it cannot be done without a battle.

Coming on the heels of the confirmation of a new safety director, A. Marshall Bell, and the naming of the former director, Ralph E. Smith, to the $5,000 post of W. Edgar Reed on the Traction Conference Board, events yesterday gave every evidence of carefully studied planning by a combined Council.

Smith was sworn in today by the Mayor, who accompanied him to the Traction Board's offices in the Law and Finance Building and introduced him to Charles A. Finley, chairman of the board.

MAGEE ORDINANCE

There is reason to think that the Mayor's official action, particularly his series of Traction Board appointments, have been of a nature to drive two widely separated factions in Council to a point where they are willing to trade.

An ordinance introduced by William A. Magee would take away from the Mayor the right of appointing the city's two members on the Traction Board and vest that right in Council. Council received this ordinance yesterday in committee and sent it to the law department to be put in proper form.

READY TO BATTLE

Mayor McNair has promised trouble. If there is a deal on in Council, he knows nothing about it, he says, and he will fight. His stand is:

"If Magee puts that ordinance through, I'm going to start some trouble. I am the executive of this city and have the right to appoint Charles A. Finley's successor. I have been very patient, but if this goes on the fur will fly and you can tell him that."

Under the change proposed by Magee, Finley and Smith would be designated as traction board members and any change would require a new ordinance.

LOUDEST OBJECTION

To become effective, Magee's plan would require an amendment of the Traction Conference Board agreement. Oddly enough, he was one of the loudest objectors when it was proposed by Democratic members of Council to make some changes in that agreement just prior to its extension.

Councilman John J. Kane alone opposed the naming of Bell as Safety Director yesterday. He expressed the fear that Bell lacked experience to handle the department.

Councilman John M. Huston, Democrat, arrived too late to vote on Bell, having been tied up in a conference with members of the County Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

After the meeting, he stated that he had been present he would have voted for Bell.

SMITH APPOINTMENT

The Smith appointment was brought out by Councilman Walter R. Demmler, Democrat, and was passed unanimously along with the Reed removal.

Magee in a speech on the Smith appointment referred also to an ordinance to curtail the Mayor's activities. He said:

"I think that Council should at this time take out of the hands of the Mayor any further interference with the Traction Conference Board ... I intend to vote for Mr. Smith in the belief that Council will pass an ordinance which I intend to introduce."

Receivership Named At Brewing Company

The Bentleyville Brewing Company, of Bentleyville, was placed in receivership yesterday by the Federal District Court. Charles M. Gleichler, a stockholder, filed an equity suit in which he said the company has assets in excess of its liabilities, but is unable to meet maturing obligations. Louis Wechler was appointed receiver. Bond was set at $15,000.

Queen of River Packets Brings $325 at Auction

The Senator Cordill, whose landing whistle for three decades had stirred many a Ohio River town out of accustomed monotony, is the property of a salvage man today.

The salvage man thought the former queen of the packets was worth $325 and said so yesterday at a public auction in the Federal Building.

The auctioneer talked convincingly and fast, but finally:

"Three-hundred and twenty-five dollars once, $325 twice, $325 three times. Sold to William Archey."

Archey, a North Sider, said he's going to junk the Cordill.

The auctioneer didn't say so, but the Cordill has seen a lot of life in its steaming on the Ohio and Mississippi. It was an unlucky packet, though.

On February 5, when owned by John W. Hubbard, shovel king, it sank at Dam No. 14 on the Ohio. Three Negroes lost their lives when she went down. Hubbard transferred his interest in the packet, the government raised it and it was moved to Marietta, O., where it is today.

This was the third time the Cordill had sunk.

Twice before in the Great Kanawha River, near Charleston, it went to the bottom and was salvaged. In February, 1928, the Senator burst a throttle valve at Point Pleasant, killing two engineers and a boilermaker.

COUNCIL PRUNES INSURANCE COVERAGE

The end of Mayor McNair's plan to give the city insurance business to agents who would pay delinquent taxes has been brought about at the insistence of Controller James P. Kerr that bids be taken and awards made in the regular way.

Finance committee of Council yesterday pruned the insurance coverage suggested by the Mayor's special insurance committee, making the cost $19,072 per year as compared with $22,860 annually as recommended by the committee.

Previously, insurance covering about one-half as much city property, cost the city $12,981 per year.

FOSTER SILENT

The new set-up was in line with recommendations made by Budget Controller Edward A. Schofield.

City Assessor William B. Foster, the Mayor's insurance advisor, who was reprimanded for interrupting a recent session of Finance Committee, maintained a discreet silence while Council eliminated some of the policies.

Council decided not to insure its half of the City-County Building. It was also decided not to cover the North Side Library, the North Side Municipal Hall or the South Side Market.

KERR CONFERS

After the meeting with Council, Controller Kerr held a conference with City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully in regard to drawing a contract ordinance to provide for advertising and bids on the business.

After those steps are taken, companies which now hold the insurance under temporary extensions may only keep it provided they are low bidders.

Plan Celebration For Maritime Day

National Maritime Day will be observed by the Propeller Club of Pittsburgh at a luncheon in the Roosevelt Hotel Tuesday. Speakers will be Victor Paul Kolansinski, traveller and lecturer; Armand J. P. Vandermyn, Port of Pittsburgh president, and C. F. Michiels, of the United States Engineer's office.

New Isolation Building Dedicated at Zoar Home

Dignified by dedication ceremonies in which many prominent Pittsburghers took part, a modern isolation building today is available to residents of the Zoar Home for Mothers and Babies in Allison Park Heights.

In a dual ceremony yesterday, the building was formally opened and a bronze tablet was unveiled in honor of Col. Charles A. Brooks and his wife, and in memory of their son, Charles.

Col. Brooks is president of the group managing the Zoar retreat, and has been its donor for a number of years.

In addition to Col. Brooks, dedication speakers included Senator Frank Harris, Judge Sara Soffel, Gottleib Golder, chairman of the board of directors; W. S. Diggs, vice chairman; Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr and Mrs. Ernest Schmitz, superintendent of the home since she and her late husband founded it in 1912.

The name "Zoar" was derived from that of a city mentioned in the Old Testament as a refuge for the persecuted. Its liberal meaning is "drawn out of the fire."

COUNTY HOME SUIT UP AGAIN

Arguments on the exceptions filed by Walter Riehl as a taxpayer in the dismissal of the $40,000 surcharge against the Poor Board have been heard by Judges Elder W. Marshall, Frank P. Patterson and Thomas M. Marshall in Common Pleas Court.

Judge Thomas M. Marshall originally ruled that the Poor Board, consisting of H. H. Dixon, W. L. Henderson and J. Clyde Miller, should be surcharged, but he was overruled in a reargument of the case before the three Common Pleas jurists.

The other two judges held that there had been no evidence of fraud in the purchase of realty for the County Home at Woodville or that members of the board had profited from the transaction.

Local Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derby To Be Held July 7; National Contest Planned

For the last seven or eight years many of America's largest cities have been the scene of model plane activity. New York has had its annual model plane derby conducted by Lawrence Shaw, your national director. Los Angeles has had its contests sponsored by a local playground committee.

Detroit, Akron, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Washington and other cities have had annual model plane armadas flying above their parks and airports in competition for coveted awards as well as contest honors and records. But never has a nation-wide program of model plane activities been planned such as are to be unfolded to you starting with the announcement in this column today.

Of course I refer to the 1934 Outdoor Model Plane Contest plans of the Junior Birdmen of America. Today, with its more than 50,000 members enrolled in one month of organization it is one of the largest aviation youth movements in the world.

Junior Birdmen Rules Six Years in the Making

The official Junior Birdmen of America Model Plane Contest rules have been six years in the making. They have only been adopted after these six years of actual experimentation and testing at actual model plane meets. Every rule governing the procedure of the contests, the construction of contesting models and the activity of contestants have been used at the largest annual model plane meet conducted in the country—the official New York model plane derby.

After many changes of these rules, from year to year, to conform with the wishes of contestants where possible, the new official national rules of the Junior Birdmen of America will take the lead, being guided by these experiments.

Model builders can be assured of the finest and fairest set of contest rules when entering their craft in competition in Junior Birdmen activities.

The rules will be available in book form to all contestants in all wing cities on June 1, at which time the Junior Birdmen columns will also publish them in full.

Junior Birdmen Contest Day Saturday, July 7

Saturday, July 7, will be Junior Birdmen Contest Day throughout the country when each local wing city will conduct its official Model Plane Derby at some nearby airport, park or suitable field. The Pittsburgh derby will be held at Schenley Oval.

There will be three events in each city meet. A glider event for non-powered gliders made of all Balsa wood, a single propelled stick model event, and a double propelled stick model event.

For those of you who are not familiar with these various types of models they will be described in our Model Builders' Course for beginners. Directions for building these models will appear in this course in time for members to learn how to construct them and thus enter the local model plane derby.

But the model plane derbies in each wing city in the United States is only half of our 1934 Junior Birdmen Outdoor Model Plane Contest plans.

National Contest Planned

The first three winners in each of the three events in each wing derby will receive an official Junior Birdmen Medal. Gold for first place, silver for second, bronze for third. In addition, each will receive an award of proficiency and contest points.

The winner of the most number of points (as set forth in our official book of rules now on the press) will be recognized as the city model plane champion. And here is a treat! The Junior Birdmen Model Plane "champ" of each wing will be sent to Washington late in July to compete in the Junior Birdmen National "All America" Model Plane Championship. Your fare and complete expenses to the national meet will be paid.

I would like to give you the full details of the local contest and the national meet today. However, this information was promised for June 1, and I only publish this news today because of hundreds of letters that have been received asking if we won't at least give a hint now of what is in store.

Well, I gave you the hint, members! Now get ready for the bi[illegible] news on June 1, when I will throw the throttle wide open and rip into the air lanes with announcements about our official Junior Birdmen Outdoor Contests that will tail wind you clear through to victory (I hope) in the greatest junior aviation activity ever held in this country.

An exhibit of scale and flying model airplanes costing from 10 cents to $5 will be exhibited at the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., Whitfield street., at 7:30 tonight. The airplane show is sponsored by T. F. Lietch. Members of the Junior Birdmen might get many valuable ideas in airplane construction by seeing the exhibit.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

Homemade Engine Kills Boy Builder

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 18. John Niemic's desire to improve the equipment of his father's blacksmith shop cost him his life today.

The youth was killed when a welding apparatus he had constructed from blue prints in a magazine exploded a few minutes after he had placed it in operation for the first time.

Bad Bee Brings Ban By Buzzing Council

ASHLAND, Ore., May 18.—(AP.)—A bad bee bit a city official and now the Council has decided that bees must remain in back yards. That is, the hives must be kept at least 40 feet from sidewalks, on the theory that bees are more aggressive near their own broods.

'Smoking' Robin Blamed for Blaze

BELOIT, Wis., May 18.—(AP.)—The robin has been detected as a fire hazard by Richard Martin, whose house caught fire after a nest went up in smoke.

JUNIOR PATROL MAIL BOX

Usually, before a tree is big enough to be cut into boards and lumber, it has to be as old as a grown-up man and even older. Like human beings, trees grow slowly.

But unlike human beings, some trees live a long time, there are redwood trees in California that are more than 1,000 years old. They grow so huge and tall that roadways are cut through their trunks, like small tunnels through a hill. And one big tree is a part of the highway.

And many other kinds of trees grow very old, too, including elms and pine trees.

Best of all, a tree is mighty useful to us all, no matter where we live. How would you like to live in a place where there are no trees to make cool shade when the sun beats down hot in the summer.

There are great deserts and long stretches of waste land right here in the United States where no trees grow.

The trees not only make pleasant shade but they are useful in a thousand ways. And the different kinds of trees are useful in many different ways.

We usually divide all kinds of wood, which comes from trees, into two classes—hard wood and soft wood. The soft wood is wood that is easy to cut and shape like pine or sugar pine. Hard woods are such trees as oak, walnut and mahogany, which are harder to cut.

In the old days, the hulls of ships were made of great oak planks. But the tall masts were almost always pine trunks because they grow so straight and tall.

Such rare woods as mahogany and ebony were used to make furniture and pianos and other beautiful things. Walnut and maple are also beautiful in furniture. And to make the maple and walnut wood go further men have learned to veneer furniture, and much furniture is really made of pine or some other common wood covered with a thin coating of glossy walnut. Walnut wood can be cut into thin sheets. Always, there is a pretty "grain" in the wood so that it has a design of light and dark whorls and shadings.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

For the last time this season, Stage and Play Society members met once more at the Twentieth Century Club—a few to be actors and actresses for the evening, others to be the audience.

And after the production of Milne's "Mr. Pim Passes By" came the annual meeting.

For the first time in quite a few seasons there's a change in officers. C. F. C. Arensberg and Eleanor Grier replace Fielder Clarke, resigning secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, his assistant.

Carroll Fitzhugh is president; Harold Geoghegan, vice president; James W. Macfarlane, vice-president. And Mrs. J. H. K. Burgwin and Mrs. Elizabeth Moorhead Vermorcken, have been made honorary directors.

Board of Directors Composed of Socialites

The board of directors includes Mrs. George F. Bassett, Jr., Mrs. James P. Cassidy, Mrs. Thomas J. Hilliard, Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, Joseph F. Kuntz, Jr., Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, Madeliene McClintock, Mrs. William S. Moorhead, Mrs. Bennett Oliver, Mrs. George S. Oliver, Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, Mrs. Isaac Biddle Thomas, Chester M. Wallace and Mrs. Clarence B. Watkins.

Actors last night were the Holbrook Botsets, Harold Geoghegan, Mrs. Alexander Logan Wilson, Mrs. Thomas McCance Mabon, Chester Story and Mrs. C. F. C. Arensberg.

Taking tickets at the door were Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby and Mrs. J. Sidney Hammond. Mrs. Jacoby's gown of light green crepe had panels of green and brown crepe hanging from the shoulder. Mrs. Sidney Hammond chose dusty blue crepe.

Beautiful Gowns Seen in Audience

A picturesque gown of white dotted swiss—with the dots in purple—was worn by tall, slender, brunette Vardi Marshall. It had quaint puffed sleeves and a sash of wide purple ribbon.

With her were Mary Rust in green organza, and Nancy Chess in a gay printed frock. Antoinette (Tony) Vilsack chose candy-pink net; Antoinette Chester, green crepe, fashioned with tiny sleeves, dropped below the shoulder, and a slight train; and Sally Fields, black satin, printed with dots of gold.

Mrs. Charles S. Wunder chose a gown of shell-pink mousseline de soie with a brief fitted jacket distinguished by fine tucking.

Other Prominent People Present

Frances Johnston was among the late arrivals. Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Jr., was there, and I saw Elizabeth Macfarlane, Madeleine McClintock, Mrs. A. C. Martin, Mrs. Roderick M. Chester, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy and Mrs. F. I. Merrick.

Another Concert Set for Next Week

All the concerts aren't over yet. There's to be one next week, given by the Musicians' Club of Pittsburgh and Associated Artists at Carnegie Music Hall Thursday night. Proceeds will be used for needy musicians.

Federation Work to Go On

By MRS CHARLES M. BREGG

While other clubs and their departments are bringing the season to a conclusion the motion picture council of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs is preparing to keep up its work during the summer and even to extend its field of activities.

The members plan to contact other organizations, schools, churches, service clubs—both men and women—with the idea of forming a larger better-films council and there is even talk of forming a pre-viewing committee to report on every picture release in this district.

Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert, motion picture chairman, and her committee members are continuing children matinees on Saturday mornings and will attempt development of this activity in every neighborhood.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

-:- Viewing the New -:-

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your SPYGLASS. FOR THE reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

Fond memories of the sandbox and dirty hands! Sweet recollections of sliding down various and sundry cellar doors! We have just finished poring over the newest of play suits . . . and have dropped 10 years off our age! (Not that 10 years would take us back to babydom, however!)

Anyway . . . they're candy-striped broadcloth . . . or checked . . . or plaid . . . and have nice details like white trimmings . . . and little sunbonnets (modern version of course) to match. Sizes 3 to 6 and priced at $1.95.

Then there's the waffle weave dress with contrasting coat and hat . . . for the same price. Imagine a whole outfit of 3 pieces for $1.95! A little white dress with roman striped coat and hat . . . which can be worn with other dresses if you care to work it out that way! With a silly little pocket in the dress to keep worms and hoptoads in, the way 3 to 6-ers do!

You who have been to the "shore" will remember seeing those little spindle-legged birds that run along the edge of the waves . . . "sandpipers" they're called. And we have discovered their namesakes for young America aged 1 to 3 years.

Little "trunks" these are . . . absolutely hand-knitted of pure wool (they have the labels) and quite the cutest things we've ever seen to encase little fronts and rears when they go "down to the sea in ships" or otherwise! With a ribbing stitch at edge of the leg holes and around the top . . . where an elastic snugs it in! Navy, copen, yellow and white! Adorably amazing . . . they're so chubby and cute! $1.95.

And when Brother and Sister have finished building their castles in the sand . . . put them into these Brother-and-Sister suits and frocks. They were just being unpacked as we arrived for a peep. Plain percale pantaloons for the boys with dotted voile tops and a little embroidered ruffle going down the front. The girl's frock the same . . . omitting the pant-business, naturally. (Button-on style in the suits) Sizes 1 to 3 . . . priced at $1.65 apiece.

Give them the modern sand moulds that are unshatterable. This prevents small splinters getting into baby hands and toes . . . and being made of this lightweight composition, they neither rust, nor have ragged edges like the old-fashioned ones. Complete set of 6 in colors . . . with sand scoop—$1.00.

The dance is being sponsored by the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Canice's Church, Knoxville.

Miss Agnes Way Is Honored at Luncheon

Miss Agnes Way, of Edgeworth, who was one of the first art teachers at the Pittsburgh Female College, was a guest yesterday at the P. F. C. Association's annual luncheon in the William Penn Hotel and was honored with a Chautauqua salute from the other 86 persons present.

A delightful program was given after luncheon, Miss Sara Jamison Logan singing two groups of contralto numbers, with Mrs. W. D. James accompanying, and Mrs. J. Charles Wilson reading a number of beautiful poems. Among these were five from the pen of Mrs. Galen C. Hartman, a member of the organization.

Bernice Williams Will Be Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Williams, of Hobart street, will be at home informally from 8 until 11 o'clock Sunday evening in honor of the confirmation of their daughter, Miss Bernice Williams.

Carnegie Groups Honor Graduates

The Diakonian and Pi Alhpa Theta classes of the First Presbyterian Church of Carnegie gave a banquet last night in honor of girls of the church who are graduating from high school.

SOFT WOOLENS FOR COUNTRY EVENTS

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

There is a fresh note in the high pockets on this high-necked spectator dress of basket weave sheer wool. It is one more demonstration of the wide shouldered silhouette so attractive to American women. The belt is made of braided string; the color is soft cocoa.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

AMERICAN DESIGNERS are to the fore these days in a type of costume that is, appropriately, most American of all. It is the spectator sports outfit which requires no sports whatever in the offing to make it reasonable as a choice to wear, though if sporting events come along, they are quite in the sartorial picture provided.

MAYBE IT IS the natural flowering of our earlier feminine decision to wear a polo coat as a casual topper in and out of the paddock; maybe it is because American figures look swell in easy, clean limbed designs which suggest freedom and action—and no one bothered to think up a better name for the designs than "spectator sports."

* * *

ANYWAY, THERE are lots of new things in this line just now. Keep an eye peeled for string costumes—frocks or suits. Don't miss the cotton coats of reefer design made of a new stuff which looks exactly like herringbone tweed. The knee-length coat of bright wool is a comer; so is the box fingertip jacket of linen or check gingham, for wear over plain silk or cotton tub frocks. All of them are excellent for country life, but many of them will never get off the city asphalt, where they will look quite as attractive.

Mrs. May Neff Re-elected by Pen Women

Mrs. Phineas Buchbinder, of South Linden avenue, although not a member of the organization, will open her home for a benefit for the League of American Pen Women on June 5. At its annual meeting in the Woman's City Club yesterday the league re-elected Mrs. May T. Neff as president.

Her cabinet next season will include Miss Myra Sawhill and Miss Suzanne Beatty, vice presidents; Mrs. A. J. Dawson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Chetser B. Story, recording secretary; Mrs. William Noble Zortman, historian; Mrs. Galen C. Hartman, registrar, and Miss Edith Bane, treasurer.

Ladies Auxiliary To Tour Plant

With Mrs. Le Roy Walker as general chairman the Ladies' Auxiliary to Duquesne Commandery, Knights Templar, will make a tour of the H. J. Heinz plant on Thursday, following it with luncheon and a business meeting.

Mother's Club Of Fraternity Organized

A Mother's Club of the Delta Delta Delta Fraternity of the University of Pittsburgh has been organized and will meet monthly in the chapter house, Bigelow boulevard.

The nominating committee consisting of Mrs. J. S. Praegner, Mrs. George J. Schmidt, Mrs. J. Edwin Froates, Mrs. W. B. Kelley, Miss Emma Smith and Miss Mildred Morrow, has reported this ticket: Mrs. Chester Johnson, president; Mrs. George J. Schmidt, vice president; Mrs. Malcolm F. Lewis, secretary-treasurer.

Chi Chi Chapter Election Tomorrow

Election of officers will take place tomorrow at the May meeting of Chi Chi Chapter, Alpha Chi Omega, for which Miss Irene Wood will be hostess at her home in Washington road, Mt. Lebanon.

Friends Restore Teachers Savings

GALLUP, N. M.—(INS.)—Gallup friendes of a crippled music teacher went toher aid with $500 contribution when she met with ill fortune in Los Angeles. The teacher, Miss Eileen Snelling, 23, who formerly lived here, lost that amount while moving from one apartment house to another in the California city. The money represented her life savings and was to have been used in obtaining needed medical aid.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Wonder if the President knows this . . . That the government created the NRA—which requires employers to trim working hours, raise wages, and demands that there be a five-day week . . . Yet, at the Federal "Pen" in Lewisburg, Pa., the guards labor seven days weekly—9½ hours daily . . . My colleague, Beau Broadway, embroiders an amazing story about that pale copy of Garbo . . . He says she was reported to have patronized an elegant emporium the other afternoon—and passed two hours purchasing $685 worth of merchandise . . . She thanked the intelligent salesgirl, who anticipated her every wish—which gave the salesgirl enough courage to ask the actress (on and off stage) for her autograph . . . "I'd be deeply honored," said the girl nervously, "if you would sign my book" . . . Beau Broadway says it was like one of those sudden summer storms. In a second the recent divorcee is said to have flown into a dither, to have scolded the girl and to have canceled the order! . . . The girl went into hysterics from fright and was certain she'd lose her job . . . But the management not only didn't fire the salesgirl for losing the order, but said to her: "Those things happen, forget it" . . . My colleague mentioned the star's name . . . I omit it—because she recently said I was picking on her.

This is my idea of an alert brain . . I mean the federal agent who was assigned to shadow a bank president . . . The banker suddenly turned around after the third day—and said to the agent: "Why are you following me this way?" . . . The sleuth thought fast—so fast it is the talk of his fellowmen . . . "I beg your pardon, sir," he stammered purposely, "I feel so ashamed. I've been taking a course on how to be a private detective—and I merely picked you. I'm so very sorry I've been such a failure, already." . . . The banker was touched . . . "My son," he counseled, "that's not a job for any nice fellow—don't spy on people. Come to my office tomorrow and I'll give you a job at my bank." . . . And then he shook hands with the government man . . . Across the street was another federal agent, also assigned to the same banker . . . He saw what happened and knew his comrade was "done for" . . . The other agent, of course, continued shadowing the banker, who now is in Atlanta.

Bill Halligan's wit packs a wallop . . . One of the boys was saying that he'd like to smother Peggy Joyce with diomands . . . "It's a good idea," flipped Bill, "but who diamonds?" . . . I liked Sammy Watkins' Mother's Day thought—Mother was the first to go off the gold standard—by giving her children her golden years for her silver hair . . . Billy Rose, though, wrote a song lyric that still gets me . . . It follows: "She never won a beauty prize on any stage or screen. She's not the type they advertise in any magazine. But you couldn't compare any lady, who's painted and powdered and curled—to that little old lady of eighty—the most beautiful girl in the world" . . . Mary Pickford is playing Toronto . . . C. B. Roger, who is at the Royal York Hotel there, is Buddy Rogers, "Love Thy Neighbor"—da, da, da, dee, da.

Foster to Direct South Seas Film

Norman Foster, husband of Claudette Colbert, is going to Tahiti to make a motion picture. He has written his own story, and will direct, and help to photograph it. This has been one of Foster's dreams for a long time. He will use an all-native cast, and there are to be many undersea shots in this locale, which is famous for its beautiful sea gardens. He prepared for the undertaking by making an intensive study of photography. As a "going-away" present, Miss Colbert gave him a new camera and a lot of film.

Nice Comedy In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Show-Off," George Kelly's comedy hit of a few years ago, is the pleasing screen feature in the Fulton, where yesterday's opening audiences had themselves plenty of laughs at the funny lines and humorous situations, which are real comedy, often edged with a little tear, never farcical, yet hilariously amusing.

This little comedy has had a more varied life than most screen vehicles. Originally it was a one-act play for vaudeville that later was expanded to standard length of three acts, in which form it was a hit of its season in New York, and on the road. The late Louis John Bartels, who played the title role, was thereby boosted from comparative obscurity to a recognized position as a leading comedian. It also was filmed as a silent picture, and now it appears as a better-than-average talkie, although slightly altered from its original version.

For one thing, the Fisher family appears to be in fairly moderate circumstances, instead of being a struggling group hit by other misfortune besides the marriage of a daughter to the loud-talking Aubrey Piper, a pest whose incompetence in all things is more than balanced by his ability to boast.

In the present talkie version the character of Aubrey is expanded still further, and he is given a chance to appear eventually with some of the qualities of a hero, a change that one is gradually prepared for through building up a little sympathy for him here and there as he tries to make good.

Spencer Tracy plays the title role with considerable gusto, and nice shading, exhibiting a flair for straight comedy of the exaggerated type, as well as the talent for pathos that should be a natural quality of an under-dog type, such as Piper becomes through his own penchant for trying to be a big shot.

Madge Evans appears to good advantage as the wife of the chap who has so little idea of responsibility that she has, first, to put her foot down, and then to walk out on him when her dream, that has been built on his hot air, is broken.

Clara Blandick, as the mother-in-law, is a constant laugh in freeing herself of correct opinions about her son-in-law, whom she appraises exactly even before he is a member of the family. Grant Mitchell hasn't much to do as the father-in-law, but registers never the less, to make the cast appear very top-notch.

Confused in Traffic, Pedestrian Injured

Confused by traffic, Thomas McDonald, 44, of Lincoln place, walked into the side of an auto while crossing the Boulevard of the Allies at Marion street last night and suffered a possible concussion of the brain, police reported.

He was taken to Mercy Hospital by the driver, Ralph Berry, 37, of 301 Belonda street.

Early Hour Scene in Street

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 18.—Hello! These warmish mornings (you can call it unusual weather if you like) suggest early rising—so, just to be different, let's see what the deserted Hollywood boulevard looks like about 8 a. m. (The time when all columnists should be snoring).

A quick buzz to the top of the Laurel Canyon Mountains reveals a startling sight—four coyotes are feasting on a farmer's unfortunate chicken . . . Shopgirls are breakfasting at Sardi's . . . Chet Vanderlip, the banker, enjoying a brisk walk in the early sunshine . . . The Stern brothers (Abe and Julius, who were once famous comedy producers, but are now in real estate) are staring at buildings . . . Henry Bergman, ex-owner of Henry's popular cafe, waddles out of the Knickerbocker for coffee and thin toast . . . A giddy girl in the Brown Derby drops scrambled eggs on her evening gown . . . Ralph Wolfe, the cartoonist, skips over to a safety zone for a street car . . . and so the boulevard goes to work.

Surprising no less is the news that Benjamin (always called Barney) Glazer, a highly successful screen writer and Paramount associate producer, is leaving the studio within a few weeks.

There's a nice contract awaiting his signature, but Barney has decided to take another European trip (he only came back from one a few months ago) and think over the whole matter before again signing up.

Of course, the movies demand a certain amount of realism. Julie Hayden was given an important role in RKO'S "Afterwards" and was determined to make a definite impression with the portrayal of a hysterical and screaming widow.

Julie, it seems, got a trifle too excited with the part. She actually screamed her vocal cords out of commission, and now the picture is held up until her voice does a comeback!

Wanderings Around Hollywood . . . Peggy Fears will arrive June 1 to take up her Fox contract for acting, writing and producing . . . It's fairly certain Eddie Robinson will star in "Four Walls" for M-G-M. His Warner contracts permit one picture on the outside . . . Jeanne Hart is SO BUSY with a role in "The Merry Widow" and a play at the Beverly Hills Drama House . . . Gene Towne and Graham Baker will grind out about three scenarios for Fox.

* * *

Instant relief from SORE, BURNING feet---new way

New soothing vanishing foot cream ends misery instantly—or no cost

FOOT specialists have just perfected a marvelous new vanishing cream that is bringing instant, lasting relief to thousands suffering with sore, aching, burning feet—corns, bunions and callouses.

This remarkable cream contains those two world-old unguents—frankincense and myrrh—used by the ancients for centuries to heal away foot burns and aches caused by the hot sands of the desert.

Medicated baths, plasters and powders fail to bring lasting relief because they do not reach the real cause of sore, burning feet. But Coolene, as this pain-relieving cream is called, is quickly absorbed by the feet and gets right down to the irritated nerves and tissues—quickly soothes and cools them—relieves congestion in the tiny veins—and, almost like magic, your sore, aching, burning feet feel refreshed, easy, and walking becomes a joy.

Fame

—Imaginary News Item.

In a club on Wall street, a group of men sat around and talked vaguely. Their eyes were heavy, their expressions sad.

"Well," said one, "the old man's gone."

"Yes," said another. "He's gone all right. And he certainly was a great guy."

"A great guy," repeated a third.

"We'll miss him," observed a fourth. "The world will miss him. He did plenty for everybody. More than people realize."

"Don't know about that," said the first. "I think almost everyone knows what wonderful things he did. What about his war contributions? How about his great charities? Don't you suppose those things are known to the Man on the Street?"

"That's right," nodded the second. "We knew him for his great financial deals and his kindnesses to us. But the other things are all known to the man on the Street."

"I think so, too," agreed the third. "The Man on the Street is not as dumb as he's often supposed to be."

The fourth man sighed.

"Maybe you're right," he said. "And I certainly hope so. Gregory Miggs was a great man, and he can't be forgotten by the Man on the Street. He was a swell guy."

"A swell guy," echoed the other three. . . .

In a restaurant in the Forties, three theatrical men lingered over their cordials.

"Just my luck," muttered one. "Miggs has to go and die just when I was counting on him to back my next production. It's tough. The old man was a damned good pal of mine."

"Mine too," offered the second. "He helped me out of many a spot. I lost a good friend when he went."

"You can say it again," cried the third. "Old Gregory Miggs was a wonderful man. He'll be missed by the theatrical business—and by Wall Street."

The first man smiled quietly.

"Others will miss him, too," he said. "Gregory Miggs will be missed most of all by the average man—the Man on the Street." . . .

Lying in state, the body of Gregory Miggs was viewed by crowds of the curious — and a curious crowd.

There were sister teams who had long since passed their prime and who had been supported by the kindly old man for years. There were elderly bankers for whom Gregory Miggs had made fortunes. There were acrobats and movie stars and writers and Wall Street clerks.

There were big shots and little shots; famous names and infamous dames. There were authors and producers; margin clerks and bond salesmen. But greatest of all was the endless procession of the "Men on the Street."

These were average people; men who had had no actual business contacts with Gregory Miggs. They knew him only for his fine, upstanding, charitable character; a character they had read about many times in the newspapers.

The funeral of Gregory Miggs was attended by dignitaries from every corner of the country. Outside the church there were police on foot, on horseback and on motorcycles to keep the huge crowd at a respectable distance. When the great throng grew unruly and started to break through the lines, the reserves were sent for.

Inside, eulogies were delivered by several of Gregory Migg's oldest friends. They paid tribute to the greatness of the man, and to the many fine things he had accomplished in life. One of the speakers reached the middle of his eulogy—and then broke down.

His audience broke down with him . . .

"But perhaps the greatest tribute to the dead man," read a portion of one newspaper account of the funeral, "was given by the Man on the Street.

"They came from all over, these humble admirers of the late Gregory Miggs. Their hearts had been saddened by his untimely death and they paid their respects in the only way they knew. Unable to gain admistance to the church, they stood for blocks around and prayed silently. Only when the services were over did they break through the poice lines and mingle with the crowds that were pouring from the church.

"Gregory Miggs divided his life into two portions, business and charity. He was highly successful in both. And a more convincing proof of love and devotion than that given at his funeral by the Man in the Street, has not been offered in this city in many years.' . . .

The Man in the Street entered his flat, threw a small book on the dining room table and sat down with a sigh of relief. He grinned at his wife.

"I knocked off early today, Mamie," he said. "I went to a big funeral."

"Who died?" asked his wife.

The Man on the Street shrugged his shoulders.

"I dunno," he replied. "Some guy named Miggs, or Riggs, or somethin'. But what's the difference? Just gaze into that little book and take a peep at the swell autographs I collected"

Old Gray Mare Plays Hero Role

HAMILTON, Mo., May 18.—(AP.)—The old gray mare at the J. M. Puckett farm may not be what she used to be, but she's a heroine anyway.

A calf strayed into a pasture where mischievous mules were grazing. The animals started after the calf and attempted to paw it. The old mare went to the rescue.

Contract of Dunn Is Renewed

Fox has renewed its contract with James Dunn, for an extended period following his appearance with Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell and Ginger Rogers in "Change of Heart." Dunn, whose recognition in films came after his portrayal in "Bad Girl," has appeared in a series of pictures teamed with Sally Eilers and more recently with Claire Trevor. His current production is "Baby Take a Bow," in which he continues a screen partnership with Claire Trevor and takes up a new one with Shirley Temple, the 5-year-old youngster with whom he appeared in "Stand Up And Cheer!"

Double Bill In Warner

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Mystery and horror, honeymooners held imprisoned in the glorified prison of a madman scientist, counteracted by a modern comedy in the manner of smart sophistication make up the double-bill attraction in the Warner.

"This Man Is Mine" features Irene Dunne, as the wife, painfully slow in developing a good human backbone, and Ralph Bellamy, as the ever-right young husband, who is dumb enough to fall for the catch-then-leave-them flirt, Constance Cummings. Kay Johnson, as the out-spoken sister-in-law, who believes in keeping place, is a character you'll appreciate, for she amuses you in a story that itself is too familiar to be ultra-entertaining.

From the light handling of modern marital problems, you are almost catapulted to the extremely deep gloom of "The Black Cat," with its heavy atmosphere. In making the screen version of Poe's shuddering horror classic no attempt was made to follow the original story. Merely the suggestions arising from it were used.

Young honeymooners forced to share their compartment with a half-mad doctor meet with an accident on a storm-swept road. The doctor takes them to the nearby home of the man whom he has sworn to kill, the man who caused his imprisonment and then stole his wife.

Strange, impossible things take place in the house built atop a soldier's graveyard. The couple are imprisoned, the young wife prepared to be offered up in weird rites to Lucifer in the dark of the moon. Only after a number of horrible deaths do they escape.

The whole story, with its creepy angle of preserved women and a black cat that cannot be killed, is done with a little too much drag; the tendency is to prolong the agony of the unknown, batter down nerves. The result is a definite slowing up of the action. Boris Karloff is the woman-mad scientist, Bella Lugosi, the mysterious doctor, and their playthings, the honeymooners, are David Manners and Jacqueline Wells, puppets in the hands of the dark-browed men of few words.

Pathe News provides the only short, giving you glimpses into the news of the day between the showing of the features.

Seek Cohan to Play In 'Life of Ziegfeld'

HOLLYWOOD, May 18.—(AP.)—George M. Cohan will be asked to portray Florenz Ziegfeld, it was reported today, in a film based on the life of the late showman, to be produced by William Anthony McGuire, author, playwright and producer for Universal Pictures. McGuire will be assisted by Billie Burke, widow of the Follies impresario, in the preparation of the biography.

Mae West Style Passe at College

MEDFORD, Mass.—(INS.)—The Mae West type of girl has lost her popularity at Tufts College, the students favoring the slim girl with the advent of summer.

MOONEY PLEA REJECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—(AP.)—Without passing on the merits of the case, Judge A. F. St. Sure rejected on technical grounds today a habeas corpus appeal instituted by Thomas J. Mooney in an attempt to gain freedom from prison and exoneration of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing.

The federal jurist suggested Mooney might bring such action in the State Supreme Court, and, if defeated there, could then either appeal to the United States Supreme Court or ask the Federal District Court here for relief on a writ of error.

The new case followed by a little more than a year Mooney's acquittal by direct verdict in the Superior Court of San Francisco on an old murder charge that was left pending 17 years ago when he was first tried and convicted.

Proper Foods Help Keep Cold Infection Down

Experiments Prove Lack of Vitamin A in Diet Lead to Infections of Nose, Throat and Lungs

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York, Former Health Commissioner of New York City
(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

A cold is an infection. The poison is effective because the body resistance is low and unable to fight the "cold germ." These germs are ever about us. If the general health is poor from wrong diet, inadequate diet, constipation, lack of sunshine and rest, it is almost impossible to escape catching cold.

To aid the body in overcoming a cold, it is important that proper nourishing food be eaten. It should be wholesome and easily digested. Every effort should be made to serve the food attractively, in order to stimulate the appetite.

Foods containing vitamin A should be abundantly included in the diet. This vitamin raises the vitality and resistance of the body. It is believed to keep the mucous membrane linings of the digestive tract and the respiratory tract in healthy condition.

VITAMIN A IMPORTANT

For years, experiments were conducted on animals and human beings to determine what effect vitamin A had on their general health. It was found, when little or no vitamin A was included in the diet, the nose, throat and lungs became infected and the eyes became sore. If neglected, pneumonia and tuberculosis may follow. Individuals susceptible to colds and infections are immediately warned to enrich their diet with foods plentiful in vitamins, especially A and D.

Many foods contain these valuable substances. Chief among them are liver, butter, egg yolk, milk and cream. Green leafy vegetables, such as spinach and greens, carrots, apricots, peaches and bananas should be included in the diet. This wide choice permits of a varied and well balanced menu.

In addition to vitamins, it is necessary to include alkaline foods in the diet. Alkaline foods are basic foods. They help maintain what is called the "alkaline reserve" of the body. I believe better health would be enjoyed if more base forming foods were eaten. These foods balance or neutralize the effect of acid forming foods.

The best alkalinizers or base forming foods, are milk, vegetables, fruits and nuts. I have heard many housewives say, "but I always thought oranges and lemons were acid forming." They certainly taste "acidy." The taste of these and other fruits are indeed sour and acidy, but their reaction chemically in the body is alkaline. They should be included liberally in the diet. They give that feeling of well being. They promote vim, vigor and vitality in the body.

WATCH ACID FORMING FOODS

The acid forming foods are eggs, meat, fish, cereals, pastries and breads. These are healthful foods and have a definite place in the diet. But they should not predominate. If acid forming foods are in excess of base forming ones, the alkali reserve of the body is destroyed. The body then becomes susceptible to colds and infections.

After a cold has started, many persons take soda and other remedies, trying to "throw off the cold." Instead of resorting to medicines, next time you are afflicted, include the proper food in your diet. Modern science has proven that foods containing vitamins and basic substances give the body a resistance against germs and bacteria. Avail yourself of this knowledge and protect the health of your family and yourself by proper eating.

Papal Countess Wills 2 Millions

ST. LOUIS, May 18.—(AP.)—Catholic organizations will receive the bulk of the estate of Mrs. Theresa Kulage, a Papal countess, who died last Saturday at the age of 72. The will left about $1,900,000 to Catholic organizations after specific bequests to relatives, totaling $100,000.

Mrs. Kulage was made a Countess of the Holy Sepulcher by Pius X for her gifts and zeal in maintaining shrines in the Holy Land.

Monkey or Baboon? Court to Decide

ATLANTA, May 18.—(AP.)—The Georgia Court of Appeals has been asked to determine the difference between a monkey and a baboon.

The question arose in arguments on the appeal of Asa G. Candler, from a $10,000 verdict won by Mrs. Mary Smith, for injuries alleged to have been inflicted by a monkey—or was it a baboon?—in Candler's zoo.

Arrival of Stork Brings Burglar Scare

PORTLAND, Ore., May 18.—(AP.)—Neighbors reported that burglars were at work in a drug store, and Sergt. Maxwell and Patrolman Lawrence rushed to the scene with drawn guns.

VARIOUS WAYS FOR SERVING BERRIES

With strawberries so plentiful and cheap housewives are introducing the delicious fruit to their meals in as many ways as they can possibly think of. Served plain with a dab of whipped cream or milk or combined into desserts, they form a colorful, healthful dish.

Consequently, Prudence Penny was doubly pleased when an especially fine strawberry julep pie appeared in her day's mail which she could pass on to you. She plans to serve it to a group of her friends coming in for Sunday night supper, who are especially fond of delicacies.

Now that you've been profiting so much from other women's recipes, do your part by sending in your favorites to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. If they appear in the prize column, you'll receive by mail within a few days either a $5 or a $1 check. Since so many recipes are submitted, none of them are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. CARMELLA PEPE,
685 Washington street, Mt. Lebanon.

STRAWBERRY JULEP PIE

Three cups strawberries.
One and one-fourth cups sugar.
One and one-half cups water.
Four to six sprigs mint or one-half teaspoon mint flavoring.
One and one-half tablespoon unflavored gelatine dissolved in one-fourth cup cold water.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Mash and hull strawberries, drain well. Bruise mint. Mix sugar, salt, water and mint. Bring slowly to a boil. Simmer slowly for ten minutes, remove mint leaves and pour over soaked gelatine. Stir until dissolved (if mint flavoring is used, add here). While gelatine is still hot, pour over strawberries. Stir. Let stand until gelatine is ready to set. Pour into a baked pie shell. Chill in refrigerator. Before serving cover thickly with sweetened, whipped cream.

Then add the lamb, seasoning and the curry powder dissolved in two tablespoons cold water. Add the water to mixture merely to the depth of one-half inch. Cover closely and simmer on top of the stove, or in the oven for two hours. Serve on rice.

STRAWBERRIES LUSCIOUS IN MERINGUE

Strawberries are luscious in meringue cases, especially at this season when they can afford to be so plump and red at such tempting prices. Even more delicious is the meringue filled with custard ice cream topped with strawberries. The ice cream may be made with the egg yolks left over from the meringues. Pink rhubarb sauce, thickened slightly with cornstarch and served over ice cream is something to make lips smack. A special rhubarb sauce for this purpose is sweetened by adding an equal part of crushed canned pineapple to the rhubarb instead of sugar.

MERINGUE TORTE — 6 egg whites, 1½ teaspoons vinegar, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1-16 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat egg whites and salt until stiff. Sift about 2 tablespoons of sugar over the whites and beat until sugar is thoroughly mixed. Continue adding the sugar until all of it is in, adding vinegar gradually during beating. Add flavoring. Line two cake pans with wet brown paper and bake in slow oven (250 degrees F.) about an hour, depending on size of meringue. When cool, spread ice cream over one layer, cover with the other, top with strawberries and serve. Whipped cream may be used as a garnish.

GRAPEFRUIT SALAD—1 cup diced grapefruit, ½ cup diced pineapple, ⅓ cup French dressing.

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Take More Kindly View, Stepmother Advised

She doesn't LIKE her STEPCHILDREN. And she is AFRAID. Because she has a baby of her own now—and the TWO CHILDREN who belonged to ANOTHER WOMAN are more difficult than ever to deal with.

They have so MANY LITTLE WAYS that aren't HER WAYS. Neither are they the WAYS of the MAN SHE LOVES . . . And she wonders what she should do. Discipline is so severe a task for her, and the path of least resistance she feels will not be right . . . And so she frets.

Her own baby is lovely. A little of God's own perfection . . . but those two others . . . what a BUGBEAR they are.

She says:

I have been married for four years, and before I was married I had hoped to make a real home for these two children of my husband's by a former marriage. I hadn't seen them before the wedding, and when they did loom up before me it was as a nightmare to me.

Miss Brunot

NOT LIKE HUSBAND

They aren't the least bit like my husband. They are dark and he is fair, and they have such grouches and are so domineering, and are running through the house all the time, mussing everything up. I haven't a minute's peace. And since my own baby has come, and she is such a perfect little cherub, it makes these two other children all the more impossible.

It isn't that they are bad. And they both are smart; in fact at times, too smart. And even impudent. But when I mention it to their father, he gets angry, and takes their part. If they are to stay with me they must conform more to my ways, don't you agree, Miss Brunot?

No, sister, I do not agree . . . I read a book this very week, "Crowded Hours," by Alice Roosevelt Longworth, and it is a book that should be put into the course of preparation for every stepmother . . . Never once during the 333 pages does Alice Roosevelt Longworth actually praise her stepmother, but even so, all through the story the second Mrs. Roosevelt, who became the wife of Theodore Roosevelt when Alice was but a baby, plays such a sweet, wholesome part.

STEPMOTHER ENCOMIUM

In each chapter she comes into life so amiably, so necessarily for everyone else's happiness, that somehow the entire volume, instead of being a tribute to the great "Teddy," became an encomium to stepmothers as they should be.

It was to this woman Alice first told of her approaching marriage . . . She says:

"I put off telling (of my engagement) for a long time. Finally one evening I followed mother into her bathroom and told her the news while she was brushing her teeth, so that she would have a moment to think before she said anything . . ."

What an understanding there was between these two. Alice was well aware this woman did a heap of thinking before she spoke her opinion on things, and she knew this thinking was wise and considerate.

Now, I wonder, sister, if your thinking was of that kind when you spoke to your husband of his children who are not your children? Or were you thinking only of yourself and your baby?

Have you taken these two young strangers into your home as if they were and always will be a part of it? Or are you weighing ways and means to make them outcasts? Which is it, sister? If each time you answer yes to the latter part of my questions, then you are a wicked, scheming woman, and I have no use for you.

And I wouldn't want to be your stepchild for all the wealth of Golconda. Have a heart, woman, learn to put yourself in the places of others. Wake to the beauty of all budding individuality, and learn to live and let live.

INDIFFERENT IN SCHOOL

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl in high school, and go with a boy a year older than I. I know he cares, but in school he acts as if he didn't. The other day one of his friends told me that was his nature. I was pleased, for he and I have almost been on the "outs" over his attitude.

I was at a skating party the other night, and although he asked me for all my skates, yet he scarcely spoke a word to me. I skated once with another boy, and he asked me what was the matter with my boy friend and me, and I said he never paid any attention to me only at parties out of school. He said that the reasosn was my boy friend did not believe in this one girl idea, and was trying to let me see how he felt.

I don't believe this. My friend never goes with anyone else but me. I could have plenty of boys, but do not do so, because I am faithful.

What shall I do?

A DAILY READER.

You got what was coming to you, for prowling around and discussing your boy friend with everyone. Don't you know that if you go out hunting BAD NEWS, you are sure to get it. Personally I think your boy friend is sensible not to pay attention to you at school. When there, one should be listening to lessons and learning, rather than obeying the dictates of the heart. Try and think more of your school work and less of this love affair, and I am sure everything will turn out right.

I feel sure the boy likes you, and also respects you. And you should be grateful, rather than critical, that such is the case.

Announcing Secret Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you advise me which is the proper method of announce a secret marriage which took place several months ago? Is it proper for the bride's parents to send out engraved announcements to intimate friends of the family, friends of the bride, the bridegroom and mutual friends of both the bride and the bridegroom. If so, should these annoncements follow the same form as though the marriage had been recent?

There is no rule about this, and it is for the bride and her family to decide what they would prefer doing. Many people feel, and quite wisely too, I think, that if there is too long a time between the marriage and the announcement there is a certain degree of poor taste in sending formal announcements. They feel, and again, rightly, I believe, that since the marriage was so unconventionally circumstanced, the more informally the news is "spread" the less attention will be called to the unconventionality.

If you agree with this point of view, then the thing to do is to tell the relatives on both sides, at once, by word of mouth if possible, or by letter if they live too far away, and then tell the friends of both. And you'll find that the news will spread fast enough, without benefit of formal announcements.

However, there is nothing incorrect about sending these formal announcements. If they are sent, they are worded just as if they were sent directly after the ceremony, that is, the wording must include the date of the marriage and the place at which it took place:

Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's Parents) announce the marriage of their daughter
Patricia
to
Mr. Alan James Roberts on Tuesday, the first of June Nineteen hundred and thirty-three

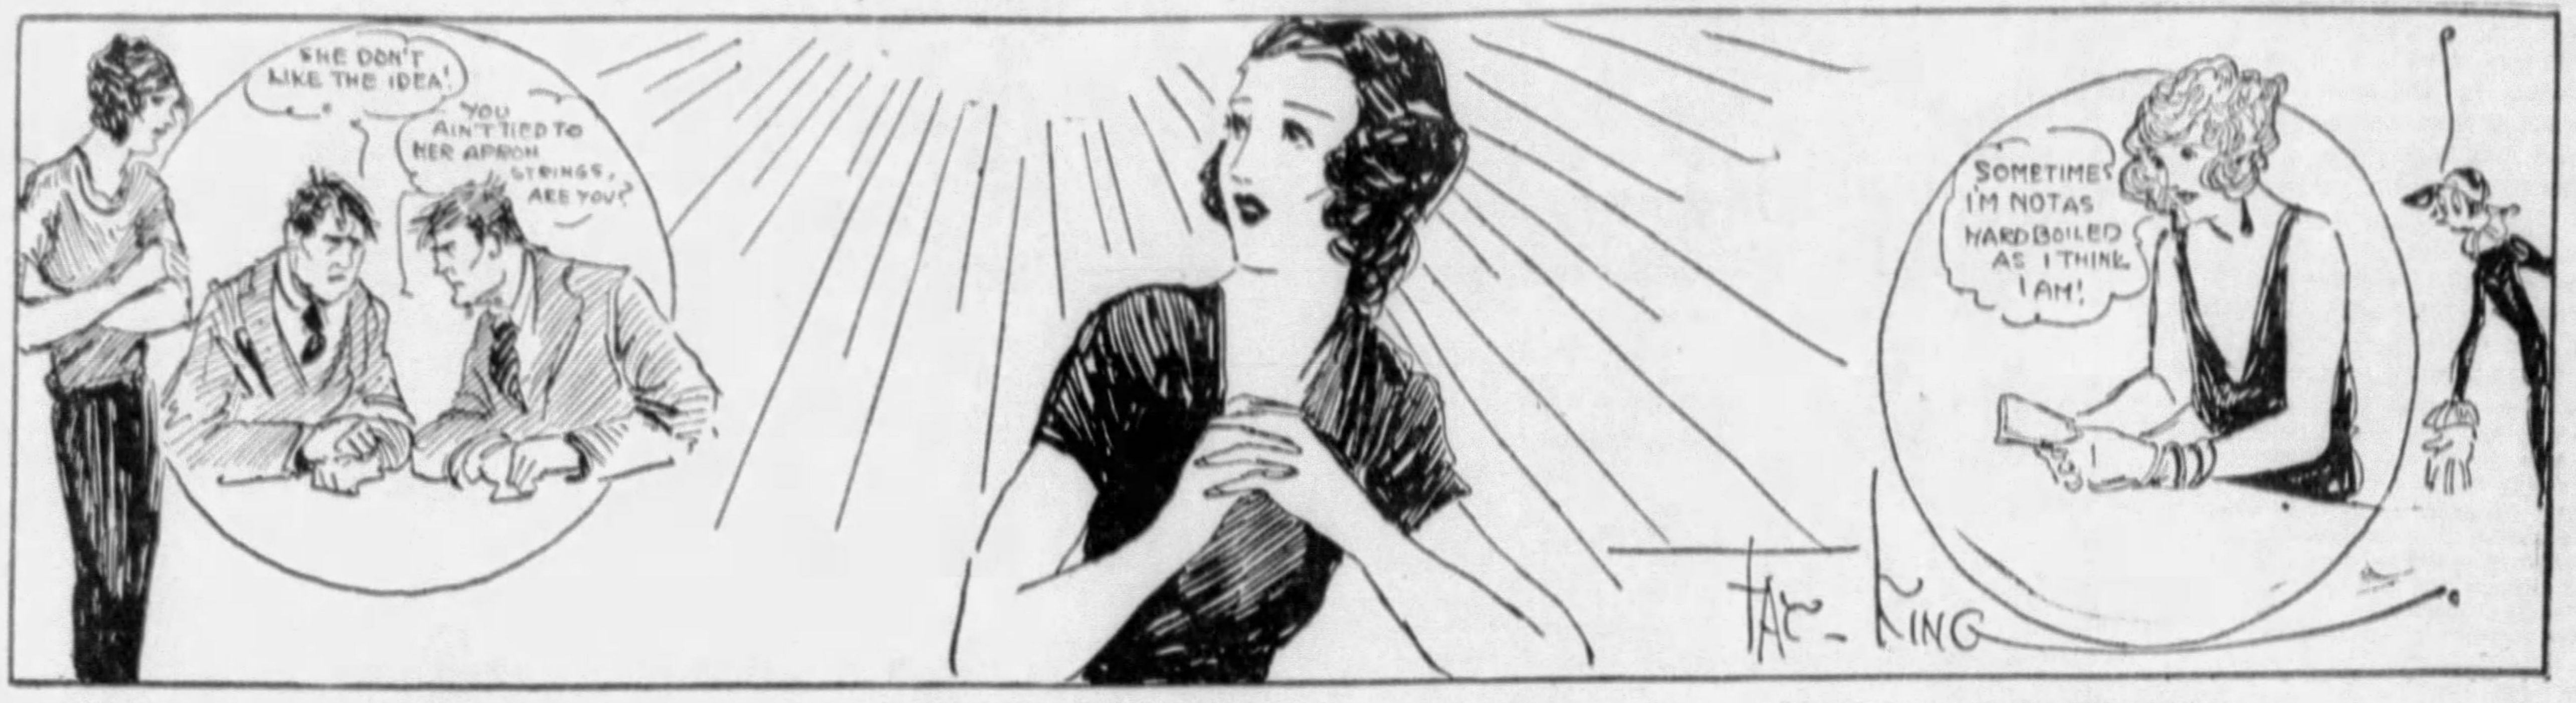
Woman Always Maintains Spark of Goodness, Says Fay King



SHE DON'T LIKE THE IDEA!
YOU AIN'T TIED TO HER APRON STRINGS, ARE YOU?
SOMETIMES I'M NOT AS HARDBOILED AS I THINK I AM!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Few women have ever strayed so far or sunk so low that no spark of goodness or tenderness remained.

No matter how hardboiled and bitter women may become, some golden grains of worthiness will survive and shine forth from the worthless sands of their lives.

Beneath the most repelling masks they may assume, there is sure to be some tenderness and sweetness still.

Woman's natural inclination is toward the ideals of life. In the most hopeless environments she will improve her surroundings as best she can, with the little she has.

If it seems she does not do this, one may still believe things might be worse without her.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Epilepsy Due to Physical Disorder

For many years epilepsy was a greatly feared affliction. It was looked upon with horror. The ancients avoided persons having this disease, believing the sufferer was possessed of a demon. It is only within the past century that this superstition was destroyed. Now every effort is made to help the afflicted.

Dr. Copeland

The word "epilepsy" is derived from the Greek word meaning a "fall" or "seizure." An epileptic attack, convulsion or "fit," as it is commonly called, may occur at any time or place. The sufferer becomes rigid and stiff, or the attack may be characterized by repeated jerkings and twitching of part of the body, or all of the body. As a rule the victim loses consciousness and rarely recalls what happened during the attack.

The severity of the attack depends upon the form or type of epilepsy. For example, "grand mal" is a severe form of epilepsy. In this condition the sufferer loses consciousness and during the attack may have several convulsive seizures. "Petit mal" is the milder form of epilepsy. In this form the sufferer does not lose consciousness. Convulsions may or may not be present.

Epilepsy is a symptom of some physical disorder. It is really not a disease, but is a sign of some internal disturbance. In many cases, it can be traced to an injury or blow received during delivery at birth. Excessive fatigue, constipation, nervous excitement, chronic alcoholism and constitutional infections are other exciting causes that must not be overlooked. Many authorities believe the disease is hereditary.

There is a common belief that the sufferer from epilepsy has an inferior or defective brain. This is not true. Some of the greatest minds in the world have been victims of this strange malady.

I am often asked whether epilepsy is curable. The affliction is curable only if the underlying cause can be determined and removed. In order to determine the cause of epileptic seizures, it is often necessary to resort to special laboratory tests. The sufferer must remain under prolonged medical observation. Bear in mind, too, that drugs are helpful but not curative. Do not resort to any remedy unless it is prescribed by a physician.

Another common mistake made is the confusion of epileptic attacks with hysterical attacks, fainting spells and ordinary convulsions. In children, convulsions can often be traced to chronic constipation, ptomaine poisoning, rickets, undernourishment or high fever. When the underlying cause is known and eradicated, the attacks do not recur. This type of convulsion must not be confused with true epilepsy.

It is probable that many who suffered from childhood ailments, were brought up wrongly, on the belief that the sufferers were the victims of epilepsy.

Answers to Health Queries

Worried. Q. — Is whooping cough a very serious disease?

A.—If proper care is taken, this is not a serious disease. It usually lasts two weeks but the child should be kept at home for one week after the "whoop" has disappeared.

The yolk of an egg will remove chocolate, coffee or mud stains from any kind of material without harming the fabric.

Apply lightly with a piece of flannel, wash off with a tepid, soapy lather, then rinse in cold water.

Lights, especially those in the bathroom and in the child's bedroom, should have pulls or switches which he can reach.

Where the switch is inaccessible a light in each room should be made to function with a chain pull.

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Warning Shouted by Katie

At Katie's excited shriek, "Coom qveeck, somebody!" my father and Hugh started simultaneously for the door. Hugh reached it first, but both men turned and barked out a peremptory command to Lillian and me.

"Lock this door after us, and stay here until we come back!"

Then they were gone, but Lillian and I stretched our obedience until it cracked. We knew that it would take but a second to close and lock the door, and Dicky's room was sufficiently far away to insure our having plenty of time to bar our entrance even if Lee Chow should succeed in reaching the corridor and eluding the powerful grasp of Hugh Grantland.

My father's physical strength we did not count, but we knew that his resourcefulness and quickness of thought would be no mean factors in any contest with the maddened Oriental.

With Lillian's hand upon the door knob, we stood together in the doorway, tensely watchful, listening for further sounds from the room in which Lee Chow was confined, and from which Katie's frantic appeal for aid had issued.

There were enough of them to keep our attention busily occupied—repetitions of Katie's shrill little cry, a hoarse shout from Jim, "I've got him, but don't let go!" the sound of a door violently opened as my father and Hugh reached it, and then Lee Chow's high-pitched, wailing voice, changing to a paean of joy as it called out:

ALONE WITH PRISONER

"Hugh! Hugh! At last! Now I can be saved!"

Then there were silence for several seconds, followed by the sound of an opening door, and my father's voice said:

"Very well. We will leave you alone with him. Do you want us to stay within call?"

There was a suggestion of impatience in Hugh's reply.

"No, No! But, Chief" — the impatience was now lost in deference — "if you could come back in fifteen minutes—"

"I'll be here," my father said, and before he could speak again Lillian and I had moved cautiously back into the nursery, and she had noiselessly closed and locked the door.

"Do you think he'll come back here?" I whispered.

"On the knees of the well-known god," she whispered back. But an instant later my father's knock sounded on the door panel and Lillian opened the door.

He did not advance into the room at first, but stood smiling at us quizzically, yet with a hint of sternness.

"Men have been hung for less," he said, and I gave a little gasp, but Lillian did not turn a hair.

"It was worth even that penalty, Chief," she told him with her gamin grin. "Madge and I would have died of curiosity, anyway, allee, samee the famous or infamous old cat, if we hadn't kept the door open. But I might have known we couldn't get away with it. Yet I would swear that door closing made no more sound than a humming bird's wing settling into place."

DETECTED BY LIGHT

"It didn't," my father retorted. "My ears did not detect your crime."

He was smiling broadly now at our mystification, but the next instant both Lillian and I exclaimed together:

"You saw the difference of the light when it closed!"

"You remember your lessons well," he said approvingly.

"But we didn't remember 'em in time," Lillian said ruefully. "However, nobody else in the world but you would have had the sixth sense to note that, while absorbed in that problem of leaving Hugh with Lee Chow. Be sure I shall remember next time that you have as many eyes as a centipede has legs, and that every one of 'em is focusing every instant, whether you're asleep or awake."

"Let us hope there will be no 'next time,'" my father rejoined a bit sternly, and it was not for several seconds that I gathered courage to put the query which had been upon my lips ever since I had heard Katie's shriek.

"Why did Katie call out? Had Lee Chow been able to hoodwink Jim?"

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Sacrifice Bidding

Favorable distribution is the basis of almost all safe sacrifice bidding—that is, bidding deliberately undertaken with the expectation that a penalty will follow, but with the hope that the penalty incurred will not be as great as though the other side were permitted to play at its own best contract.

In today's hand, which was played in a recent Duplicate game in New York City, there was a tremendous conflict in the results attained by the opposing players. Those who realized the defensive possibilities of the East and West hands scored heavily, while others who permitted North to play the contract found that their hands lacked defensive possibilities. A number of players holding the North cards made five diamonds, and some of them were doubled by East. On the contrary, one West player, who made a Pre-emptive Overcall of four spades, was doubled by North, permitted to play the contract, and fulfilled it when North opened the Ace of diamonds, which West ruffed and returned a small trump, which was passed by North. West was thereby enabled to discard one of his losing clubs on the established diamond King in the Dummy. This, of course, was extremely bad play, but hands of this type present difficult problems in the choice of an Opening lead, and in many cases North's lead might have proved to be a winning defense. However, theoretically the correct choice of an Opening lead would be the club Ace, and when the Dummy appeared on the table, a shift to a heart would be clearly indicated.

The hand was:
North, Dealer.

North:
♠ A 8 7 5
♢ A Q J 9 7 2

West:
♠ K Q J 10 4 3
♡ K J 10 7 3
♣ 10 3

East:
♠ 9 6 2
♡ Q 8 6
♢ K 8 4
♣ Q 8 5 2

South:
♡ A 5 4
♢ 10 6 5 3
♣ K J 9 7 6 4

North	East	South	West
1 ♢	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♠
3 ♢	Pass	5 ♢	5 ♠
Double	Pass	6 ♢	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

West should probably bid six spades over South's bid of six diamonds, but decides to leave it to his partner in view of North's Penalty Double of the five-spade contract. East's Double, in view of West's Forcing Pass, is probably the best course of action.

Where the best results were obtained by the East and West players the bidding went as follows:

North	East	South	West
1 ♢	Pass	2 ♣	4 ♠
Double	Pass	5 ♢	5 ♠
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

It is an open question whether North should not bid six diamonds over five spades when his partner has declined to permit the Penalty Double of West's Pre-emptive Overcall to stand. South, in view of the fact that his partner, vulnerable, has twice doubled the adverse Pre-emptive Overcall, cannot be blamed for passing the second Double. The correct defense against five spades requires the laying down of the club Ace, followed by an immediate shift to a heart. The club King should then be led, upon which North should discard the heart 9. This line of play permits North and South to cash two trump tricks, two club tricks and one heart trick, defeating the Declarer three tricks, a penalty of 450 points, less 100 for the honors held.

(Tomorrow's Hand.)

North:
♠ 10 5
♡ A 10 3
♢ 9 7 6 4 2
♣ A 7 5

West:
♡ K Q J 6 4
♢ A 8 5
♣ Q 10 8

East:
♡ 9 8 7 5 2
♢ K 10 3
♣ J 9 6 3

South:
♠ A K Q J 9 8 7 2
♢ Q J
♣ K 4 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Scorch Stains

Scorch stains can be removed in any one of three ways, advises the Bureau of Home Economics. If the stain is light, soap and water will remove it. The second way is to wet the spot with water and expose to the sun for a day, longer if necessary. The third is to place a cloth wet with hydrogen peroxide over the stain. Next place a second cloth, a dry one, over the two layers and iron with a medium warm iron. Ironing directly on the cloth wet with hydrogen peroxide leaves rust stains.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The woman whose hands bear moth patches will find that they often disappear in the winter season. They are half sisters of freckles, produced by sunlight, or mysterious changes in the pigment of the skin. Strong bleaches will remove them if they have not been too long established. These preparations must not be compounded by the amateur cosmetic mixer, so formulas cannot be printed.

Tincture of green soap will often clear up a budding case of acne. The alcoholic content acts as a cleansing agent. It is rubbed in with the finger tips on a moist skin surface, and the friction helps, too. Several rinsings are necessary for its removal. It sticks like all get-out. When eruptions are large, with yellow points, they should be lanced with a sterilized needle (hold the needle point in a flame) and the deposit pressed out gently with fingers covered with gauze.

If you would do one good beauty deed each day give yourself a good scouring with warm water, soap and a heavy brush. Many distressing complexion defects are due to a skin that does not function properly. The list includes blackheads, pimples, oily skin and enlarged pores. By scouring the entire body surface, the skin performs more actively as an eliminating organ, and the delicate glands on the face have less work to do. No jumping in and leaping out of the tub but a good washing and rinsing—and perhaps a talcum rub.

Washed with Chipso at least 14 TIMES, Betty's turquoise sweater is as soft and unfaded as new.

Chipso
QUICK SUDS
Snowy white..without harsh treatment
Don't endanger clothes you have spent good money for by washing them in cheap flakes or strong, harsh soaps and powders. Chipso is not adulterated with harsh, "dirt-cutting" ingredients. It loosens dirt quickly because it is SOAPIER. Its RICHER SUDS are SAFE. Nothing in them to dry out your hands, fade colors or injure the finer pieces in the wash. And it takes so little Chipso to make a big suds that the large box at its low price is a wonderful value—the best value in rich, safe soap on the market today!
"I may have a washboard downstairs, but I don't know what it's for any more," Mrs. C. R. Benkert told us. "When you have good Chipso suds, dirt comes out without hard rubbing.
"I get more suds out of Chipso than from other laundry soaps I've tried. Chipso suds fill the tub. They don't die down to a miserable scum when the clothes go in. That is why it is so easy, with Chipso, to get the clothes clean. I don't have to boil the white pieces. Chipso makes them WHITE AS SNOW. Yet Chipso is particularly SAFE FOR COLORS. I never have any trouble with things fading now. I am sure all the clothes wear longer for being washed with such a safe soap.
"Chipso helps me hurry through dishwashing, too. It makes a rich body of suds to take up the grease and it agrees with my hands like a good toilet soap. I couldn't get along without my regular supply of Chipso. Sometimes I buy a dozen boxes at a time just to make sure of having plenty on hand!"

STOCKS MOVE IN ERRATIC TREND

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—Financial markets today appeared to have lost the inflationary urge which yesterday gave speculative sentiment a touch of buoyancy.

Nimble traders in stocks displayed considerable timidity about following the sharp rally of the previous session and quiet profit taking was the rule during the major part of the day's proceedings. Hopes of further improvement in the wake of governmental silver rejuvenation were abundant, but there was no scramble for equities generally. Overnight consideration of the Washington silver accord seemingly dispelled the idea that drastic currency expansion was imminent.

Many of the commodities were hesitant. Silver futures were only slightly higher and the price of the bar metal was lowered ⅛ of a cent to 44¾ cents. Wheat and other cereals sagged notwithstanding no relief in the drought-stricken Northwest was in sight. Rubber was just about steady. Cotton was a bit reactionary. Bonds exhibited some improvement. The dollar held to a narrow range in foreign exchange markets.

Shares dipped and rallied indifferently during the early hours. The utilities, including Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey, were resistant. The metals were heavy, United States Smelting losing 3 points, and Howe Sound, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco yielding around a point each.

Several financial commentators were not so sure that the proposed silver bill will be of lasting significance marketwise. That the legislation may put the entire matter in the President's hands was reassuring to various "sound money" quarters which have been cheered in recent weeks by the administration's apparent swing to the "right."

There was some confusion as to whether the silver measure would be a mandate or a permissive act, but banking circles believed the only obligatory phase of the law would have to do with policy. Consequently, it was felt that any extensive purchasing program probably would be on an "if and when" basis.

Brokerage observers expressed the view that the important thing in the agreement on silver was that it settled a problem of politics that might have muddled the government's recovery policies. All signs, it was argued, point to the probability that the President does not want currency inflation, at least for the moment.

The industrial sector was pleased with the report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics showing that factory employment and pay rolls in April reached the highest point in many months. Employment was up 1 per cent over March and pay rolls advanced 3.8 per cent. The index of factory employment, standing at 82.3, was the highest point since 1930. Pay rolls stood at 67.3, the best rate since June, 1931.

COTTON EASES ON SELLING

NEW YORK, May 18.—Cotton futures opened easy, 2 to 5 lower under overnight liquidation and foreign selling on continued unfavorable textile news and favorable weather. May, 11.42; July, 11.52; October, 11.69; December, 11.80; January, 11.87; March, 11.97.

In addition to some trade and commission house demand there was a little buying attributed to Japanese interests, but the continent was reported a seller here, and there appeared to be a little more selling from the South. Prices sagged off to 11.47 for July and 11.79 for December by the end of the first half hour, with active months showing net losses of about 6 to 9 points.

Trading was quiet later in the morning with the price movement comparatively narrow. There appeared to be some resting orders in the market to buy on the declines, but the rallies met further scatting liquidation and the market at midday, was ruling around 11.43 for July, or about 10 to 12 points net lower.

WHEAT CLOSES AT DECLINE

CHICAGO, May 18.—With announcements that the nation's 1934 wheat harvest would begin in Texas next week, Texas furnishing 25,000,000 bushels or more, prices sagged late today.

Late selling of wheat was headed by houses with connections east. Earlier, the market had shown frequent rallies, largely because of reports of less favorable crop conditions northwest, notably North Dakota, where prospects were described by crop experts as about the least promising in many years.

Wheat closed weak, 1⅞@2¼ cents under yesterday's finish, July 87½@87¾, corn unchanged to ½ higher, oats ¼ to 1 cent down, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

Communications Code Hits Small Firms

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

THE PROPOSED NRA code for the communications industry might seriously cripple the business facilities of smaller investment houses and might compel the abandonment of many branches of New York Stock Exchange members, according to statements made at recent hearings in Washington.

The joint and reciprocal use of private wires would be restricted under the proposed code.

Throughout the entire country there is a network of private wires devoted to the use of the various branches of the securities and brokerage business. Except in the cases of large organizations whose business warrants the use of wires for their own communications exclusively, each line is shared by several firms.

Fast Comunication Found Necessary

FAST COMMUNICATION, which can be provided only by the use of private wires, is essential for brokers and is almost as important for investment security dealers. Only by the use of these lines can inquiries for quotations be supplied to customers promptly and orders executed without loss of time which night prove costly.

Small firms at points far from New York could not bear the heavy expense of leasing wires entirely for their own use. It is only by arrangements for sharing these facilities that the service can be made available to these houses and their customers.

Might Greatly Change Business

THE EFFECT of the proposed code might be to concentrate much of the brokerage and investment business in the hands of a few large firms in the principal inland cities. In addition it might entirely deprive smaller cities of adequate facilities for buying and selling securities.

While speculators would be greatly affected, genuine investors also would be handicapped in carrying out their transactions. Throughout brokerage and investment circles it is felt that the provision, if kept in the code, would deprive the public of a valuable and necessary service without any compensating advantages

DEAL INVOLVES INSULL UNITS

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—Control of certain public utility companies in Ohio, formerly of the Insull group, has passed to the Utility Service Co., affiliate of the Manufacturers Trust Co., of New York under a compromise agreement involving banking creditors of the bankrupt National Electric Power Co., it was announced today.

Under the arrangement the Utility Service Company has acquired from Central Eastern Power Company controlling interests in Ohio Electric Power Co., the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co., and the Reserve Power & Light Co.

By the same agreement the Manufacturers Trust Company receives 200,000 common shares of New England Public Service Co., from the Irving Trust Co., of New York, trustee in bankruptcy for National Electric Power Co., and interests held in Columbus, Delaware & Marion and Reserve Power & Light by Penn-Southern Power Co., and Penn Central Light & Power Co.

BEET SUGAR CONSUMPTION

Beet sugar consumption in the United States during April amounted to 131,600 long tons, raw sugar value, according to B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar brokers. This is an increase of 16,207 tons over the consumption of April, 1933. For the first four months of 1934 consumption amounted to 537,250 tons, an increase of 109,545 over the same period last year.

WOOL SUPPLY LOWER

The total supply of combing and clothing wools, exclusive of carpet wools, in the United States on May 1, including the estimated unshorn portion of the new clip, was 460,000,000 pounds, grease equivalent weight, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service, compared with 521,000,000 pounds on May 1 last year, and 500,000,000 pounds at the same date two years ago.

RAIL EQUIPMENT OUTLOOK

Railroad equipment manufacturers have a fairly substantial backlog of orders, but current inquiries are not numerous, according to trade quarters. The amount of buying for delivery early in 1935 will be determined by the traffic outlook in the fall.

ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT

Restricted building activity continues to find reflection in a limited movement of electrical appliances, except those for household use. The latter show a good sales volume as compared with a year ago.

HOME HARDWARE ACTIVE

Call for lawn mowers, screen door and window frames, wire screen cloth and garden hose feature the current active call in the wholesale hardware market. Retailers are said to be enjoying the best spring volume in two years.

BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE

Baldwin Locomotive Works has received an order from the Boston and Maine Railroad Company for five mountain type locomotives at an aggregate cost of about $625,000.

GROCERY DEMAND HOLDS

Reports in trade quarters indicate a well sustained wholesale demand for groceries and canned foods. Orders for dried fruits also show some expansion.

UPHOLSTERY PRICES EASE

Prices of furniture upholstery have eased recently, due to the spotty demand for merchandise. Furniture manufacturers, who will soon be shopping for their fall requirements, are watching the situation closely.

LOCAL MARKET UNCHANGED, QUIET

There was no change in the character of the dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today as prices continued to fluctuate in a narrow range and business was confined to scattered odd-lot transactions in the early part of the session. On the "big board" the list was inclined to level off following yesterday's sharp advance on the strength of the proposed silver legislation and the possibility of further revision of the stock exchange control bill.

The vigorous upturn in industrial shares in New York yesterday failed to stir the heavy manufacturing issues on the market here. Fuels also remained quiet, but they displayed a fairly firm tone on the few trades recorded. Street sentiment was somewhat improved but there was no evidence of a disposition to force the advance enjoyed by the market yesterday. Trade reports noted the expected lull in business activity, but steel operations seemed to be holding steady near the peak of the current movement.

CAR LOADINGS DOWN 2,466

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—The American Railway Association announced today that loadings of revenue freight for the week ended May 12 were 601,739 cars, a decrease of 2,466 below the preceding week but 66,933 above the corresponding week in 1933 and 84,479 above 1932.

King and Church Streets Branch, Toronto, Canada.

The payment to shareholders of record at the close of business on the 15th day of May, 1934, and whose shares are represented by registered certificates of the 1929 issue, will be made by cheque, mailed from the offices of the company on the 31st day of May, 1934.

The transfer books will be closed from the 16th day of May to the first day of June, 1934, inclusive, and no bearer share warrants will be "split" during that period.

The income tax act of the Dominion of Canada having been amended, effective April 1st, 1933, to provide that a tax of 5% shall be imposed and deducted at the source on all dividends payable by Canadian debtors to non-residents of Canada, the above mentioned tax will be deducted from all dividend cheques mailed to non-resident shareholders and the company's bankers will deduct the 5% tax when paying coupons to or for account of non-resident shareholders. Ownership certificates will be required by the paying bankers in respect of all dividend coupons presented for payment by residents of Canada.

Shareholders resident in the United States are advised that a credit for the 5% Canadian tax withheld at source is allowable against the tax shown on their United States federal income tax return. If it is desired to claim such credit the United States tax authorities require evidence of the deduction of said tax.

In order to secure such proof ownership certificates (Form No. 601) must be completed in duplicate and the bank cashing the coupons will endorse both copies with a certificate relative to the deduction and payment of the 5% tax and return one certificate to the shareholder. If forms No. 601 are not available at local United States banks, they can be secured from the company's office or the Royal Bank of Canada, Toronto.

Note—The company has adopted the policy of paying dividends semi-annually instead of quarterly as heretofore.

Holders of bearer share warrants who have not yet exchanged talons for a new supply of dividend coupons (Nos. 41 to 60), should detach talons and forward them by registered mail, with return address, to the Secretary, International Petroleum Company, Ltd., 56 Church street, Toronto, Canada.

By Order of the Board,
J. R. CLARKE, Secretary,
56 Church street, Toronto 2, Canada.

Removal Of Doubt Needed

By B. C. FORBES

Twelve months ago and even six months ago, wherever and whenever men met, the talk was all of what Washington had done, what Washington was doing, and what Washington was likely to do next. President Roosevelt and his lightning achievements were almost universally lauded. His popularity recalled that of President Wilson during his triumphal visit to Europe.

Mr. Forbes

Washington and President Roosevelt still form the theme of a majority of conversations. The financial world is keenly concerned over what Washington will do to lift the capital-raising deadlock and to subject security exchanges and business corporations to bureaucratic regulation. In the business and industrial world the activities and the future of NRA are still daily discussed. The labor world, as well as employers, are concerned as to Washington's future labor policies.

YES, THINGS political are still more discussed than any other subject.

But during recent months other topics have begun to attract more attention.

A WAGE earner or executive will remark:

"Our company has taken on—more workers."

A common comment:

"Did you notice that so-and-so corporation increased its dividends?"

One woman observes to another:

"I went shopping on Saturday and found the stores more crowded than in months."

The rise in prices is frequently mentioned.

An often-expressed intention:

"I am planning to take my vacation early this year, because I expect business to get much brisker when fall comes."

"We have been adding to our sales force."

"We are increasing our advertising schedules."

"Our orders on hand are the best in three years."

"What are the best securities to buy?"

"We are going to be able to send our children to camp this summer."

"The new car I bought, a ——, is a dandy—the best performer I ever had."

"I wish I had bought a refrigerator sooner—what a comfort it is."

The latest moving pictures are freely discussed, the wherewithal having again come within the reach of millions of families.

"We are planning to send our boy to college, after all."

THESE ARE samples of the themes of a growing number of conversations, indicating that the people of this country are progressing towards normal, economically and mentally.

Indeed, one might go further and say that there is increasing desire among ordinary folks to relegate politics and all the distractions and uncertainties of politics to the background, a desire to live their own lives, to attend to their own ordinary affairs, and to forget, as far as feasible, the nightmare of depression.

BUSINESS LULL UNDER WAY

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—Signs of business recession were noted today in the weekly trade review of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. The report said:

"Droughts, unseasonable weather, undetermined outcome of pending legislation and curtailed operations in many industries have left in their wake instability of prices and a less insistent demand for merchandise, accompanied by the gathering of labor clouds over some of the chief centers of production.

"There has been no weakening of confidence in the immediate future and resumption of the uptrend, with more vigor than that which characterized it even during the first quarter of the year, doubtless will be achieved as soon as distribution receives the benefit of more normal temperatures and producers of goods will have been given a clearer appraisal of the administration's policies."

Lumber Bookings Lower for Week

NEW YORK, May 18.—New business booked at the lumber mills during the week ended May 12 was less than any week, excepting one, since February, and production was at a lower rate than in any of the four preceding weeks, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

'SOAKING RICH' HELD BAR TO RECOVERY

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Economic dilettantes in Washington and elsewhere talk glibly in vague humanitarian terms about redistributing wealth and income.

Mr. Rukeyser

Whether the ultimate objective is "the more abundant" life for the average person or the mere sadistic effort to "soak the thrifty," the movement has immense practical importance.

Much of the unintelligent business baiting results in a mere depreciation of assets, rather than a socially desirable redistribution of wealth.

The trouble with most of the agitation is that it has not been related to realities. Few have taken the trouble to inquire as to the underlying facts.

TREND WAS BETTER

My own viewpoint favors making such adjustments as will actually raise average living standards.

On the other hand, I am emphatically opposed to muddle-headed witch burning, which results only in a net reduction of aggregate wealth and income in the United States.

Since the year 1928, there has not only been a redistribution of wealth and income, but there has also been a harmful net depreciation of total assets and of aggregate national income.

Few impartial observers would argue that the distribution of wealth and income in 1928 was ideal, yet the record indicates that the trend was toward a progressively larger reward to those engaged in productive work.

Since 1928, the depression has consisted of an uneconomic shrinkage in the total volume of business, wealth and income. Accordingly, the acutely immediate problem is not redistribution of wealth and income, but restoration of wealth and income to previously attained levels, which assure higher living standards than have prevailed in these subnormal years.

RECORD CITED

In brief, the statistics of national wealth and income indicate that it is unnecessary for politicians to organize to "soak the rich." Deflation and depression have already done that job thoroughly.

Between 1929 and 1932, the aggregate net income from capital (after deducting business losses) decreased by almost twice as large a percentage (78 per cent) as the income realized by those who receive salaries and wages (40 per cent). Moreover, the decline in the net income of individuals reporting $10,000 per year or more (79 per cent) was about twice as great as the decrease in total salaries and wages received. The large incomes ($100,000 or more) shrank most of all, with a decrease of 91 per cent.

Furthermore, in 1909 "employe" income was computed at 55 per cent of the national income; in 1932 and 1933 it was about 80 per cent of the national income. By 1932 net property income had fallen to less than 10 per cent of the national income.

'PHANTOM' BATTLE

These statistics, compiled impartially by the government, tend to indicate that the fight against the capitalist is largely a "phantom" battle.

When the profits of entrepreneurs are properly set up as wages to gainfully employed risk bearers, the case becomes even more striking.

Of the 10 per cent or so of the national income which goes to capital, it should be borne in mind that much of the capital is owned by wage earners and salaried folk.

April Plate Glass Production Lower

Total production of polished plate glass by members of the Plate Glass Manufacturers of America for the month of April was 8,629,381 square feet, as compared with 9,926,359 square feet produced in March, and 4,679,776 square feet in April, 1933.

FEDERAL GOLD HOLDINGS EXPAND

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—A $7,000,000 recovery on the governments' recent $10,000,000 gold loss was reported by the Federal Reserve Board.

Figures for the week ended May 16 put the federal gold stock at $7,753,000,000, representing a net decline of only $3,000,000. The $10,000,000 loss was reported by the Treasury without explanation in its cash statement of May 10.

The reserve system, however, reported a net loss of only $1,222,000 in its gold certificate holdings, less than half the reduction in the government's metal. The United States Treasurer's accounts with reserve banks declined $15,000,000 during the week while the item "other deposits" in which $100,000,000 of Treasury funds have been included, dropped $3,000,000.

The daily average volume of federal reserve bank credit outstanding during the week ended May 16, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,484,000,000, a decrease of $2,000,000 compared with the preceding week and an increase of $196,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On May 16 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,473,000,000, a decrease of $11,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $16,000,000 in treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks, $8,000,000 in money in circulation and $7,000,000 in non-member deposits and other federal reserve accounts, offset in part by an increase of $16,000,000 in member banks' reserve balances and a decrease of $3,000,000 in monetary gold stock.

The system's holdings of bills discounted decreased $3,000,000, of bills bought in open market $1,000,000, of United States bonds $2,000,000 and of United States treasury notes $3,000,000 while holdings of treasury certificates and bills increased $3,000,000.

THREE MINOR LEAGUE CLUBS SERVE AS BUC FARMS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Mungo Ranks With Best. Swift's Streak Broken. Dykes Gets Some Advice. ◆ Trade Doubly Satisfying. Irish Show Jump Star. Olympians as Officials.

There is nothing of a disturbing nature in a defeat at the hands of Van Mungo, and the loss of the first Eastern game to the big Brooklyn right-hander is not to be taken as an indication that the Pirates are falling into a slump right at the beginning of the hard trip. For Mungo, when in stride, and he evidently was in stride yesterday, has better than a 50-50 chance of beating any opponent. With the best fast ball in the league, he has more stuff than many pitchers of greater fame, and when he happens to be clicking it's a huge contract for any club to beat him. Honus Wagner remarked not long ago that with a month of the proper coaching and handling Mungo could be developed into the best pitcher in baseball.

Van Mungo

The tough-luck defeat suffered in the extra-inning duel by Bill Swift, whose pitching would have won any ordinary game, broke a long run of success the Pirate hurler had enjoyed at the expense of the Brooklyn club. It was Swift's first loss to the Dodgers since he dropped a 4-to-1 decision to Fred Heimach on August 17, 1932, and in the meantime Bill had beaten the Flatbush club seven times in a row.

CHANGING HURLERS MAIN JOB OF PILOT

If you'll take the word of Connie Mack for it—and Mack has had what might be called a fair amount of success through a stretch of more than three decades—there's nothing to the deep, dark secret of running a major league ball club except knowing when to pull your pitcher, and then to do the pulling swiftly and without hesitation. That's what Connie told Jimmy Dykes when that former pupil, after being appointed manager of the White Sox, visited the old master in quest of advice.

It was Dykes himself who revealed what Mack had told him. Connie explained to the new skipper of the Pale Hose that his only task would be to manage his pitchers. The sage of Shibe Park went on to say that once a manager gets an idea a pitcher ought to come out, he must pull that hurler as though his life depended on it, no matter what anybody else may say. If he doesn't, according to Mack, the pilot always will be second-guessing himself and taking the ball game to bed with him, and both are fatal to any manager.

REYNOLDS DEAL SATISFIES BOTH SIDES

The sensational hitting of Carl Reynolds this spring has led enthusiastic Boston fans to pronounce the trade in which the outfielder was acquired as one of the best ever made by the Red Sox. Rogers Hornsby wants it understood that he is equally well satisfied with what the Browns got out of the deal. Insisting that he did not make a mistake in letting Reynolds go, though admitting Carl is a good ball player, Hornsby holds that the deal helped the St. Louis club.

Carl Reynolds

In exchange for Reynolds, the Browns got Ivy Andrews, Smead Jolley and cash. For Jolley and Jim Levey they obtained Shortstop Alan Strange, and with the cash they bought Outfielders Ray Pepper and George Puccinelli. The last-named player was dropped last week, but the Rajah contends that with Strange, Andrews and Pepper on his club he is better off than he would have been if he had kept Reynolds.

The jump of Reynolds, discarded by three American League clubs within two years, from a batting average of only .286 in 1933 to a mark above .400 this season, continues to be the talk of the junior circuit. One "explanation" offered, that it is "due to the livelier ball," doesn't fit in with the facts. The uniform ball in use in the majors, though livelier in the National League, is precisely the same as the one previously employed in the American, except in the color of the stitching. This was officially confirmed recently by President William Harridge in giving American League clubs permission to use in emergencies any of last year's baseballs that might still be in stock. National League clubs are not allowed to do this, because the uniform ball is different from their former type.

NOTRE DAME BRINGS STAR HIGH JUMPER

One of the greatest high jumpers in the country will be seen in action at the Pitt Stadium tomorrow during the Pitt-Notre Dame track meet, when Vince Murphy, of the Irish squad, makes his first local appearance since he began to win national acclaim. The Notre Dame star has cleared the bar at better than 6 feet 5¼ inches in competition this season, and has bettered 6 feet 6 inches in practice.

Murphy will not be appearing in a section of the country where good high jumpers are rare or unappreciated. There was Bill Robusch, old Pitt star, who used to hold the district record. And then, just a few years ago, there were two high school boys who thought nothing of beating 6 feet 3 inches in competition. They were Howard Spencer, of Fifth Avenue High, the Negro star who has since developed at Geneva into the best in the district's history, and Cooper, of Westinghouse.

Right now there are two more high school cracks, both of whom will be in competition tomorrow on the same field as Murphy. They are Bennett, of Bridgeville High, and Lewis, of Rankin, and both are bettering six feet. Competing against each other in the W. P. I. A. L. meet, to be held in conjunction with the Pitt-Notre Dame dual tussle, these two may learn something worth while from the Irish star.

OLD OLYMPIC HEROES HANDLE LION MEET

Charles D. (Chick) Werner, new track coach at Penn State, has lined up an impressive list of visiting officials to assist the home staff in the annual interscholastic track and field meet to be held at State College tomorrow. Harold Osborn, former world high jump champion, who in 1924 set the official world record at 6 feet 8½ inches; Blondy Romig, one-time Penn State distance star, and Milton Angier, long holder of the American record for the javelin throw, are the visitors who will serve. All three are former Olympic team members.

Chick Werner

Romig is well-known to collegiate track followers as one of Penn State's best runners of all time. It was about 10 years ago that Romig was racing around the oval over which he will preside tomorrow. Osborn and Angier are University of Illinois products, both former teammates of Coach Werner at the Mid-West institution. Osborn won the decathlon as well as the running high jump in the 1924 Olympic Games. He also set a record in the high hurdles at the National A. A. U. meet some years ago. Angier, though not so well known, was none the less a champion.

Welterweight Title Rivals in Training for Bout

JIMMY M'LARNIN (LEFT) READY TO SHOOT A RIGHT AT SPARMATE

Rivals in one of the outstanding matches of the outdoor season this summer, between two champions, Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross, for the former's welterweight title, drilling in their training camps for the 15-round melee, at Long Island City, one week from next Monday night. Ross is the lightweight and junior-welterweight champion and hopes to become a triple titleholder. McLarnin is training at Atlantic City and Ross at Ferndale, N. Y. The other big battle is the Primo Carnera-Max Baer engagement for the heavyweight crown in the same ring, June 14. These are International News Photograph Service pictures.

PANTHER COACH WORRIED OVER IRISH MEET

By JESS CARVER

Coach Carl Olson, who does more worrying over nothing than any other ten men, is having a swell time all by himself as he whips his Pitt Panthers into trim for their dual meet here tomorrow with Notre Dame. The worrying he did prior to the Temple, Penn State and West Virginia meets was merely amateur stuff compared with what he's been doing over Notre Dame.

Judging from the strength of the Irish and their record to date, Coach Olson might claim justification, for once, for his brow creasing. He was offside in fretting over Temple and the Lions and Mountaineers, for the three squads combined couldn't have taken Pitt this Spring. Notre Dame, however, has plenty of class and strength and figures to furnish the locals with plenty of trouble.

Coach John Nicholson and his Irish squad are due to arrive in town this evening. The Pitt meet gets under way at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow, an hour and a half after the annual W. P. I. A. L. championship carnival gets going.

The scholastic meet, by the way, looms as a wide open affair, with any one of three or four schools having potential strength enough to annex the honors. Oliver High, with Art Thomas, star sprinter, in form, has about as good a chance as any.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE OBDURATE DIAMOND—Each diamond mined, no matter how large, presents its individual problem of cutting, but none has vexed a diamond cutter as much as a 5¾ carat gem taken from the "big hole" in Kimberley, South Africa, a few years ago. For three years a privately-owned cutting factory in Kimberley has tried to cut this diamond for setting without success, for the stone cuts into the cutter's wheel. The diamond still weighs the same as when mined. The owner of the recalcitrant stone has now given up the task of cutting it and is retaining it just as an expensive curiosity. It can't be cut, but, Believe It or Not, it would be broken if thrown violently on a concrete floor. UNASSISTED TRIPLE PLAY—Walter Carlisle was playing center field for Vernon in the Pacific Coast League against Los Angeles, July 19, 1911. First and second bases were full when the batter popped a short fly just back of second. Carlisle, coming in fast, took the fly for a putout, stepped on second base, forcing the runner who was trying to make third, and then ran down the other man before he could return to first.

Their most pretentious far system in full cultivation, Pira officials today were sure their la est venture would be a big succes In previous years, the Pittsburg owners had hookups and workin agreements with various team but in most cases the results we written into the Pirate books i red ink. Under the new arrange ment the local team is protecte against financial loss.

Messrs. Benswanger, Watters an Gibson, of the Pirates, have ju completed arrangements whereb the Buccos are to get the pick o the crops harvested at Little Roc of the Southern Associatio Springfield of the Mid-Atlant League, and McKeesport, of th Pennsylvania State League. Th latter circuit enjoyed a successfu opening yesterday.

DIFFERS FROM CARDS

The Pirate "farm" plan diffe from the St. Louis "chain" sy tem in that the Pittsburgh clu does not own the teams wit which they work on the co-opera tive idea. Touching on this phas of the case, Pirate Presiden Benswanger said:

"We were unfortunate enough to lose money in the Tulsa venture because we controlled that team in a period when few corporations, baseball or otherwise, were making money. We do not own the Little Rock, Springfield and McKeesport clubs, but we have agreed to supply players, so naturally we will have the first chance to purchase these boys if we feel so inclined."

Benswanger also disclosed tha practically the whole makeup o the Little Rock club were boy sent to that class A team afte being harvested from smaller cir cuits and sandlot teams by Pirat scouts. Thus the Buccos kill tw birds with one stone. The farm provide a spot where the promis ing players may be sent, and th schooling gives the recruits a pol ish that often lands them wit major clubs.

Speaking on impressive rookie the Pirate president added:

"Among the players of our Little Rock farm are Elmer Trapp, of Wilkinsburg; Leo Nonnenkamp, fast outfielder who played in the Mid-Atlantic League; Catcher Walter Van Grofski, of the N. Y.-Penn. League, and Outfielder Nick Etten, of the Mississippi Valley League. Nonnenkamp and Etten are among the leaders of the league and Van Grofski has fought his way to the first-string berth."

ERROR BEATS BUCS

NEW YORK, May 18.—Ea Grace's wide throw to first bas gave the Dodgers a 2-1 victory ove the Pirates at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, yesterday as the Bucco opened their Eastern invasion. Bi Swift and Van Mungo hooked u in a classic mound duel in th opener.

The Stengels scored a run in th first round and were then blanke by Swift through eight chapter Suhr and Lavagetto hooked u two hits to tie the score in th second and the battle continue in a runless manner until th tenth.

Mungo started the tenth w a double and Boyle w[illegible] hit wi a pitched ball. ST. LOUIS BROWNS PRESS LEADERS IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

BRUINS REGAIN LEAGUE LEAD IN NATIONAL

Associated Press

Stimulated by the influence and example of Manager Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis Browns have begun to assume a threatening attitude toward their American League rivals.

After a bad start which allowed them to remain out of the cellar only because of the Chicago White Sox were even less successful, the Browns wound up their recent Eastern tour with a flourish of four victories in their last five games. Returning home yesterday they avenged two defeats in Boston by trimming the Red Sox, 4 to 3, moved ahead of the losers into sixth place in the standing, virtually tied with Washington for the next higher notch.

RAJAH HITS HOMER

For seven innings the Browns couldn't do a thing with Fritz Ostermueller, rookie left hander. Then Hornsby inserted himself as a pinch hitter in the eighth after another pinch batsman, Al Bejma, had doubled, and smashed a homer that tied the score at 2-2. Rap Pepper and Earl Clark followed with doubles and Oscar Melillo singled for the other two St. Louis runs.

The Detroit Tigers made the only other American League gain as the Western clubs, starting their home stands, swept the program. The Tigers beat out the league-leading Yankees, 5 to 4, to give Tommy Bridges his first triumph over New York and moved into third place. The White Sox shoved Philadelphia down to fourth by defeating the A's, 7 to 2, in their first home game under Jimmy Dykes' management.

Cleveland's Indians spotted Washington four runs in the first two innings, then cut loose with a 17-hit attack on four Senator pitchers that produced seven runs in the seventh and a final score of 14 to 6.

CUBS TAKE LEAD

The Cubs regained the National League lead in their first game in the East as Chuck Klein socked his tenth and eleventh homers and led the way to a 10-3 triumph over the Phillies. Pittsburgh dropped to second place when Earl Grace made a wild throw past first trying for a double play in the tenth inning of a hurling duel between Van Mungo and Bill Swift and the error gave Brooklyn a 2-to-1 decision.

The St. Louis-New York struggle for third place remained unchanged as both clubs won. The Cards defeated Boston, 5 to 3, as Virgil Davis and Manager Frank Frisch hit homers to back Paul Dean in his third pitching triumph. Big Fred Fitzsimmons pitched and batted the Giants to a 6-to-3 victory over Cincinnati, giving only four hits in the first seven innings and helping out with a homer.

Maranville Rests After Operation

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 18.—(AP.)—Resting comfortably after an operation to facilitate knitting of an imperfectly healed broken bone in his left leg, Walter J. (Rabbit) Maranville faced with a cheerful smile the dreary interval before he can know if he will be able to resume his 21-year career as a major league ball player.

An operation was performed on the Boston Braves second baseman by Dr. Ralph Fitch at the General Hospital yesterday afternoon to bring the slightly parted break together.

After the operation his leg was placed in a cast for the second time since it was broken early in April in a slide to home plate during a training camp game with the Yankees.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Barney Ross, training for his bout with Jimmy McLarnin, is going in heavily for the Popeye special—spinach. He hopes his weakness for it will make him strong.

The Ross-McLarnin fight falls on the anniversary of the ascension of Benny Leonard to the lightweight throne, which occurred on May 28, 1917, when Benny won by a technical knockout over Freddie Welsh in nine rounds. Benny is picking Ross to win.

Mayor Lysle, of McKeesport, will throw out the first ball when the McKeesport State Association team opens its season against Washington Sunday.

Eli Radakovich, of Duquesne, is beginning training for the Toronto marathon swim. He has engaged in this event the last four years and hopes some day to win it.

Back in 1930, Radakovich, who now is only 22 years old, collapsed after covering 13 miles of the 15-mile grind. The next year he dropped out after four miles because of the intense chilliness of the water. In 1932, he went 10 miles, and last year he finished sixth. He quit after seven miles in the Hearst swim at the World Fair in Chicago last year.

Radakovich is handicapped in his training by the fact that he does a heavy mill job at the McKeesport Tinplate plant and has poor swimming facilities at hand near his home. He'd like to get a job which would lend itself more favorably to his conditioning and is figuring on going in for lifeguarding at a pool during the summer months. He is a former A. M. A. 200-yard junior champion and won a five and one-half mile marathon at Wheeling a few years ago.

It has been a long time since a more ridiculous assertion has been made than that of Pop Foster, manager of Jimmy McLarnin, that the latter's world welterweight title will not be at stake in his bout with Barney Ross because he is being compelled to come in at 145 pounds, two pounds under the class limit. The championship most certainly is at stake so long as the challenger makes the weight of the division, regardless of what the champion weighs.—HARRY KECK.

MILLVALE CARD COMPLETE

The card has been completed for the opening outdoor boxing show at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night, in the main bout of which Dominic Mancini, local lightweight, meets Harry Dublinsky, of Chicago.

Promoter Bus Vogel put the finishing touches on his program when he signed Teddy Movan, of McKeesport, and Ray Eberle, of Aliquippa, to box one of three five-round bouts.

Solly Dukelsky, of Chicago, stablemate of Dublinsky, meets Billy Holt, local Negro middleweight, in the eight-round semifinal, and Jack Dalcherone, Springdale middleweight, takes on Steve (Levandowski) Levine and Ralph Gizzy, of Donora, battles Al Farone, of the West End, in the other two preliminaries.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Ted Yarosz worked out in Clarksburg, W. Va., yesterday for his 10-round bout there tonight with Fritz Heinz, of Detroit. Max Elling boxes Jimmy Colombo and Sammy Paris meets Young Thomas in preliminaries.

Johnny Pena boxes Frankie Wallace in Hollywood, Cal., tonight.

BROWN BEATEN BY RING FANS

International News Service.

PARIS, May 18.—Panama Al Brown, Negro world bantamweight champion, who was badly beaten by a mob of fight fans last night, who accused him of stalling in a bout with Gaston Humery, was about town today, but suffering numerous bruises on his shoulders which are apt to keep him out of the pugilistic game for some time.

Records Broken In Far East Games

MANILA, May 18.—(AP.)—Japanese athletes today captured the bulk of track, field and swimming honors as the Far Eastern Olympic games were resumed after a day's delay due to rain.

The Filipino performers, however, made a strong showing, and despite a wet track, four Far Eastern records were broken.

Filipino runners and swimmers unexpectedly defeated two Japanese stars—Ryutoku Yoshioka, the sprinter, and Reizo Koike, the swimmer.

Ralph De Loen beat out Yoshioka in the 100-meter dash, tying the Far Eastern record of 10.6 seconds. Teofilo Yldefonso, in the 200-meter breast stroke swim final, defeated Koike, with a time of 2 minutes, 45.9 seconds, new record for the Far Eastern games.

MURPHY INJURED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., May 18.—Harold Murphy, star quarter-miler of the Waynesburg College track team and a senior at the Greene County school, had his undergraduate track career terminated suddenly Wednesday night, when he fractured a small bone in his ankle while playing baseball.

LOCAL GOLFERS FACE TESTS TOMORROW

By TOM BIRKS

Two intercollegiate golf matches are scheduled for tomorrow. At St. Clair, the undefeated University of Pittsburgh aggregation meets West Virginia, and at the Pittsburgh Field Club, Carnegie Tech faces Western Reserve.

Tech is up against a tough assignment in the Clevelanders, and the Panthers will find Dick Hobitzell and his Mountaineers difficult to subdue.

A number of surprises attended the opening matches in the Women's Golf Association League yesterday. The Pittsburgh Field Club entry, captained by Mary Kuhn, upset Oakmont, the defending champions, 3½ to 2½.

WOMEN PLAY MATCHES

Fox Chapel had little trouble defeating Westmoreland, 5 to 1, the team, under the leadership of Lois Hollender, playing minus the services of Mrs. L. F. Friedman, club champion. Allegheny Country Club, champions in 1932, got off to a good start by beating Butler, 5 to 1, Mrs. Brandon capturing the lone point for the losers. Allegheny showed a well balanced team, Mrs. Stuart Brown, Mrs. Harvey Childs III, Mrs. Berndt Rose and Nancy Byers being very capable golfers with plenty of team experience.

St. Clair started out in defense of its Section II title at Longue Vue with a victory, defeating Highland, 5½ to ½. South Hills and Shannopin tied, while Sunnehanna, playing its first match in league competition, defeated the Country Club women, 4 to 2.

TECH BEATS DUQUESNE

The Section II matches carded for Youghiogheny will be played at Westmoreland Country Club next Tuesday.

In an intercollegiate match yesterday, the Carnegie Tech and Duquesne golf teams battled to a deadlock at Oakmont, each team scoring 4½ points. The summary:

NETTERS ELATED OVER SUN-TELEGRAPH TOURNAMENT PLANS

CITY, COUNTY PARK COURTS TO BE USED

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Devotees of the municipal net pastime in the Pittsburgh district are elated over the announcement that the Pittsburgh parks tennis championships for 1934 will be staged under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, practice in vogue in 1930 and 1931 thus being resumed after a two-year lapse.

Restricted scope of the event in '32 and '33 rendered it impossible for a multitude of regular entrants to compete, racqueters from the South Hills and North Side having found it most inconvenient to jaunt from their respective neighborhoods to the East End, to which the tilting was confined.

TO USE SIX PARKS

When contestants square off for start of hostilities on July 17 this summer, however, the globe-trotting factor will have been eliminated. Not only is it the intention to reinstate the system of spreading the action over six city parks at widely-varied spots within the corporate limits, but it is likewise the aim for the first time to extend the jousting to the county parks, North and South.

Present plans, approved by Supt. James Moore of Pittsburgh city parks and by County Parks Recreation Director William S. Haddock, call for preliminary play in Frick, Schenley, Highland, Olympia, Riverview, West, North and South Parks. The tentative program lists singles only, this because of the tremendously large entry lying in prospect. There will be tussling in both the men's and women's divisions.

The writer has been accorded the honor of heading the committee that will care for the manifold details of the classic. The remainder of the group in charge will be selected and announced in the near future. Among those assured of membership are David I. McCahill, for many seasons the local representative on the National Public Parks body of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, and Austin Famariss, former Pittsburgh Tennis Association vice president and valuable adjunct to previous parks committees.

PLANS ARE SET

The general working scheme of the highly successful '30 and '31 tournaments will be revived for the coming conclave. This means that each combatant must specify the park in which he or she desires to compete. Individual tourneys will then be staged in the various parks and the winners of these will tangle in an inter-park elimination series that probably will be divided between Frick and South on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 26, 27 and 28.

Handsome and useful prizes will be awarded the winners and runners-up in every park. Then, too, for the inter-park title captors there will be special tokens, in addition to trips to the National Public Parks championships at Minneapolis and a year's possession of the new Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Challenge trophies that will replace the flagons retired in 1932 by Frank Broida, Harvard southpaw star, and Mrs. Jean Artzberger.

Entries for the Parks affair will not be accepted till the latter part of June, when blanks will be printed daily upon the sports page of the Sun-Telegraph. Names will not be received by telephone at any time; use of the form will be an absolute requisite so that all necessary data pertaining to each contender readily will be available to the committee.

Jewish Congress Urges German Probe

ATHENS, Greece, May 18.—(AP.)—The International Olympic Committee has received a cable from the American Jewish Congress urging it to undertake an impartial investigation of the treatment of Jews in Germany before proceeding with plans for the international games there in 1936.

Col. William May Garland, of Los Angeles, one of the American members of the committee, said he saw no need for reopening of the Nazi-Jewish question.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

Honus Wagner

The first chance I get in one of the Old Timers' games (you know of course, that I'm called an Old Timer?) I'm going to try to lift one of these new balls over the fence and see what happens. Honest, I think the fans have got the wrong idea about those balls. Of course, I'm one of those fellows who when the boss says we've decided to use a lively ball or a dead ball I say O. K. and I'm all for it. I might argue for or against a thing before it is decided, but once the decision is made by the fellows who have the responsibility I put everything I've got behind them, and I think everybody who works should do the same. You know, the trick isn't so much in knocking the ball far—it is socking it on the nose, and the fellow who can sock it on the schnozzle is the baby who deserves the applause whether it is in baseball or business.

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI,
Softball Tournament Editor

Two more girls' softball teams have entered the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur championship tournament, which gets under way June 10 and continues through the month of August.

One of them is none other than the Goldenson Vanities outfit of the South Side, famous in basketball circles and combining about the same personnel of players. Miss Helen Kasputis, who manages the basketball team, also directs the softballers.

The other girls' team to come into the fold is the Meredith Groceries team, of Port Cliff, of which B. W. Meredith is manager. The Meredith team is a formidable one. It won 25 games and lost none last year.

Rush, manager; Windgap, Pittsburgh, Jerry Edwards, manager; Duncan Millers, Washington, Joe Manfredi, manager; Elizabeth Produce, Elizabeth, J. F. Riley, manager; Youngks, Squirrel Hill, L. Youngk, manager; All-Stars, East End, V. Cohen, manager, and Oakmont Business Men, Joe Stuparitz, Jr., manager.

39 Patents granted in U. S. A. 27 Patents in Foreign Countries. Other Patents Pending.
The Resco Twin-Foot Measuring Machine, now installed exclusively in all Regal Stores, is the only foot measuring machine in the world that gives you these facts.
The exact length and width of both feet measured at the same time under the Walking Weight of the body with heels raised to normal shoe height.
The exact length and width of each foot (right and left) is recorded individually on a separate card in Foot Sizes and Inches.
The delicate mechanism of this machine is scientifically adjusted to measure the foot expansion and register the length and width of the shoe required to properly fit both stocking feet when the "standing weight" is placed on the sensitive springs.
You are cordially invited to come in today and look at this new machine, and allow our salesmen to give you a card punched by the machine showing the exact length and width of your longest foot under Standing Weight and demonstrate the Ten Regal Tests of Custom Shoe Fitting.
The Wing-Tip Buck Brogue illustrated is the favorite model of a famous Custom Bootmaker and is the most popular GENUINE All-Over White Buck Style shown this year. All White is All Right—but Genuine White Buckskin is better.
This is only One of 100 Regal Custom Reproductions for street, dress and sport, but every White Shoe in our $5.55 line is made from a fine selection of the best tannages of Genuine White Buck,—and there isn't anything better than the best.

GREENSBURG, CHARLEROI WIN OPENING TILTS

PENNSYLVANIA STATE LOOP RACE ON

The newly-formed Pennsylvania State Association, the Pittsburgh district's Class D minor league, has its pennant race under way. Two games were played last evening and the other two clubs in the circuit will start operations over the week-end.

After a parade, officials estimated 1,300 fans attended the game at Charleroi, which was won by the Detroit Tiger-backed home team, 7 to 6, over Monessen. Four home runs featured the contest, in which Pitcher Dobens sent home the winning tally with a single.

JEANNETTE BOWS

At Jeannette a crowd of 300 turned out to see Greensburg, a St. Louis Cardinal farm, defeat Jeannette, 8 to 4. A triple was the longest blow made in this contest.

Benny Bengough, the former Yankee catcher, announced in Washington, which opens its season Saturday in Greensburg, that his squad has been chopped down to 20. Thirteen players from the Yankee farm Wheeling, a youngster from Binghamton in the New York-Pennsylvania League and six other district lads were retained.

McKeesport, the sixth entry, will open its season Sunday at home.

Three games are booked in the City League this evening, Beltzhoover being slated to tackle Dormont at Dormont, Books facing Homewood at Homewood, and Mt. Oliver taking on the Vaughans at the Salt Works grounds.

Ingomar, which swamped Millvale, 17-2, last night, will meet the Homestead Grays at the Ingomar field at 6:30 tonight.

The Pittsburgh Crawfords, one of the two local entries in the National Negro League, are ready to open their home campaign. They'll face the Philly Stars, of Philadelphia, at Greenlee Field tomorrow afternoon. A parade has been arranged as a feature of the opener.

Sunday, the Vaughans will assist Mt. Oliver in inaugurating the City League season at the newly constructed Frederick street grounds on Mt. Oliver. A parade has been arranged to precede this game.

BOOKS, HOMEWOOD WIN

Homewood and the Books turned in triumphs in the City circuit last evening. Playing at McKinley Park, Homewood walloped Beltzhoover, 11 to 1. Studnicki, on the slab for Homewood, turned in a fine five-hit performance. The score by innings:

Beltzhoover	1 0 0 0 0 0	1	5	1

Batteries—Studnicki and Latusick; Duing, Sidick and Hollien.

The Books pushed over two runs in the last half of the sixth to defeat the Vaughans 3 to 2 and then had the game forfeited to them by Umpire Gannon. Gannon ejected J. Vaughan from the contest and he refused to comply with the order. The score by innings:

Batteries—P. Vaughan and Tummulty; Fest, Carroll and Bierworth.

Joe Vitelli, local pitcher, who has had a try with minor league baseball, has returned. He will finish the season with Dormont in the City League.

ROSS RESUMES HARD WORK

International News Service.

FERNDALE, N. Y., May 18.—Barney Ross, lightweight titleholder, who resumes his training today, after a one-day layoff, for his bout with Jimmy McLarnin, May 28, expressed pleasure today over what he purports to believe are reports that McLarnin is concerned over the outcome of the battle.

Ross was told that McLarnin and his manager, Pop Foster, had declared the welter title would not be at stake in the forthcoming fight because the Vancouver battler was being compelled to make 145 pounds instead of the class limit of 147. He said:

"That's the best news I have heard in a long time. The thing of course is absurd, for no matter what McLarnin and Foster think about it, I'll be the recognized welterweight champion of the world if I win from Jimmy. The matter is that, if the report is true, Jimmy is weakening."

JIM TAKES REST

ATLANTIC CITY, May 18.—(INS.)—Today was an off-day for Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight champion, who is training here for his double title fight with Barney Ross in New York, May 28.

McLarnin had one of the stiffest workouts to which he had ever been subjected yesterday, and his manager, Pop Foster, decided to allow him to take things easy for a day as a reward. Moreover, Foster is anxious to see that his charge doesn't go stale.

North Hills Riders In Debut Sunday

The North Hills Polo Club, the only team representing the North Side, will make its first competitive appearance of the season Sunday afternoon when the Old Furnace riders will be met at Zelienople.

The North Hills malletmen, managed by Pat McDonough, well known in local tournament golf circles, have been working out regularly at their home field, on the Perrysville highway, near Wexford. The players for the club, which is a member of the Allegheny County Polo Association, are R. E. Pinkerton, W. Foster, A. Woody and Dave Smith.

TITAN NETTERS FACE DUKES

Duquesne resumes varsity sport relations with Westminster College today after brief estrangement due to basketball difficulties. The Dukes and Titans pick up the threads of their athletic rivalry by meeting at New Wilmington in the Lawrence County portion of a home-and-home tennis series, the Pittsburgh half of which was washed out by rain last Monday.

Westminster, boasting in young Bob Grier, Mount Lebanon southpaw, one of the cleverest college net performers in the district, looms a slight favorite over the Bluffites. The outcome of the tussle, however, is by no means a foregone conclusion, for the Blue and Gold flashed no great prowess in losing to Geneva a couple of days ago and the Hilltoppers, with Petruska and Higgins performing smoothly of late, may be primed to spring an upset.

Pitt's racquet varsity clinched the city title for the ninth straight time yesterday and incidentally kept its district record for 1934 unblemished by downing Carnegie Tech, 7-2, on the Trees Field courts. The joust originally was slated for the Tartan lot, but poor condition of the Skibo surfaces caused the transfer to the Panther layout.

With Capt. Nat Ganger, undefeated to date, sweeping the pathway, the Blue and Gold annexed five of the half dozen singles affairs. The summary:

PITT 7, CARNEGIE TECH 2.

SINGLES

Ganger, Pitt, defeated Krey, Carnegie, 6-1, 6-1; Madden, Pitt, defeated Maczkov, Carnegie, 6-0, 6-3; Slocum, Pitt, defeated Pearlstein, Carnegie, 6-3, 6-4; J. Thompson, Pitt, defeated Jones, Carnegie, 6-3, 6-3; Goss, Carnegie, defeated Heckler, Pitt, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3; L. Thompson, Pitt, defeated Lane, Carnegie, 0-6, 6-4, 6-4.

DOUBLES

Krey and Maczkov, Carnegie, defeated Ganger and Madden, Pitt, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4; J. Thompson and Slocum, Pitt, defeated Hartshorn and Pearlstein, Carnegie, 6-4, 6-0; Heckler and L. Thompson, Pitt, defeated Jones and Goss, Carnegie, 6-2, 6-2.

Italian Runner May Accept Bid

MILAN, Italy, May 18.—(AP.)—Luigi Beccali, Italy's Olympic 1,500-meter champion, today said he was ready to go to the United States for a race against Glenn Cunningham and Bill Bonthron, America's two great mile runners, if he could get a furlough from his municipal job here.

Beccali has been invited to run in an invitation meet at Princeton June 16 in a mile run to which Bonthron, Cunningham, Gene Venzke and Jack Lovelock, Oxford student, have been invited.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—(INS.)—Two of America's fastest runners, Bill Bonthron, of Princeton, and Gene Venzke, of Penn, will match strides in two events of the I. C. 4-A. program on Franklin Field here next Friday and Saturday.

810-2 Shot Wins At Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 18.—Mrs. D. H. Beck, of Martinsburg, W. Va., is trying out a new cook today—a fact that put more than $400 in the pocket of her husband.

Beck and M. H. Potter, of Martinsburg, arrived at the races here yesterday shortly before the first event was to be run. They were undecided which horse they would bet. Beck remarked:

"My wife is trying out a new cook tomorrow, so why not play Trycook?"

Potter replied:

"That's a good hunch."

Trycook, 2-year-old filly of Maj. G. L. Stryker, came in first. For the dollar with which each pooled for the bet, he received $405.20. The horse paid $810.40 for each $2 straight ticket.

SPORT SHORTS

Royce Butler, 17-year-old pitcher of Salisbury, Md., hurled a no-run, no-hit, no-walk game yesterday against Wicomico High School, but missed a perfect game when he hit a batsman. It was his third consecutive shutout victory.

King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight fighter, has been ordered to remain in the Chicago hospital where he has been since Monday, until next Monday. He'll be able to return to Los Angeles for his postponed bout with Art Lasky within two weeks.

The rising hopes of the United States Davis Cup tennis team received another boost when it was learned that Wilmer Allison, suffering with an ankle injury, would join the squad today or tomorrow. His injury is not as serious as at first feared.

Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, held a lead of 120 points today over Joe Miller, of Buffalo, in their 80-game match for the world individual bowling championship, under way at Buffalo. Stein has a score of 2,075 and Miller 1,989 for 50 games.

AUSTRALIANS WIN

LONDON, May 18.—(AP.)—The touring Australian test match cricket team today ended its three-day match with Essex County with a victory by an innings and 93 runs. Essex was dismissed in its first innings for 220 runs after which Australia, led by A. E. Chipperfield with 175, scored 438 runs. Essex then was dismissed in their second innings for 125.

BIG TEN TITLE MEET OPENS

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP.)—With Michigan and Indiana ranking as favorites, track and field athletes of the Western Conference open their thirty-fourth annual drive on the records of speed and skill in the Big Ten outdoor championship today at Northwestern University. Preliminaries will be held in 10 events with the finals coming up for decision tomorrow.

The Wolverines captured the 1933 outdoor championship with a top-heavy advantage over Indiana, and repeated again in the indoor championship this Spring, chiefly through the efforts of Willis Ward, versatile Negro athlete. Ward won the 100-yard dash, the high jump and finished second in the 120-yard high hurdles and the broad jump. He threatens to do the same thing Saturday.

Seven champions of last year will defend their titles in the finals. Included among them are three of the greatest athletes in Western Conference track history, Charles Hornbostel and Ivan Fuqua of Indiana, distance stars, and Ward.

HUNTINGTON WINS AGAIN

Unless the remainder of the league wishes to have the Huntington Boosters so far ahead by Memorial Day that it will be practically impossible to catch 'em, said remainder had better do something drastic about stopping the fast traveling Boosters and do it soon.

The Boosters won their sixth game in a row yesterday, beating Charleston, 9 to 6, with a four-run attack in the eighth inning. Clapp and McLane kept Charleston's nine hits well scattered.

Dayton outslugged Wheeling at Wheeling, beating the Stogies, 11 to 7. The Ducks connected for 11 hits and Wheeling for 18, but the Ducks did a better job of bunching their blows.

Zanesville hit hard behind Ausie's fine hurling to defeat Beckley, 7 to 2, and Johnstown defeated Springfield, 5 to 2, Bream outpitching Hardway.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXXIII

The firelight made her face ghostly and her hair, which she had shaken out to dry, had an unnatural shine.

Dale Owens gazed at her. She fitted in well with the storm. He stirred up the fire and offered her a cigaret.

"Thanks for finding me—how did it happen?"

"You're just across from my cabin. I was on the porch watching the storm. I saw your fire and guessed some hiker was in trouble. Aren't you very young to be tramping the mountains alone?"

"I'm not young and I like being alone."

Dale Owens laughed. "Neither statement is true. But you make a nice picture swinging along in your solitary way . . .

"Like Lucy Gray across the lonely wild!"

Pippin held her sweater before the fire.

"My mother will be so awfully worried. Is there a short cut to the trail?"

"No—but it's not so far—two miles to your cabin."

Finally Find Trail

"You can't reach the trail from here!"

"I got up here, didn't I? I'm an Indian trailer. Follow closely and don't be afraid."

He took Pippin's hand, drew it through his arm. They started down the rocky, uneven slope. Branches of trees caught in her sweater. In the blind dark she kept stumbling over the stones.

"I'm sorry," said Dale, "pretty rough going, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is, but hurry, anyway. I want to get home."

They talked in brief snatches, feeling their way cautiously between crags. Presently they were on the trail; all at once a moon came up, showing the white path before them and the black, beautiful mountains rising to a storm-tossed, indigo sky. They stood a moment and watched a ragged cloud scurry into distance.

Pippin gave a soft exultant laugh: "I love to see the sky all swept about, the stars lost and a cold, bright moon like that come sailing high."

He said, puzzled: "You should like it better gold and streaming gently on the water. Must you always hike alone?

"You say you've been to Rainbow, but there's a little lake entirely hidden a few miles distant. Hardly anyone has ever found it. It's very wonderful. I took Kate Stone to see it the other morning."

Pippin said on a sigh: "I like Kate Stone!"

"Yes. Isn't she the quaint, picturesque dynamo?

She answered, eager: "It must be wonderful to be like Kate."

"What do you mean?"

"She seems so free. All done with storms and tumult. Everybody loves her."

Sees New Lake

He said absently, and his voice stirred along her nerves: "I wonder if it's well to be past the storms?"

This was the way Pippin met Dale Owens.

He caught up with her several times on the trails. When she was in swimming, his boat passed. He waved.

One day she was going to Rainbow. He swung along at side.

"Do you want to see the little lake I told you of?"

"Yes. I'm going that way."

In half an hour they stood before a small, dream-like pool, completely encircled by tall, desolate pines, but the miniature lake was a-bloom with lilies. They were white and pink and blue. Pippin had never seen pond lilies in color before. Sheer ecstasy to come upon this secret beauty.

"I wish my mother could see this," she said excitedly. "But it's a little far for her."

"You can bring her a few . . . the blue and pink. They're different."

Pippin leaned against a great tree and gazed at the loveliness. He stood silent and watched her. Then he came up and took her hand.

She said happily: "I'm glad you showed me this!" and raised glowing eyes to his.

He looked into them startled: "Well—I'm glad, too!"

Shortly after this he showed her a sketch of the lotus-lake. Standing against the tall pine was a girl with vivid hair and blue, deeply-burning eyes. Pippin recognized herself. She reddened because of the stormy sadness revealed in her face.

Sketches of Pippin

"Don't you like yourself?"

"I don't quite admire the girl's angry look. The rest of the picture is lovely. Did you do it? Oh, you're an artist? And you've been coming up here for years? It's odd we didn't meet sooner."

"No, it isn't. I'm not of your generation. Besides, I've only been on this lake two years and I'm scarcely an artist. Just a magazine illustrator. I've done quite a few sketches of you. I wish I could use them."

She gave a quick, excited laugh and said, greatly intrigued: "Why can't you? It's extremely flattering.

He went through his portfolio showing her sketches in color. All were of herself; prettier than she was, but all with a hungry ardor, a wistful insurgence in the face.

"I'll draw you that way later on."

She was glad of his company; glad when he joined her on the trails. He was not athletically built; his shoulders were a little stooped, but he had long legs and swept along rapidly. He would suddenly catch up with her, take her arm and shove her along with a laughing: "Here—hurry up, won't you!"

Sometimes Kate Stone was with him. They were the gayest of comrades, though Kate was surely 50 and an incorrigible spinster. Dale was 34 and warmly attractive.

One day the three of them stopped off at his cabin. He made tea and thin cheese toast for them.

Visit Cabin

The cabin was crude—a huge room with an enormous fireplace, benches, a piano, cushions and a very tiny kitchen. But the windows framed lovely snatches of sapphire water and tamaracks growing lonely from the overhanging crags.

The walls were covered with sketches made by Dale's friends. He had original drawings by Homer Davenport, by Henry Raleigh and a dozen others whom Pippin didn't know.

He told interesting stories of his years in Paris, and later years when he worked for a syndicate in New York. Now he was established and led a free life.

Pippin sat on a cushion, her hands clasped at her knees. She wore hiking trousers and a blue shirt open at the throat. Kate, who was well under five feet and stocky, wore brown shorts and a leather coat. The costume was ugly, yet topped off with her shaggy red hair and now sitting tailor fashion on the floor, she was picturesque.

"Sit just as you are," he said abruptly.

He got out a sketch-book and very quickly made a red crayon. Pippin was bursting with eagerness to see the work. Then she was delighted.

"You like it? All right, it's yours."

"Maybe you want it?" she said to Kate Stone.

"No—he always makes me homelier than I am. He calls it giving me character. I have enough of that by nature and would prefer a little beauty."

They launched into a discussion of faces—what made them interesting; what made them beautiful. Dale told that once he had followed a woman for miles. She had the most arresting face he had ever seen, yet, analyzed, it was completely ugly. But you felt something about it—an aura.

'Not Bad Job'

"We make our own faces from the cradle upward just as surely as Dorian Gray made his. Take any boy at 20. Look at the eyes and the mouth. Follow the face through the thirties. See the slow disintegration. If you have courage follow it through the devastating, complacent forties when we quit the struggle and give up our dream. Look!"

He reached for a portfolio. A sketch dropped out. It was of a young boy in soldier's uniform, firm chin, full, sweet mouth, ardent, dream-filled eyes.

"You?" She glanced up and saw the color sweep to Dale's forehead.

"I didn't mean to be caught in my own trap. But yes—here's what I've done with mine."

"Not such a bad job!" she said gaily, surveying him.

Dale laughed, went over to the small piano and began to play.

"Stop the noise!" Kate ordered. "Play that sonata from Bach."

"Say, woman, I've given you enough entertainment for one afternoon."

He found Pippin's eyes, winked merrily and sang, paraphrasing as he went:

"It was a lucky July shower.
"I had the most convenient door.
"I've found a million dollar baby in a five and ten cent storm!"

Takes Pippin Home

"The word is 'store,'" said Kate.

"Your mistake, dear. I found mine in a storm!"

He walked home with Pippin. He had a low, throaty laugh. It was rich like his voice, which tingled along her nerves; rich like the color in his red mouth and coal-black eyes.

Pippin was excited, curious and intrigued. He was different from other men she had met.

She said, wistful: "It must be wonderful to know such gifted, delightful people and to be always doing odd, unusual things."

"You mean it's great to be a little crazy? I think so, too. You're not entirely sane, I hope?"

"Oh, yes, I am!"

"You must get over it! But then it isn't true or you wouldn't be wandering about so much alone. That's rather mad. Don't you ever go to dances in the evenings? There are good ones at the Tavern."

"A million miles away! But two years ago we used to drive pell-mell to Placerville on Saturday nights—50 miles each way over a curved mountain road."

"What do you do this year?"

"I usually read. Sometimes I take out the boat or I sit under that lone tree on our crag and watch the colors changing in the sky and water. It's never the same."

"Will you be doing that tonight?"

She said, flippant: "Not till Tuesday of next week!"

"I'll be there to watch the colors with you!"

Her heart flushed as she walked up the massive granite bluff and leaned against the tree that Tuesday night. She waited.

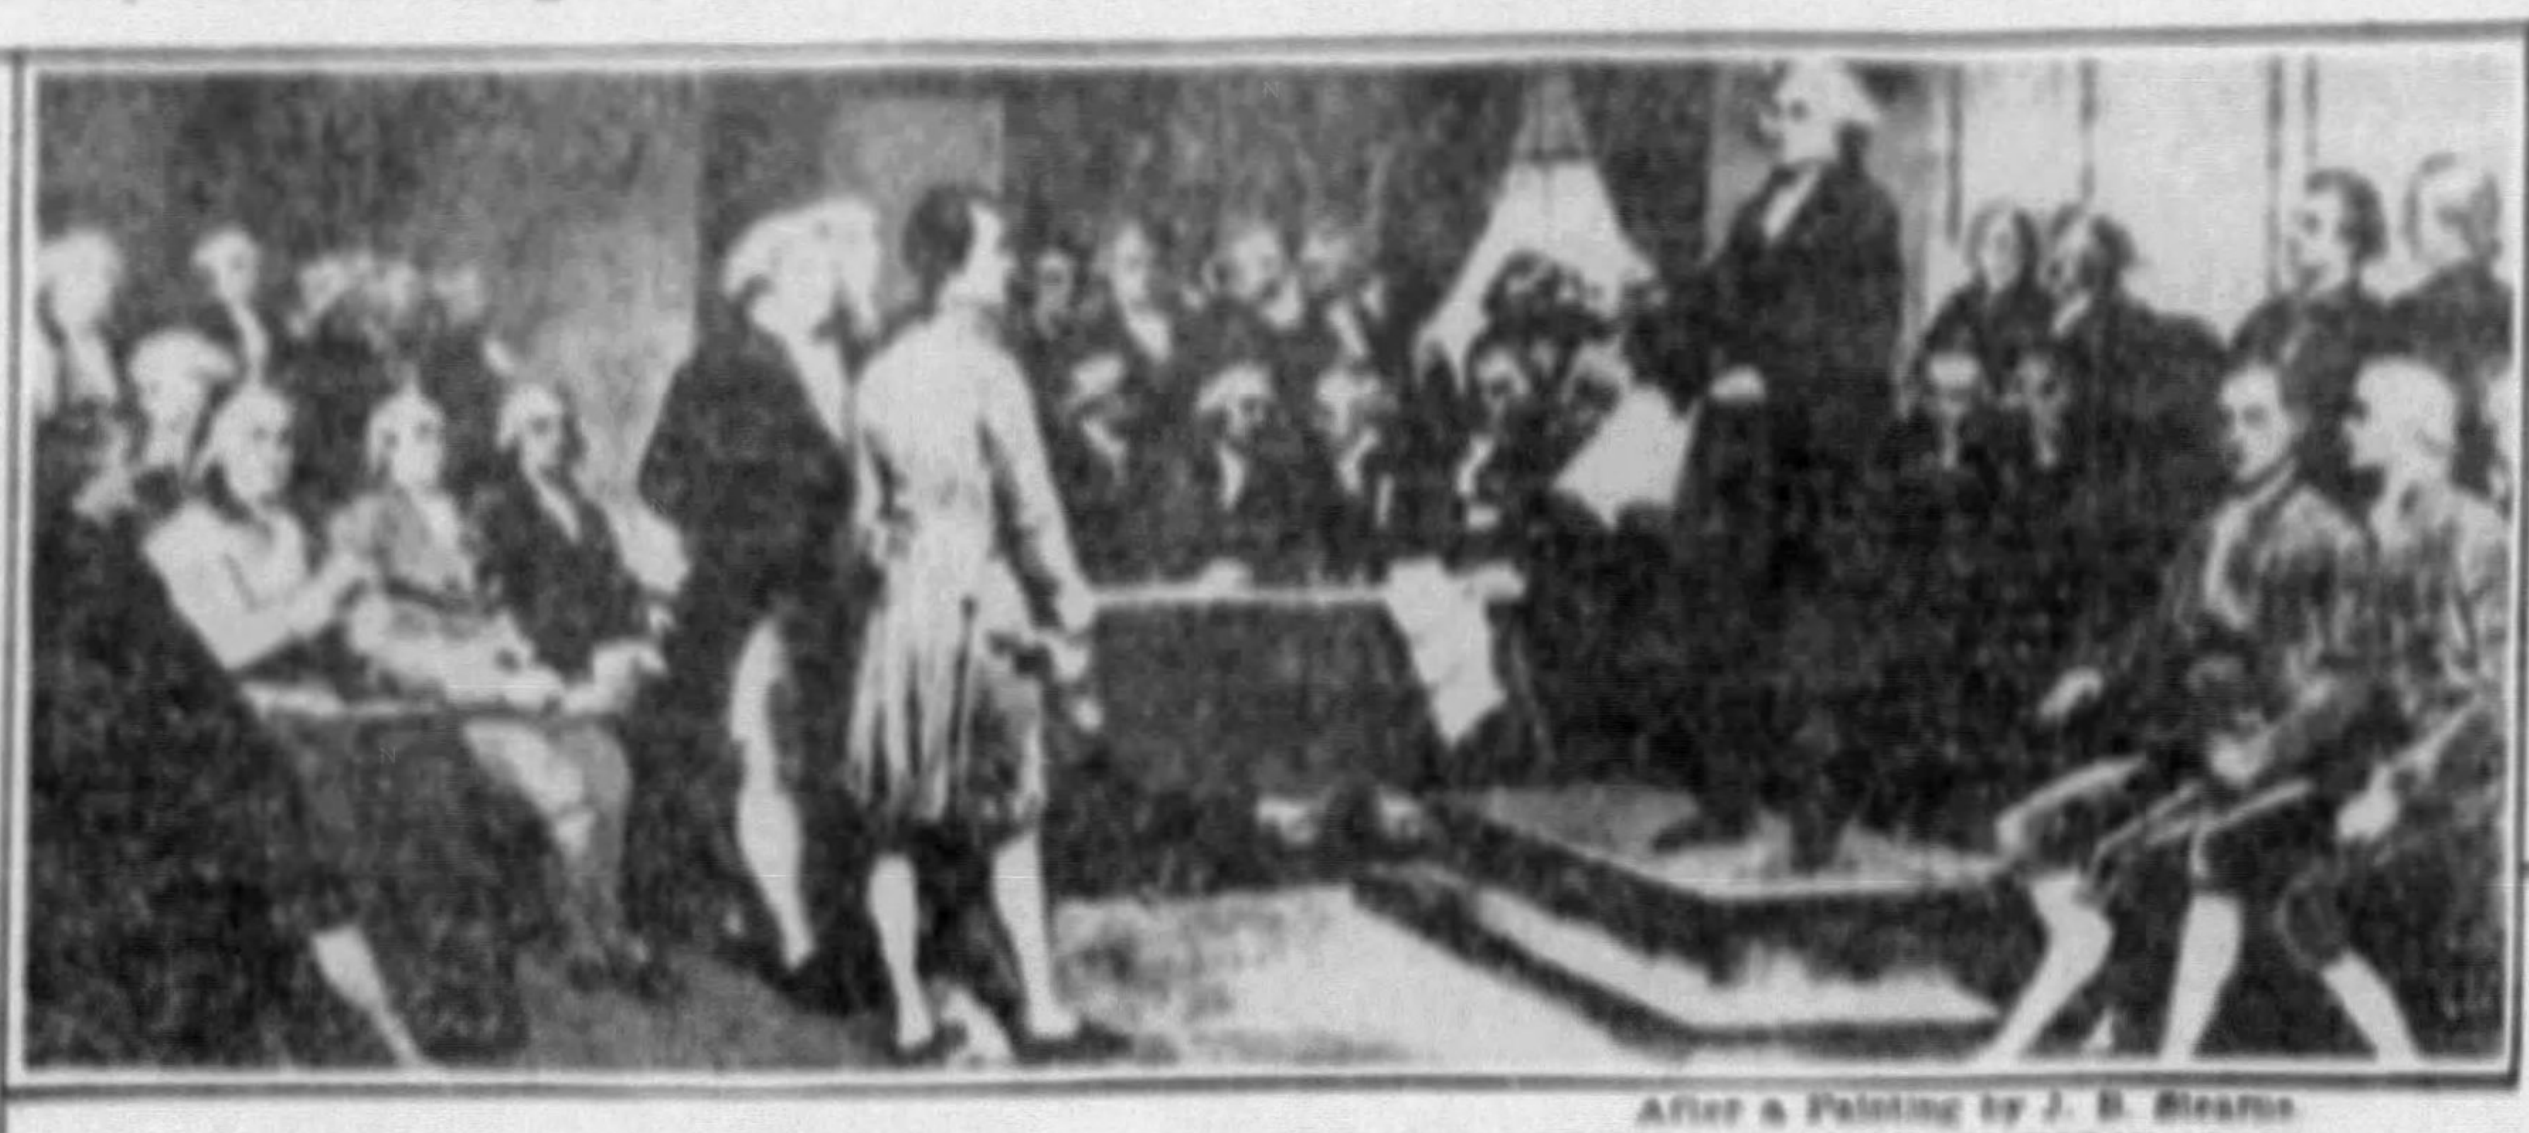
SHAY—REBELLION—"CRITICAL PERIOD OF U. S.

The government of the young United States, based upon the Articles of Confederation (1783) was bound to be unsuccessful, since it lacked the power and machinery to exact and collect contributions from the states. It had no central executive power, no national courts of justice, no national money, no control of interstate commerce, etc. This led to disorganization, discontent, trade wars, bloody border conflicts and armed revolts. One of these was the Shay Rebellion (in Massachusetts, 1786-1787), led by Capt. Shay. It demanded reduction of taxes, increase of paper money, etc., and finally was dispersed by military force. The period 1783-1789—terminated by the operation of the Constitution-is called the "critical period" in history of U. S.



After a Painting by J. B. Stearns.

NATIONAL CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION ADOPTS CONSTITUTION (1787)

Confederation Congress indorsed in Feb., 1787, the recommendations of the commissioners from five states (who had met at Annapolis, Md., 1786) and called a National Constitutional Convention of state delegates to revise the Articles of Confederation. They met in May, 1787, in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, under presidency of George Washington. After four months debating, the delegates completed the Constitution of the United States, the national law, a compromise between the conflicting interests of the states embodying: The check and balance doctrine, dividing the government into legislative, judiciary and executive branches; representation proportional to population (3/5 of number of slaves counted) in the House of Representatives; equal representation of states in Senate; restriction of slave import and many other vital provisions.

Changes in Constitution are made by amendments (first 10 are Bill of Rights) up to date 21.

MOHAMMED (570-632)—FOUNDER OF ISLAM

Mohammed, an Arab, born in Mecca, founded a new religion, the Islam, meaning resignation, submission to God. It spread rapidly, destroying Arabic heathenism. Its sacred volume is the Koran. Within 100 years of Mohammed's death Islam had been carried into India, Persia and through Africa even into Spain.

The Eastern Roman empire, exposed to the fanatic drives of the Mohammedans, was for centuries the bulwark of Eastern Europe against Moslem invasion. Above: Mohammed and his warriors.

IT HAPPENED ONCE—WILL IT AGAIN?

In wild nature, the fittest survive. Man, organized into nations—driven by needs of existence, reasons of race, language, religion, or subjected to the lust of conquest of a ruler or a group—was always ready to invade lands whose people he believed weaker. The horrors of the recent World War gave us an idea of the massacres by the Huns of Attila, the "Scourge of God", by the hordes of Jenghiz Khan, Solyman and other war lords.

Pope Leo I entreated Attila (451) to withdraw from Rome. But can we rely that spiritual power again shall dominate brutality? It can be hoped only for the far future, that mankind will attain the intellectual height to outlaw war and settle all differences peacefully. Until that time peace can be preserved—besides dealing justly and considerately with other people—by developing every branch of our national defense. (Prob. of Dem.).

DIAGRAM OF AMMONIA GAS-REFRIGERATOR

Ammonia (NH3) gas liquefies at 10° C., 6.5 atm. pressure, and absorbs much heat by evaporation (330 cal. per gram). Thus it is a suitable refrigerant.

In the gas refrigerator, heat of a gas flame (left) evaporates a strong solution of ammonia, which liquefies in the water-cooled condenser; then evaporates into the evaporator, containing hydrogen, taking heat off surroundings. Ammonia gas then passes by gravity into a water-cooled absorber, is absorbed in weak and condensed into strong solution, to start cycle anew. (Chemistry) 81-III-B

Keeping Up With the Papers

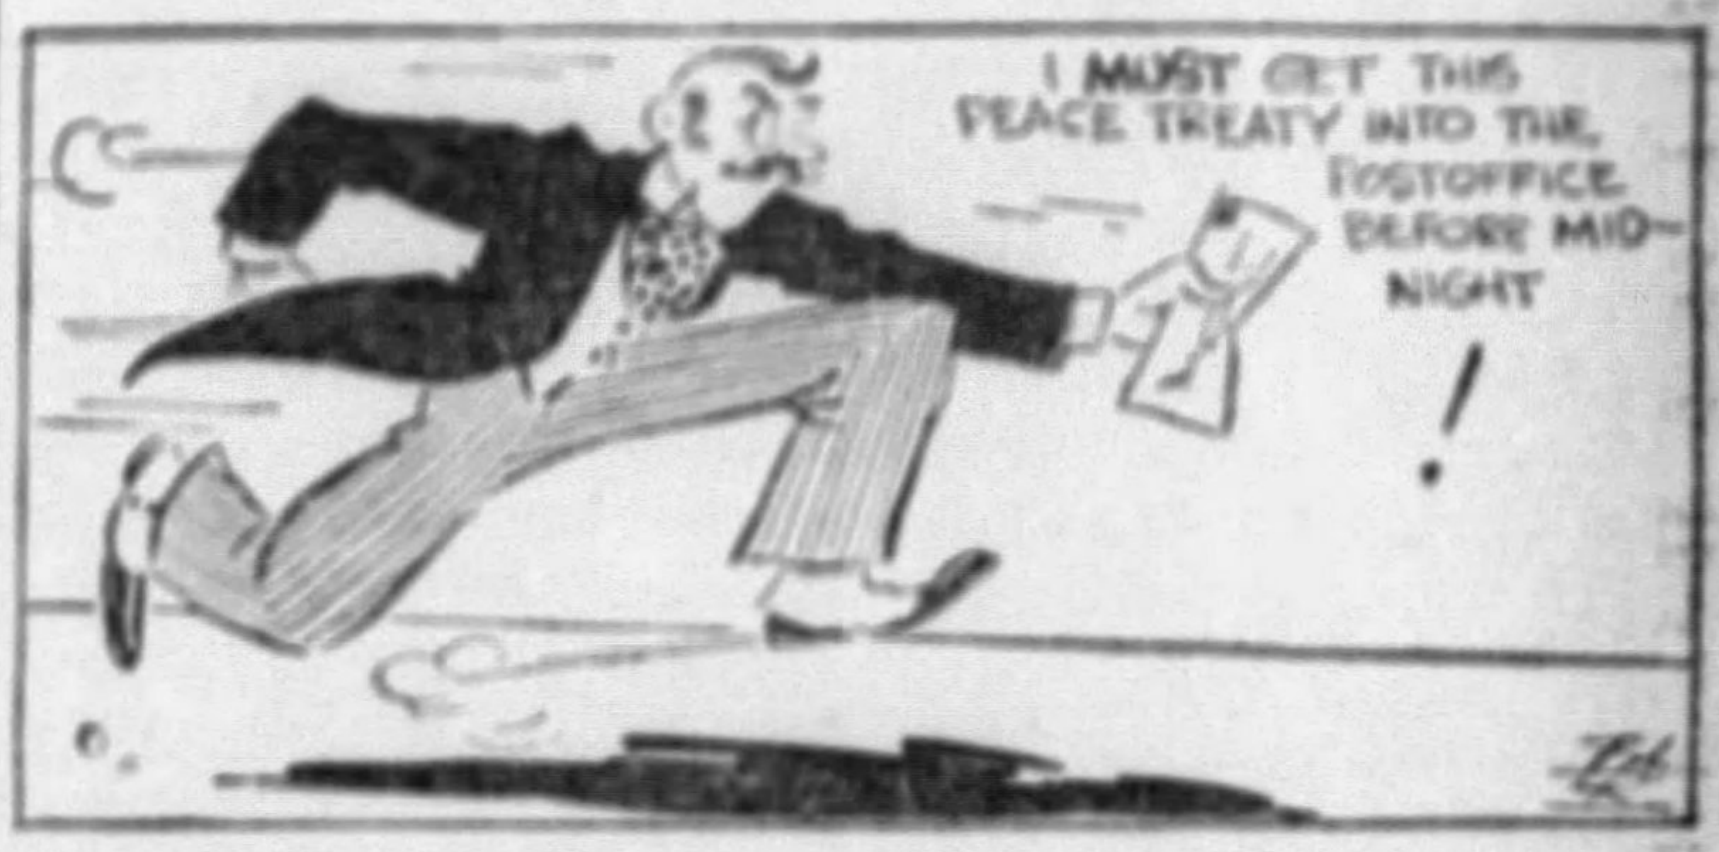
European tranquility depends on pre-dated mail. You must get your peace treaty into the postoffice before midnight or start the next day without an ally.

It all started with the Roogorian White Papers. This remarkable document accused its neighbors of arming its nationals with wooden hammers. It's what we better diplomats call mallets aforesaid.

The White Papers were sensational. No doubt exists that Palussia is training red ants to eat scrap metal. Frimland immediately secured the services of a mad genius who wrote the Purple Documents. This terrific indictment is oats for the Four Hossmen. It bodes ill. Remember that Napoleon never stopped in the middle of a battle to holler, "Let's go fishing."

That wasn't enough. A pancake-eyed professor in an obscure land forged a complete sanskrit tablet, buried it in the premier's coattail pocket and then dug it up with kicks.

It accused the world of arming 3,000 years ago. How time flies. It seems like yesterday that we were playing marbles. The Purple Documents broiled up a furore that will not down. Peace conferences are useless. The boys have seen all the towns.



I MUST GET THIS PEACE TREATY INTO THE POSTOFFICE BEFORE MID-NIGHT !

And when the Heliotrope Papers were accidently published in a first edition of 60,000 books the old world was aghast. Nobody can square these new revelations. As the spider said about his web, "It aint' a national hook-up, but it will catch flies."

The Heliotrope Papers had no sooner been filed away for futile reference when the Green Pamphlet catapulted into the field and once again Mars thundered into action. Can it be true that the Grittickers are drilling in the bulging mountains? An empty house is better than a bad tenant.

The Grittickians must go. Their own premier pointed to the map yesterday and said, "Boys, our case is hopeless. We are surrounded by our own allies."

It was thoroughly tested and proved in the Transparent Papers written in invisible ink on cellophane. When the code was deciphered a plot had been unearthed. Compared with this devastating holocaust the late World War was just a wiggle in a fan dance.

And so it goes. Tomorrow the powerful Turkugal presses go into operation and will print the Pink Papers, morning and evening.

Tigers and panthers, as well as hyneas, can imitate the calls of many other animals; the goat caterpillar can bite a pencil in two; and, the lineus nemertine, a large marine worm, can stretch itself from four to 45 feet.

The highest falls in the world are the Kaieteur, in British Guiana, which are over 800 feet high. This beats the Niagara Falls by over 600 feet, although the width of the Kaieteur Falls is only 400 feet, comparing with Niagara's 2,000.

Rice, which has been known since prehistoric times as one of the principal foods of the human race, is said to be much more easily digested than any other cereals.

Eight out of 10 cases of stammering among children are found in boys.

Hungarian gypsies must now submit to an official tattoo mark, as a result of their persistent definace of the authorities, who require them to register their separate identities.

The Moron Problem

If Sterilization Is Undesirable, Society Must Be Protected Otherwise

The Journal of the American Medical Association is much concerned over the increase in insanity and feeble-mindedness, and in its current issue discusses sterilization as a means of reducing the toll that the victims of mental affliction are exacting from society.

Pennsylvania, it is interesting to note, was the first state in which a human sterilization law was passed by the Legislature. A bill of this character was passed in 1905, but was vetoed by the Governor. A second sterilization bill was passed in 1921 and was also vetoed.

Pennsylvania's moron population steadily increases. We called attention in these columns a few days ago to the fact that all the state institutions for the feeble-minded are filled to capacity and have long waiting lists. At Polk 836 are on the waiting list; at Pennhurst, 1,097, and at Laurelton, 757. Dr. Le Roy M. A. Maeder, medical director of the Pennsylvania Mental Hygiene Committee of the Public Charities Association, estimates there are about 6,000 morons at large in the state who require commitment to institutions, and his estimate is considered too low by other authorities.

If it is undesirable to sterilize the feeble-minded, Pennsylvania should protect itself against their multiplication by committing them to asylums. Not without peril can the Legislature postpone making adequate provision for the many hundreds of urgent cases in which commitment of the morons to institutions is vainly sought.

Keeping the Roads Tidy

Property Owners Should Co-Operate With the Authorities in Removing Signs.

Thomas O. Hasley, director of county highways, states that the road at the south end of the Sewickley Bridge, where political signs have been illegally posted, is a state highway, and his department has no jurisdiction.

Periodically the State Highway Department removes advertising signs of all kinds. This would be an excellent time to make such a clean-up.

Director Hasley has instructed the employes of his department to remove immediately all political signs erected within the right of way of the county highways. Good! It is his policy not to permit the erection of such signs at any time. And, of course, there is a state law that forbids it, too.

If the public utilities companies will see that signs are torn down from their poles, and other owners of private property will remove posters from their trees and fences, we shall have tidy highways. It is an objective for which it is well worth while to strive.

How Deserts Start

The Dust Storm Which Blew over Pittsburgh Is an Ominous Phenomenon

A dust storm from the Middle West blew over Pittsburgh at an elevation of 8,000 feet last week and came down on places along the Atlantic Coast. John M. Phillips, the well-known Pittsburgh naturalist, remarked at the time that the storm was not an isolated phenomenon, but was a symptom of a chronic condition and boded ill. He expressed the opinion that as the result of man's interference with natural conditions parts of the West were in danger of being transformed into deserts.

This view is confirmed in a statement by E. A. Sherman, Assistant United States Forester, well known among Pennsylvania conservationists for the part that he played in the establishment of Allegheny National Forest. The destruction of forests, the plowing up of the sod in regions where the wind is likely to cause erosion of the soil, and excessive grazing, make it easy, Mr. Sherman says, for destructive dust storms to develop, and that is how deserts are formed. These storms are becoming increasingly prevalent in the West.

Mr. Phillips thinks the draining of lakes and swamps in naturally well-watered states like Minnesota is a contributing factor.

However that may be, it is rather comforting to know that in the creation of the Allegheny National Forest and the Pymatuning Lake a large section of Western Pennsylvania is assured protection against the desert menace with which some of the Western States are said to be confronted.

The Bigger They Are

The Harder Men Don't Fall For Them.

The bigger they are, the harder it is to make the men fall for them.

Such is the decision of the University of Michigan's Alpha Nu Debating Society, which tried to grade girls in the proportion of their attractiveness to the other sex.

It's the poor big girl, not the poor little girl, the debaters declared.

An opposing group called attention to Cleopatra and Helen of Troy, supposedly pretty big girls, and their historic successes. Also to the argument that a man loves a woman more when there's more of her.

The Melting Pot

An Example

Angelo—it's a funny name for a gefuelte fish cook—learned about cooking from Miss Florence Vogel at the Madison Square Boys' Club in New York City. He won the club's cooking prize, and would have won the spelling prize if it hadn't been for that one word. He doesn't care because the Sferrazza family—believe it or not—likes gefuelte fish much better than red wine.

Who said anything about melting pot?

LOS ANGELES DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—Once to all comes the Big Moment. I imagine it arrived for my wife's aunt at one of those big celebrity gatherings here last evening. Most of her 82 years have been spent in the serenity of the small town's shaded porch, rearing her children and her children's children.

But last night she entered the Ambassador's banquet hall, a bit of lavendar and old lace on the arm of Will H. Hays to a place of honor at the most conspicuous table in the room. And at an auspicious moment was asked by none other than Will Rogers himself to take a bow before the sea of faces.

She shook hands with and was paid graceful compliments by Adolphe Menjou, Edward G. Robinson, Jack Warner, Dr. Giannini, Lee Tracy, Louis B. Mayer, Fred Stone, Dolores Del Rio, etc. About her swirled Marlene Deitrich waltzing in a wine red caped creation with Joseph Von Sternberg.

As casually as she saw Bob Mitchell, the drayman, jog along back home did she see Lowell Sherman, Frank Borzage, Harold Lloyd, Joan Blondell, Wheeler and Woolsey, Myrna Kennedy, Verre Teasdale and others drift by. At 1 a. m. on the way home she observed: "I'm a bit tired, but I fear I cannot sleep!"

Likely the most popular couple among "the motion picture folk are the Watterson Rothackers. Rothacker, a Chicagoan, retired from the business side of the industry at 38 and no inducement to return has swayed him from a set resolve to travel to far places and return for several months each year to his Southern California ranch for a season of "open house" to his friends. Not even Eddie Guest would deny that's a heap o' livin', podner.

Next to Will Rogers, the swiftest fellow on his after-dinner feet out here is Jack Warner. He has the trigger-minded wit that sparks liveliest when the target for good-natured heckling. He deflates with quick asides and without ever letting go of a disarming smile. The best of the amiable cynics since Wilton Lackey.

As fugelman of the local literati, Rupert Hughes is fittingly president of the Writers' Club. I could write a fat tome on my genuine affection through the years for Rupert. But as much as I love him, I had gently to resist his entreaty to be guest of honor at a special dinner by that organization. A galoot who can only respond to an evening of flattering speeches by making a silly bow has no business trying the role of an honored guest at a banquet. He should be among the blundering bus boys.

Fred Stone has been house guest of Will Rogers for several weeks. Baching together while Mrs. Rogers has been trouping as a chaperone for her daughter Mary. Stone and Rogers are Damon and Pythias of their profession, trying awkwardly to hide sentimentalities by exchange of ranch house epithets. Their specialty at private parties is a cowboy duet, a twilight threnody that gives Rogers an opening for a falsetto tenor that should only be done with lantern slides. The conclusion is a strolling through the park pas seul, the mock gravity of which is a boon to the vest button industry.

The tan polo coat with top-hatted evening dress is an accepted sartorial inconsistency here. Lee Tracy effects it. John Barrymore, too, I hear, although I did not see him. Then those loud checkered rainbow coats of the Santa Monica beach, the spectrum on a bust. Also the pint-cup sized gardenias the bloods wear in their lapels. It almost gives me courage to try out a few of my own home grown sartorial riots. The way they dress I should be able to pass by in a high fog without sending the populace shinnying up palm trees.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

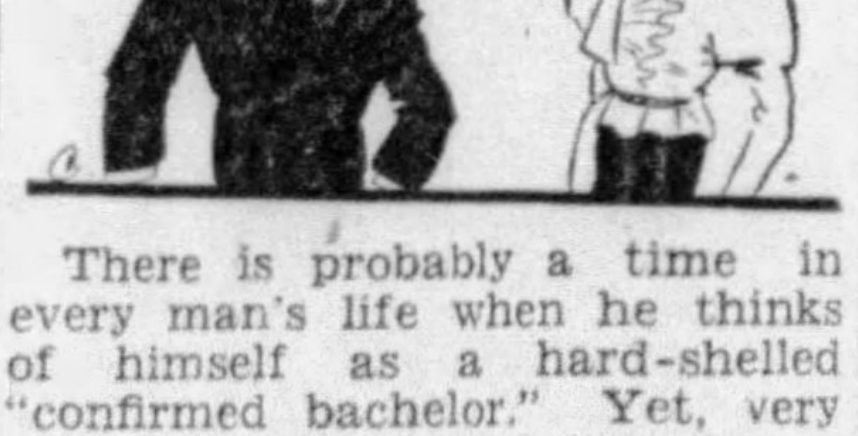
By Helen Rowland

Matrimonial Jay-Walkers

The average bachelor over 35 is just a jay-walker on the highway of love. As far as he is concerned, women are like automobiles. It is only a matter of time, when one of them will GET him! Usually, the speediest one!

* * *

And when I say "bachelor," I mean a man who has never been married—not a widower or any wise old graduate of the domestic school of Experience. A simon-pure unconquered male, from whom the nerve has never been extracted and who still faces match-makers and marrying-gals with the Spirit of '76!



I SAY I'M A CONFIRMED BACHELOR
OH YEAH

There is probably a time in every man's life when he thinks of himself as a hard-shelled "confirmed bachelor." Yet, very few men manage to get as far as 50 without giving up the struggle and facing the music of Lohengrin. That is Karma!

* * *

But Indian summer is a dangerous time to look for a wife or to let ANY woman marry you. The longer a man succeeds in dodging women, the more likely he is to fall for the wrong woman. The harder he struggles to escape the imaginary pitfalls of matrimony, the more certain he is to skid right into the real ones.

Many a "hard-shell" will go along for 20 years dodging one nice girl after another, making a safe getaway from one attractive girl after another, and then weaken and tumble for a perfectly obvious gold digger—or for a multiple divorcee with a high-powered temper and a reputation for having made several men miserable—or for a sour old prune who will censor his smokes and drinks and put him on a reform school regime.

* * *

Ah, well, scientists say that when the brain expands, the heart contracts; but when a man falls in love, the rule appears to work the other way. Else why go "all the 'way round the mulberry bush" just in order to pick up the spoiled fruit?

* * *

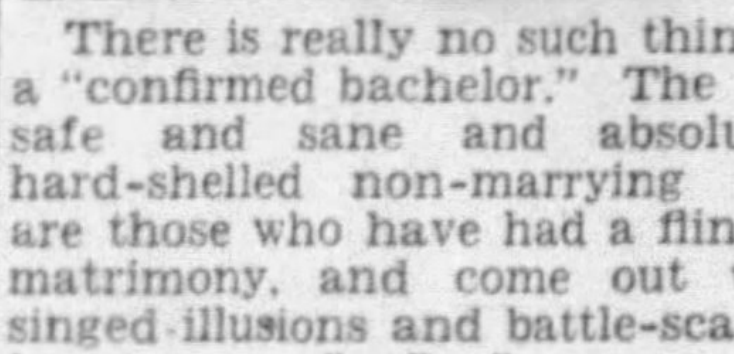
Thirty is an ideal age for a man to shed his dream of being a perennial bachelor, and to begin thinking about getting married. It is the perfect age at which to BEGIN marrying.

* * *

In his twenties, a man may know a lot about love but he is just beginning to "learn about women." In his thirties, he has a pretty good working knowledge of both love and women.

* * *

But when he simply refuses to CONTEMPLATE the thought of marriage until he is flirting-with-fifty, he is apt to be carried away on a wave of emotion and "sunk without trace." When a man is beginning to feel a little sorry for himself, a little frustrated and a little lonely for companionship, he should stuff his ears and close his eyes until he has passed the danger.



I'M 50—AND THAT'S A GOOD TIME TO BEGIN MARRYING

There is really no such thing as a "confirmed bachelor." The only safe and sane and absolutely hard-shelled non-marrying men are those who have had a fling at matrimony, and come out with singed illusions and battle-scarred hearts.

* * *

Every man is in danger of marrying, at least once. And no man should select his first wife and his first bottle of hair-tonic, at the same time.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Is a Mother Always a Child's Best Friend?

I sat in court the other day and watched the child of a divorced couple taken from the father, given to the mother.

The child, a little boy of 10, cried pitifully and clung to his dad. The mother, also sobbing, drew him away—then beamed through her tears. The court and the onlookers beamed with her.

It was a little tough on the father, yes. He seemed a decent fellow. But of course, the child's interests came first. And, as everyone knows, "a mother is a child's best friend."

A touching sight, and increasingly common. Time was when fathers had powers of life and death over their children. Now that situation—which was, of course, abominable—has been completely reversed with the advent of suffrage. In nearly every state of our union the power of voting clubwomen has become so great that the children of broken homes go almost automatically to the mother.

As a consequence Motherhood, instead of being a sweet and sacred service, is becoming, with rapidly increasing frequency, A SINISTER RACKET. As bludgeons for legal hold-ups, Mama's Tears have become quite as potent as Sweeties' Mash Notes. And rare and reckless is that judge who dares defy the Sanctity of Mother Love. For if the attorneys don't get him, the lady voters will!

All of which would be perfectly proper, if it really "served the child's best interest." But does it? Is a Mother always "her child's best friend"?

I DO NOT THINK SHE IS! And regardless of the indignant shrieks of the Female Electorate, I'm going to say my piece.

I am a mother. As a newspaper woman I have also worked with thousands of other mothers for 16 years. I have sat through countless court cases and seen the child's custody awarded to the mother AND IN THE MAJORITY OF CASES I HAVE REJOICED. For, despite her shortcomings, I do believe that the average mother will be more loyal to her child, make greater sacrifices for that child, than will the father.

BUT I DO NOT BELIEVE THAT ALL MOTHERS ARE THEIR CHILDREN'S BEST FRIENDS.

AND I CERTAINLY DO NOT BELIEVE THAT A WOMAN IS ENTITLED TO PRIVATE AND PUBLIC LOVE, ADULATION AND CONSIDERATION MERELY BECAUSE SHE HAS BECOME A MOTHER.

The simple truth about motherhood is this—

Mothers are people. They are people before they have children; they are people afterwards, possessing all the weakness and cussedness common to other human beings. There is nothing in childbirth which automatically endows a woman with strength of mind or fineness of soul. If a woman is a fool or a tramp before she gives birth, she continues to be a fool or a tramp afterwards.

Motherhood, at its best, or even third best, is about as fine a thing as there is in our muddled life. But that same term may also camouflage endless viciousness and stupidity.

EVERYTHING THAT KISSES AND CRIES ISN'T LOVE.

MOTHER LOVE WITHOUT MOTHER SENSE ISN'T A BLESSING—IT'S A BLIGHT.

AS BETWEEN A COOL FATHER WITH A BRAIN AND A BACKBONE, AND A WARM MOTHER WITHOUT ONE, I'D GIVE THE CHILD TO PAPA EVERY TIME.

Why am I saying all this? Because I'm mad at Mamas? Anything but! I'm saying it because, to me, Motherhood is the greatest job on earth and should be the most honored. But we're not bringing honor upon motherhood by these tactics ladies. We're cheapening it—and laying ourselves and our performance open to a lot of derisive hisses and hoots.

Human Side of the News

The Sinking of the Lusitania, and How Theodore Roosevelt Received the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE Supreme Court of the State of New York, in the city of Syracuse, had just gone into session, with the usual "Hear ye! Hear ye!" The case at issue was the libel suit of William Barnes of Albany against Theodore Roosevelt of the United States.

Upon the judge's bench, in his robe of black silk, sat the learned Justice William S. Andrews. On the witness stand was no less a person than the former President himself. At a long table half a hundred newspaper correspondents bent forward, intently following the duel going on between a noted lawyer, William N. Ivins, and the distinguished gentleman in the witness chair.

And suddenly, into the courtroom a messenger boy came running, with something of the effect of an exploding bombshell. Breathless he came to this writer, a reporter for a New York newspaper, and handed him a telegram. It was brief. It said, in so many words, that the Cunard Liner Lusitania had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, off the Irish Coast, with appalling loss of life.

Roosevelt Calls For Reparation

NOT often in a lifetime comes such a shock of news. I got up from my place at the reporters' table, walked behind the judge's bench and handed the telegram to Justice Andrews. He glanced at it, casually, at first, then froze in startled amazement. Completely suspending the functions of his court, he gestured to Theodore Roosevelt an invitation to leave the witness chair and join him at the bench, and when the ex-President had done so, Justice Andrews handed him the world-shaking telegram.

That night, in the private home where he was stopping, the ex-President wrote out a message to his countrymen, sternly advocating that every German ship in every harbor of the United States should be detained and held until the completest satisfaction was rendered by the Imperial German Government. Theodore Roosevelt had the vision to recognize the terrible fact that the United States was caught in the maelstrom which was whirling the civilized world into war; that there was no escape; that we would be forced in, whether we would or no, and that delay in accepting the inevitable would be a tragic mistake.

No wonder that the thrilling events of that month of May in 1915 are burned indelibly into the recollection of this reporter; that the tragic thing which took place off the Old Head of Kinsale, almost within plain sight of the green sod of Ireland, remains such a vivid tale of man's cruelty to man.

Up in the north Atlantic, off the Irish coast, Undersea Boat No. 20 of the Imperial German Navy skulked beneath the waves, only her periscope occasionally showing, so that her commander, by name and title Lieut. Capt. Schweiger, might sight a victim. Into these same waters steamed the giant Cunarder Lusitania with her human cargo of 1,257 men, women, children and babies, and a crew of 702—nearly 2,000 souls.

Liverpool was but one day away. Capt. Turner had cut down his speed to time his arrival. Many of the passengers were at lunch at 2:10 that afternoon. Others were playing games on the deck, or strolling about. Leslie Morton, 18-year-old member of the crew and a New Yorker, was on the starboard watch. Suddenly he went speechless, his tongue for the moment paralyzed. Then he cried out to the officer on the bridge:

Submarine Captain's Report of Deed

THE words had scarcely died on his lips before the angel of death had struck the very heart of the ship. What happened next? Many and varied had been the versions of the survivors, but there was one observer who was calm and collected as he looked on the scene. Let us have the story from him, Lieut. Capt. Schweiger of the Order of the Iron Cross. Here is what he set down in his diary:

"Right ahead appear four funnels and two masts of a steamer. Clean bow-shot from 700 meters range. The superstructure and the high bridge are rent asunder. Fire breaks out and smoke envelopes the high bridge. The ship stops immediately and quickly heels to starboard, at the same time diving deeper at the bows. She has the appearance of being about to capsize.

"There is great confusion on board, boats being cleared and partly lowered to the water. They must have lost their heads. Many boats, crowded, are let down, bow first or stern first, and immediately fill and sink. Few lifeboats can be made clear on the port side, owing to the slant of the ship.

"The ship blows up. In the front appears the name 'Lusitania' in gold letters. It seems as if the vessel will be afloat only a short time. We submerge to 24 meters and go to sea. I could not have fired a second torpedo into this throng of humanity attempting to save themselves."

Thus spoke the gentleman who sent 1,194 human beings to sudden, fear-crazed death, and who, himself, was to die in another submarine, a few months later, off Zeebrugge.

Pork-Barrel Politicians Fought by Norris

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IN SPITE of his long years of service in the service of the people, Senator Norris of Nebraska is still an optimist. The Nebraska statesman has the faith to believe that the day will come when Senators and Representatives in Congress will no longer stoop to the level of political errand-boys but will confine themselves to their constitutional duties as national Legislators.

When Senator Black of Alabama proposed an amendment to a pending measure to prohibit public officials and political committeemen from seeking loans for their constituents from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Senator Norris made an inspiring argument in support of the proposal.

Contending that the principle involved in the Black Amendment was sound and that, if applied, it would go a long way toward saving the government and the Democratic Party from ruin, the fearless Progressive from Nebraska said:

"If we are going to take the taxpayers' money by the hundreds of millions and loan it out on political influence, then we ought not to stand as a nation. Such a proposal is unscientific, unbusinesslike, unfair. I think it is a dishonest use of the taxpayers' money."

Senator Norris declared himself in favor of applying the same principle to every department of the Federal Government, in order that the whole Federal service might be safeguarded from the debauching influence of greedy politicians.

"The same principle," he said, "ought to pervade the Postoffice Department from the Postmaster General himself to the janitors who scrub out the postoffices in the various cities and towns of the United States."

Called Attention To Impropriety

IT WAS Senator Norris who as long ago as last December called the attention of the Congress and the country to the indefensible impropriety of permitting the chairman of the national committee of the party in power, who is also the chairman of the state committee of his party, to exercise, at the same time, the tremendous authority and responsibility of Postmaster General in the cabinet of the President.

It was Senator Norris who did his best to convince the Senate and the House of the wisdom of protecting the Home Owners Loan Corporation from the demands of pork-barrel politicians.

This amendment was rejected by the Congress, and the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who is also chairman of the New York State Committee of his party, is still in the cabinet as Postmaster General.

For many months, the executive departments and multitudinous relief agencies in the Federal city have been overrun by Senators and Representatives in Congress seeking appointments and loans and other favors for their political supporters, kinsfolk and other favorites.

In spite of the efforts of the President to keep relief work on a non-partisan basis, the Senators and Representatives who do not share his ideals persist in bringing pressure to bear upon the President's appointees to yield to Congressional influence and to play politics with Federal patronage and Federal money.

Senator Condemns Political Spoilsmen

IN CONDEMNING congressional interference in administrative matters, Senator Norris said some things to the Senate which it must have been unpleasant for more than one Senator to listen to.

No member of the House, in the judgment of Senator Norris, and no member of the Senate "ought to devote all his time looking after those who want to get an office or those who want to get contracts from the government."

The Senator exposed the fact that some Senators are now appearing before Federal agencies and arguing their constituents' claims. In other words, they are bringing to bear on the executive branch of the government the kind of influence, in behalf of their constituents, that political lobbyists for special interests are hired to do.

Senator Norris has the vision of another and a better day when public sentiment will drive from public life political spoilsmen who thus abuse the power of the Congress.

"I believe that some day," Senator Norris said, "there will go into the White House a man who will say, referring to the Postoffice Department, that from top to bottom that department is going to be operated as a business institution; a man who will say: 'We are going to run it as a business proposition. We are trustees of the people's money which we appropriate to run it, and we ought to be more careful about the way those funds are expended than if it were our own money.'"
